Bridge improvements planned

By DAWN VAN DYKE
Express city editor

The railroad trestle bridge, a piece of Winters’ history spanning Putah Creek south of the Community Center, will be rehabilitated and opened for pedestrians and cyclists. The Winters City Council took action at its Tuesday, July 20, meeting to proceed with the project, which City Manager John Donlevy hopes to see completed by next year.

“One of the first things that many people notice when they drive across Putah Creek into Winters is the railroad trestle bridge,” he told the council, noting that many people active in the community have dreamed of reopening the bridge for sometime.

This project, which utilizes several different types of funding, will make that dream a reality. The renovation project includes a new reinforced concrete deck, safety railings, lighting, signs, approaches on the north and south sides of the creek, and seismic retrofit. According to the staff report, design for the vehicle bridge, which is also slated for replacement in a separate project, will be complimentary to the trestle bridge. The rehabilitation and seismic studies are complete. The council was asked to approve a proposal for final design, bid support and environmental studies. The cost is $100,008, and the timeline for completion is six and one-half months.

The total cost to rehabilitate the bridge is estimated approximately $800,000.

“We have acquired more money for the project than we might need,” he said.

Donlevy said the city received $200,000 in federal funding, which they don’t know if they want to use, since it may end up costing more to use it due to “various federal restrictions.”

According to Donlevy, funding sources include $170,000 from Solano County, $220,000 in Proposition 40 funds, $30,000 from the Yolo Solano Air Quality Management

Man dies in rollover accident

By STACI DENNIS
McNaughton Newspapers

A single vehicle accident resulted in the death of a 70-year-old Winters man after his minivan swerved off the road and flipped into a drainage ditch on Sunday, July 25, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Johannes Adolph Hillig was driving at an unknown speed north on County Road 93A north of Russell Boulevard (near the “split” of county roads 31 and 32) at about 3 p.m.

when he veered off the road for unknown reasons onto the dirt, according to CHP officer Loren Jacobs.

“There is a big curve just as you get on County Road 93A,” Jacobs said. “It surprises most people and they try to take it too fast.”

Hillig overcompensated as he tried to steer back onto the road, Jacobs said, and apparently lost control of his vehicle and spun clockwise off the pavement on the left side of the road into the dirt.

crashed into a concrete irrigation retainer, causing the van to roll over. It came to rest in between two ditches. Hillig was wearing his seat belt and the air bags deployed, Jacobs said.

Hillig was transported by helicopter to the UC Davis Medical Center in Sacramento, where he died at 4:10 p.m. of his injuries. The cause of death is listed as blunt force trauma, Jacobs said.

Alcohol use is not believed to have been a factor in the crash, he added.

Honer resigns

The city of Winters is without a public works director, following the resignation of Karen Honer. She held the position for approximately two and a half years. Her last day on the job was July 16.

According to Nanci Mills, director of administrative services for the city of Winters, Honer accepted a position with her former employer, ECO resources, and will oversee a region of northern California.

Nothing can shake things up like belly dancers, and the duo known as Syrinx will do just that at this year's Earthquake Street Festival, planned for Friday, Aug. 13, from 5-11 p.m. on downtown Main Street.

Those who saw the Sacred Fire belly dancers at last year's festival may remember Morena Avila and Jennifer Pittsley, who got their start with that group

DEBRA LO GUERCIO BECAUSE I SAY SO

BRACE YOURSELVES. I'm about to stick up for a Republican. I'm just as shocked and horrified as you are. With the state budget once again deadlocked in partisan bickering, why are we wasting valuable print space and air time wringing our hands over Governor Schwarzenegger's "girlie men" quip? In the end, will this silly little remark have any impact on anything whatsoever? In the words of that intrepid cultural philosopher Joan Rivers, "Oh grow up!"

Sure, the comment was beneath a California governor, and if that position was held by your average rank and file professional politician, he'd be taken to task for it. But we don't have an average rank and file professional politician for governor. We have Arnold Schwarzenegger. Let me repeat: We have Arnold Schwarzenegger. Quintessential macho man. The Terminator. Mr. Universe. He didn't rise to the top of his field(s) by minding his manners at tea parties.

Truth be told, I rather admire Arnie's "what you see is what you get" style. After nothing but one slick, slimy politician after another who'll twist his words and opinions into any configuration to solicit your vote, it's refreshing to see someone just say what he really thinks, damn the consequences. If people get pissed off, so be it. As someone who's been around the "so be it" block a few times, I have sympathy for a kindred spirit.

Ooh, ooh, ooh. People got offended. So what. News flash, guys: It isn't against the law for someone to say something offensive. It is, however, against the law to prevent someone from saying something offensive. Remember?

The Constitution protects free speech. As long as we aren't threatening anyone else or inciting violence and mayhem, we're free to say whatever we want in this country (Patriot Act notwithstanding). If you don't like what someone says, you're free to stop listening. And if you found that person's statement offensive, here's what you do: Deal with it.

The "girlie man" remark had scarcely faded into the breeze before Arnie got pelted with terms like "homophobic." Obviously, these thin-skinned, humorless folks never saw the Saturday Night Live "Hans and Franz" skit from which the term sprang or they'd know that if anything, this skit that lampooned the body building world (and, ironically, Schwarzenegger himself) was homoerotic if it was anything. You Arnie bashers are totally at the wrong end of the homo spectrum.

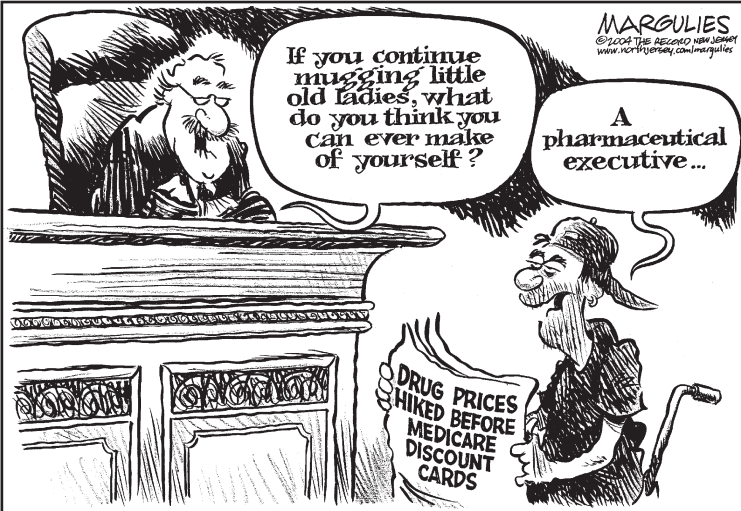

Maybe a little required television viewing would thicken up skins so we could spend our energy fussing over real issues. I suggest a steady regimen of Saturday Night Live, intermixed with regular doses of The Daily Show, South Park and Reno 911, with a Mad TV chaser. You'll discover that, unlike that other comedy channel called Fox News, the offensiveness is evenly distributed. Sooner or later, everyone's the target of the jokes, yourself included. Consider it a course in Lighten Up 101. Learn to laugh at yourself. You'll live longer.

There's the real issue: too many people take themselves entirely too seriously, and they get all bent out of shape when everyone else doesn't take them the same way. And how do they deal with that? They whine.

Far be it from me to criticize teachers, but let's face it, this behavior gets reinforced right off the bat in kindergarten. Little Tommy throws his hand in the air and whines: "Teacher! Johnny stuck his tongue out at me!" Then he waits smugly for justice to be dispensed, getting a strange, tingly pleasure at watching Little Johnny being stripped of recess privileges. We'd be a far more mature nation if the teacher told Tommy to stick out his tongue back and get back to work on his A,B,C's. And if you tattle again, no milk and cookies.

So to all you politicians out there running to the nearest television camera or newspaper reporter, waving your arms and whining, "Teacher, Arnie called me a girlie man!" I have one thing to say to you: "So call him a girlie man back and get back to work on the budget."

Maybe the Kindergarten Cop is just what the Capitol Kindergarten needs.

A QUICK OPINION

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL ROAD TRIP. It's not every family that can cram themselves into a van and head for Montana and come back still speaking to each other.

I didn't get to go on my annual Harley road trip this year, family commitments, but that didn't mean I couldn't plan a road trip. My permanent tenant suggested that we take our two ex-temporary tenants to Glacier National Park. It took a few weeks to convince the kids that they should spend part of their summer vacation with the folks, and a couple of more weeks to find a week that everyone could take off.

It only took a couple of hours on the internet, and I found a cabin to rent at a place called the North 40, just outside the park. When I showed the reservations to Sherri, a cabin for four for a week, she reminded me that our daughter had gotten married and maybe her husband, Rance, would like to go along. Back to the computer and a little bigger cabin.

The company van is great for trips. You just put in a seat for three, add an ice chest and a laundry basket for food and hit the road. Laura and Rance showed up with enough luggage for a European vacation. I gave each one a box from the print shop and told them that is all the room they get. When they looked at Sherri's box, end of discussion. Just for clarification, the boxes fit perfectly behind the seat in the van.

It took three days to get to White Fish, Montana and they were enjoyable days. We stopped in Klamath Falls on Thursday night and walked into their third Thursday of the month downtown festival. Live music and food booths covered the streets. We ate in a nice Italian restaurant, enjoyed the blues band inside the restaurant, and drank local beer.

Walking down the street, I liked the old street lights and wide sidewalks. For a town the size of Klamath Falls, there weren't that many people, but plenty to make their Main Street feel like the place to be on the third Thursday of every month.

We made it to Pendleton, Oregon the next night and right into their Friday night farmers market. We missed the Pendleton Wool Factory tour, but lucked out when we read about an underground tour of the city. It seems the Chinese working on the railroad weren't allowed to be seen in public after dark and lived in the basements of several downtown buildings. They offered to build tunnels between the basements so they could shop and move around after work. Wells Fargo wanted to move their gold shipments from the train station without being robbed, so they helped pay for the work.

Over the years the Chinese moved out and bars moved in during prohibition. There was an ice plant to keep meat cool during the hot summer days. Throw in a brothel on the second floor and Pendleton was the place to be. Quite the tour.

Everyone should take the time to go visit Glacier National Park. It is gorgeous. High mountain peaks with plenty of water features. Large lakes, rivers everywhere and waterfalls where you least expect them. We didn't see any bears, but that is okay. As we topped the Great Divide, we saw several Big Horn Sheep grazing 50 yards away. Mountain goats walked along the side of the road, and something called a marmot walked in front of us on a breathtaking trail.

Maybe the best part of the trip was that everyone seemed to get along, no fights, no arguments and no moping around. Even with a grumpy old man along, everyone kept smiling and playing the part of happy tourists. I even let Rance drive, which says a lot for someone who was once voted the worst back seat driver in California. He did a great job and became a regular behind the wheel, especially crossing the Nevada desert, when there wasn't much to do but read and eat.

The van didn't particularly like going up hill in the high deserts of Washington, Montana or Nevada. As the heat gauge went up, I turned off the air conditioning, and it didn't take long for those in the back to mention the heat. I opened a couple of windows and explained the difference between riding in a hot car and walking. I found a new reason to carry an ice chest. Pouring cold water on a radiator fixes a lot of problems. Going down hill the van cheered up and didn't give us a bit of trouble until we hit the grade just outside of Nevada on the way home.

There are a lot of great places to see, and a lot of conversation to catch up on. If you get a chance to hit the road, take it. The kids are getting older, but they don't seem to mind travelling with the folks, as long as we pick up the tab. Things are changing. A couple of evenings the bill didn't land in front of me. Laura and Rance just smiled and said it was their turn to treat. Sherri did a great job of raising the kids.

It is always nice to be home. Have a good week.

CHENEY, EDWARDS: WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE, ANYWAY...?

A Bateman Diagram ©mmiv
scott@batemania.com, Slappy

Edwards has been fighting for working people, while Cheney has been fleeing working people.

All I'm saying is, one of them scares my three-year-old whenever he comes on TV, and the other one doesn't, is all I'm saying.

I don't know about Edwards, but for a guy who claims to espouse family values, Cheney sure has a potty mouth.

Letters policy

The Winters Express encourages readers to submit letters of general interest to the Winters community.

The deadline for Letters to the Editor is noon, on Mondays for publication that week.

Letters may be mailed or hand-delivered to The Winters Express, 312 Railroad Avenue, Winters, CA 95694.

We will also accept letters by e-mail. Our e-mail address is news@wintersexpress.com

Letters should not exceed 500 words. Do not use all capital letters. We reserve the right to edit or reject any letter.

Letters must be legibly signed by the writer. However, we may withhold writers' names from publication if there is a legitimate reason, such as fear of reprisal.

County furlough approved

The Yolo County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously last week to approve a 60-hour furlough for all county employees to help close a $14 million budget gap projected for fiscal year 2004-05.

Vic Singh, County Administrative Officer, recommended to the board a countywide furlough of 60 hours per employee to take place over two pay periods between Dec. 20-31. Employees who perform critical public services, such as law enforcement, will have a staggered furlough schedule. Essential public services will be maintained.

The furlough will save the county $2.3 million and avoid the layoff of approximately 43 employees. The total number of authorized positions in Yolo County is approximately 1,740; however, with a 19.7 percent vacancy rate, the county presently employs approximately 1,400 people.

The county considered layoffs as well as furloughs, but determined in the end that furloughs have less impact on the county organization and the public.

“Layoffs involve complex and disruptive bumpings throughout the organization,” Singh said. “A layoff has the undesired effect of causing at least 43 people to be out of work and lost to the county, thus increasing the workload of those who remain.”

The County Human Resources department notified employee organizations on June 25 that it was seeking input on furloughs. More employees expressed a preference for furloughs as opposed to layoffs.

GORDA and DAVID HOOPYAR

Hoobyars celebrate 67 years of marriage

The Hoobyars, David and Gorda, were married in San Francisco, the big city by the Golden Gate, on Aug. 1, 1937. David claims they never had a date. "No proposals, no engagement, it was meant to be. I saw this beautiful nurse and my heart skipped a few beats," he says. "I walked up to her and sang to her—" "Oh Hark, I hear the church bells ringing, Madame will you come and be my wife? Or, dear Madame, have you settled to live single all your life?" She said she didn't want to stay single, so they were married in church, left the church at 4 p.m. and both had to be back to work 16 hours later on Monday morning. It was a 16-hour honeymoon, but it lasted 67 years. "This poor old picture, taken in 1937, shows me in my railroad 'working attire' blue bib overalls. These last few years have taken their toll, but all in all, we have a lot to be thankful for. So, we've renewed our wedding vows for another 67 years. Ah, yes, it's a great life. Thank you, thank you," says David.

Intersection work underway now

Pacific Gas and Electric began relocating gas and electric infrastructure in the intersection of Grant and Railroad this week. The infrastructure currently conflicts with the proposed improvements associated with the Railroad and Grant signal improvements project, which will widen the intersection and install a traffic signal. The improvements are expected to allow traffic to flow more smoothly at this intersection. Traffic control and parking restrictions are in affect in this area. The work should be completed by Aug. 13. The intersection widening and traffic signal installation is slated to commence this fall and should be completed by the end of the year. The project is funded by federal and state funds, as well as street impact fees. Any questions or concerns should be directed to Alan Mitchell of Ponticello Enterprises, project engineer for the Public Works Department, 795-4910, ext. 116.

Robbers unmasked

These little robbers were caught red-handed — or red-pawed — by the Winters Police Department after apparently trying to make an ATM withdrawal at First Northern Bank on Sunday, July 25.

The young raccoons were trapped and relocated.

Childress artwork featured at state capitol

The work of Winters artist Diana Childress will be hung in the office of State Senator Michael Machado, who wishes to bring attention to artists in his constituency. An artist's reception will take place on Tuesday, Aug. 10, 4-5:30 p.m., in Machado's office (3086) in the State Capital Building in Sacramento. Childress' work is also currently on display as part of the Sacramento Valley Landscape Painting exhibit at the John Natsoulas Gallery. Her work includes pastel and oil paintings from her two years as a new Winters resident. The subject focus is landscape of this region, such as the row of olive trees along Russell Boulevard near County Road 95 on the way to Davis. Childress owns the Blue Hills Gallery with her husband, Jeff, at 9 E. Main Street, and helps co-ordinate the monthly Winters art walks.

CHAMBER NEWS AND ACTIVITIES

Chamber Mixer planned

The next Chamber Mixer is being hosted by Chamber member Valley Floors, owned by Lance and Gina Linville, on Monday, Aug. 9 at 5:30 p.m. The shop is located at 3 Russell Street.

The Linvilles planned to host the July mixer but had to delay due to circumstances. Valley Floors is one of those businesses on which the Chamber can always rely for help, no matter what the project.

Executive director Dan Maguire says, "I can guarantee it will be worth the wait, as Lance and Gina typically go overboard when they host a mixer. Please join us for what is always one of the best mixers of the year."

Looking spiffy

Downtown Winters has been spiffed up a bit with planter boxes and topiaries, thanks in part to the generosity of Winters Aggregate, which donated potting soil and Hines Nursery, which donated the plants. Clockwise from bottom left are Ken Bertinoia of Winters Aggregate, Winters Chamber of Commerce executive director Dan Maguire, Mike McCracken of Winters Aggregate and Kathy Millon of Hines Nursery. There have been more than 40 planter boxes placed along Main Street and Railroad Avenue, 12 of which were added in the most recent phase of the project.

The Winters Chamber of Commerce office is located inside the Community Center at 201 Railroad Avenue. The hours are Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Call 795-2329 for information about the Chamber.

Chamber Doings...

By DAN MAGUIRE
Executive director
Winters Chamber of Commerce

Thanks to JDS Builders for hosting our July Chamber mixer. The Mixer was held at their office on East Main but we all migrated over to the Waggoner Elementary Library building that is being redone into commercial space.

John and his team are doing some really great things in conjunction with "recycling" the building. The front portion of the building will be home to a coffee shop which will have tremendous ambiance, with a wrap-around porch and tons of neat features. Think "Central Perk" from the TV Show "Friends" with a fireplace added.

The back portion (access from the parking lot in the center of Main Street Village) will provide an interesting twist on the restaurant business.

We are only a few weeks away from our biggest event of the year, the Earthquake Street Festival. This year's event is scheduled for Friday, Aug. 13, from 5-11 p.m.

This year's entertainment might be the best we have ever had. In addition to the Time Bandits as our featured performers, Debra Lo Guercio (our EQ entertainment chairperson) has lined up the Syrinx belly dancers and Michele Drumright's "A Taste of Hawaii" dance group. The Bakuatsu taiko drummers will also perform, and the search is still on for a mariachi band or bagpipe group.

This year's vendor lineup looks quite full and I expect a record number of booths at the event. As is always the case, this is such a large event and we always need more help. Please contact me at 795-2329 if you can help us. I hope all of you will join us at the Earthquake Festival, I promise you'll have a great time!

The Chamber Beautification Committee placed eight new wine barrel planters in the downtown business area in July. This brings the number of planters placed to almost 40.

My thanks to Chamber Board members Cecil Padilla and Howard Hupe for all their hard work in placing, filling and planting the new barrels. All the topiaries that are the centerpiece of the new planters were donated by Hines Nursery and we are again (this is the second time they have donated) very grateful for their generosity. Likewise, Winters Aggregate stepped to the plate with another large donation of potting soil.

Obviously, we are lucky to have businesses that are willing to donate but then again, isn't that always the case in Winters?

With temperatures near and above the century mark, it is perhaps difficult to think of the fact that fall will soon be here in Winters. With the fall season on the horizon, it is once again time to think of the Chambers' "Winters in October" festival.

We will again this year sponsor a month-long celebration of agriculture and culture in our community during the month of October. One of the big events will be the Scarecrow Contest. The scarecrows along Main Street, Railroad Avenue and throughout town last year were wonderful.

Now is the time to get the creative juices flowing and start thinking about the scarecrow you plan to build for the display. We will publish more information in the months ahead on the Scarecrow Contest, as well as other events planned for the festival.

Community members will soon be able to enjoy events in the new amphitheater behind the Community Center. City of Winters public works employees and California Conservation Corps members have provided the labor. Tony Luna (left) and Alex Stanford were among those at work on the project Monday, July 26.

BRIDGE

District and $250,000 from the city's Redevelopment.

According to the staff report, an improvement that is not included in the design document is repair of the scour damage, which reaches about six feet deep and eight feet back on pier two of the bridge. The scour condition can be repaired and is included in a proposed maintenance contract.

"I really hope that by next summer we will be walking and biking across that bridge," said Don-levy.

The city council unanimously approved the revised project budget sheet for the improvements, approved an amendment to the Professional Services Agreement with Quincey Engineering for final design and environmental studies, authorized expenditures in the amount of $110,000 and authorized the city manager to execute the amendment on the city's behalf.

Commission vacancy

Mayor Dan Martinez told the council he and council member Tom Stone interviewed several applicants for the planning commission seat that was left vacant when Patrick Riley resigned. He and Stone recommended Ed Ross for the position, although Martinez encouraged the other applicants to reapply.

The council agreed with the recommendation, though city councilman Robert Chapman asked to participate in the selection of any new planning commissioner. Ross was sworn in at the Tuesday, July 27, planning commission meeting.

Other items

In other agenda items, the council took the following action:

~ Delayed the appeal hearing of the planning commission decision requiring Winters Highlands to prepare an Environmental Impact Report until Sept. 7. The action was taken at the request of the appellant.

~ Approved action regarding Yolo Solano Air Quality Management District (YSAQMD) fines.

Auditions planned for 'Bye Bye Birdie'

Davis Musical Theatre Company will hold auditions for "Bye Bye Birdie," the opening show of DMTC's 20th Season. Audition dates are Monday, Aug. 2 and Tuesday, Aug. 3, at 7:30 p.m., with callbacks on Wednesday, Aug. 4, at 7:30 p.m. if necessary. Auditions will be held at 215 Madison Place #E (behind Goodyear Tire, near the Post Office off 5th Street). It is not necessary to come both days.

Auditioners should bring a prepared song (not from the show, and no taped music or a cappella) to sing. An accompanist will be provided. It is not necessary to sing an entire song, just enough to give the director and musical director an idea of how well you can carry a tune and follow accompaniment.

Performance dates for "Bye Bye Birdie" are Sept. 24 through Oct. 17. For more information, call DMTC, 756-3682.

~Adjourned to the Community Development Agency (CDA) and approved an application for a PG&E 2004 Economic Development Grants Program—city of Winters CDA and Chamber of Commerce for up to $5,000 for purchase of downtown treelights.

~ As CDA, approved a consultant services agreement with Keyser Marston Inc. in conjunction with preparation of a Downtown Master Plan.

~ Approved the consent agenda as one item.

Council member Woody Fridae was not present at the meeting. The next city council meeting will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 17, at 7:30 p.m. in council chambers at City Hall.

and studied under the group's founder, Jane Ingroff.

Avila and Pittsley wanted to perform more than Sacred Fire's schedule would allow and also wanted to blend in some other dance styles to their repertoire, so they struck out on their own.

In their exotic costumes and makeup, the women look like they just stepped off the sands of ancient times. Don't let looks deceive you. By day, Avila is a mortgage broker with First Choice Mortgage and Pittsley is a bioprocess technician at Genentech.

Pittsley says belly dancing is more than just movement set to music — it's a form of communication through self-expression.

Through dance, she says she is "able to communicate without words, using body and movement."

Avila agrees, and adds that taking up belly dancing has been a self-affirming endeavor.

"I just love it. It's helped me build confidence and to be more comfortable with my body."

In addition to classic belly dance routines, Avila and Pittsley have blended in moves from Indian dance, flamenco and salsa. They describe their style as "alternative fusion."

"It's all in there — a big salsa," says Avila with a smile.

In addition to their dance performance, Avila and Pittsley plan to invite members of the audience to try out a little shimmying and shaking of their own, with a little on-the-spot coaching.

Although the entertainment schedule has not yet been finalized, Syrinx is expected to perform at 6:30 p.m.

The Earthquake Street Festival will feature a variety of entertainment before the main act, the Time Bandits, takes the stage at 7 p.m. for a street dance that will last until 11 p.m.

The annual festival celebrates the rebuilding of the downtown, following a devastating earthquake in April 1892. The event began on the earthquake's centennial in 1992.

"We had a very successful season," said coach Jerry Smith. "I just really felt we could have done better, especially watching the teams that were still in the tournament on Sunday."

Against San Francisco, the Gamblers had one bad inning that made all the difference in the game. Tri-County

"If we could get rid of the second inning we win 3-2," Smith said. "Unfortunately they count all the innings."

Norm Halley threw the first one and one-third innings before being relieved by Scott Thur.

At the plate, Chris Cooper led the Gamblers, batting 2 for 3 with a double and a RBI. Jacob Romano batted 2 for 4. Matt Miller hit 1 for 2 with a homerun and a RBI, Nick Ballev went 1 for 2 with a RBI and Mike Gleason batted 1 for

In game two the Gamblers only collected five hits against the Sun Devils. Gleason threw a complete game for Tri-County and only gave up one walk after the third. James Barbosa ended his season the way a hitter would like to batting 3 for 3 with 2 doubles and a RBI, while Cooper and Romano each went 1 for 3.

The Gamblers ended their season with a 26-9 overall record and won the North Bay East with a 17-3 record.

"I really thought we had a good chance of going a lot further," Smith said. "But it just didn't work out that way."

Yolo County Office of Education receives major grant funding

The Yolo County Office of Education (YCOE) has been awarded a $1 million dollar grant for the teaching of American History in local schools, and an additional $515,000 grant for an extension of the regional Community Service Program.

One of only 12 grant recipients in the state, YCOE will use the Teaching American History grant to train local schoolteachers in each of the five school districts in Yolo County, including Winters, Davis, Woodland, Washington and Esparto, as well as the Dixon School District in Solano County.

The grant is designed to promote the teaching of traditional American history in elementary and secondary schools. The funding comes from the U.S. Department of Education and will cover 100 percent of costs related to training, release time and teacher stipends.

"We are delighted to be one of the few regions in the state to receive this Teaching American History grant," said Dr. Jorge Ayala, Yolo County Superintendent of Schools. "The grant will go a long way toward improving both the quality of teaching and the progress of students in understanding American History in our local schools."

"I have to give a lot of credit to Ronda Adams, Assistant Superintendent, Curriculum and Instructional Services for YCOE, and Nancy McTyghe, Director of the UC History Project, for submitting a comprehensive application deserving of support and recognition."

YCOE will collaborate on the project with the Area 3 History and Cultures Project and the Department of History at UC Davis. The project's goal will be to improve the subject matter preparation of U.S. history teachers in grades 5, 8 and 11, and to improve literacy and achievement rates among native English speakers and English learner student populations in U.S. History classes.

The program will center on mentoring and coaching of history teachers by professional historians, instruction in teaching strategies, and training in reading comprehension strategies for U.S. History texts and primary and secondary sources.

Content will include studies of: Federalism, Articles of Confederation, Civil War, Reconstruction, Civil Rights, Manifest Destiny, Monroe Doctrine, Roosevelt Corollary, Truman Doctrine and Movements of the 20th Century.

The first phase of grant implementation will take place in October, 2004, and the first summer institute will be offered in the summer of 2005.

The regional Community Service Grant Program extension marks the second year of funding for YCOE's program that promotes the engagement of students in meaningful community service activities to strengthen their social skills, and teaches students the value of service to others and community, and how to avoid negative behaviors.

Come take your best guess

Although the search for the ring may be over in the movie version of "Lord of the Rings," there are still lots of rings to be found in the guessing jar at the Winters Library. That's because the book selected to be the prize for July is "The Hobbit" by J.R.R. Tolkien.

Each month a book is selected and items related to the book are put into the guessing jar. To win the book, patrons come visit the library, check out one or more books, and submit an estimate as to the number of items in the jar. The person who comes closest to the actual number of items wins.

The contest lasts all month, and this month's contest will continue through July 31.

Marianne Hawkins really knows her beans. She was the winner in June when she guessed that there were 1,731 jelly beans in the guessing jar. The actual number was 1,744. She won a math game book called "Jelly Bean Fun."

In honor of the start of school, the book chosen for August is a children's book called "My School is a Zoo" by Stu Smith and illustrated by David Catrow. It's an imaginative, rhyming story with hilarious illustrations. The guessing jar will be filled with pencils.

The library guessing game is sponsored by the Winters Friends of the Library.

Homeschooling group to meet in Davis

The Yolo County Homeschoolers, a loose-knit group of inclusive Yolo County homeschooling parents, invites all homeschoolers and those interested in learning more about homeschooling to their monthly park day, Thursday, Aug. 5, from 12-2 p.m. at Rainbow City in Community Park at the corners of F Street and Covell Boulevard in Davis.

Several homeschoolers will be available to answer questions about the wide variety of homeschooling options, opportunities, and experiences. A short informal presentation will be offered from 12-12:30. Homeschooling philosophies, understanding legal options, networking, parkdays, college opportunities, conferences and local and statewide resources are among the topics to be discussed.

Find out how to begin and where to find the tools to navigate your personal family homeschooling adventure. The group offers a Yahoo-based email list, the monthly newsletter (the Flash, call Heather Smith, 756-4514, for a copy of the latest issue), an annual Homeschool Information Night each August, weekly park-days for younger families, periodic coffee nights and a monthly park day on the first Thursday of every month, where families play and network.

New time for DADS playgroup

Dads with children under age 6 are invited to participate with their children in the DADS (Dads and Daughters/Sons) playgroup. Yolo Family Service Agency, in collaboration with Lekotek, is providing this free service at its office at 455 First Street in Woodland. Each Tuesday, the group holds a play activity from 6 to 7:30 p.m. A Spanish-speaking group is held every other Tuesday.

DADS combines parenting education and experiential play between fathers and their young children. This program guides fathers in bonding with their children while they are still very young. DADS also helps fathers understand their children's emotional and developmental needs.

To register, call 530-662-2211 extension 20.

Exercise helpful for chronic fatigue

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor has given me a provisional diagnosis of chronic fatigue syndrome. He is running more tests. Which one tells if I have this illness, and how is it treated? — B.B.

ANSWER: Chronic fatigue syndrome is an illness in search of a cause and of a diagnostic test. Currently no cause has been found, and no test establishes the diagnosis. The tests your doctor is running are to exclude other illnesses that cause profound tiredness — illnesses that include a sluggish thyroid gland, diabetes, lupus, anemia and adrenal gland malfunctions. Depression is another consideration.

Although there are no tests for this elusive illness, there are guidelines that make its diagnosis possible. The definition of fatigue is a feeling of total exhaustion not relieved by sleep or rest. Fatigue must be present for six months, and it must be of such magnitude that it has forced people to reduce their customary workload and their social lives.

In addition to fatigue, four of the following signs and symptoms have to be present to put the diagnosis on firm ground. A diminution of memory and concentration is an important element. Sore throat, at some stage, is often part of the picture. Lymph nodes in the neck and under the arms might be enlarged and tender. Muscles can ache, as can joints. Getting headaches when you never used to is another symptom. Physical exercise leaves CFS patients completely spent.

Exercise is an essential part of treatment. It sounds ridiculous to ask an exhausted person to exercise, but the rest imposed by fatigue leads to muscle weakness. Exercise can be started at a modest level, such as five minutes of walking or biking a day. Every week the length of time should be increased by three to five minutes until the goal of a full hour of activity is attained. Medicines such as Elavil can sometimes promote the refreshing sleep that has disappeared with the onset of the syndrome. The chronic fatigue pamphlet explores this syndrome in greater depth. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 304W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.50 U.S./$6.50 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What makes hair turn gray? Does it happen at different ages in different races? — Q.R.

ANSWER: Melanocytes — cells carrying the pigment melanin — impart color to hair. With age, there is a decline in melanocyte activity and number. That's when hair turns gray.

Caucasians begin to gray around age 34, and Asians in their late 30s. Blacks do not begin to gray until around age 43. Those ages are rough guides, and there is a considerable range for all of them.

Auntie Mame and the twins

Last summer I lost my second mother, Aunt Mame. Mame was really Mary Lucille King Barlett, my mother's younger sister. They were long term allies. When their mother died at age 48 from blindness and heart disease and stroke from having too many children, the oldest sister, Ina, and her husband and two children were asked to move back home to manage the family of six children.

My mom, Becky, and Mame were the two youngest after a spate of boys — Arthur, Woodrow and Robert. These two girls were expected to do all the house duties. When it was Mame's night to do the dishes, Mom would find them under the sink, still dirty. Mame always had something interesting going on but it wasn't cooking. She never learned to sew. Mom hemmed her skirts forever, it seemed to me.

In adulthood, they were always in and out of each other's houses and we intermingled with Mame and Uncle Chet and their children — The Twins. Only in my adulthood did I realize that Mame and Chet were married eight years before the twins happened. During that time, they were the second mom and dad to a whole variety of cousins, including me and my siblings. At my wedding to The Main Man, it was Mom and Mame who danced on the table, after an itty-bit too much champagne.

Last year, after an afternoon at the funeral parlor viewing of Mame's body (an East Coast practice), The Twins, Bill and Bob, and some of us cousins went over to their mom's house for food. We started out with reminiscences of Mame — her love of playing cards, her hatred of wearing shoes, the comic she was at parties and family picnics and The Twins' memories of how fierce she could be.

Then they got into telling stories on themselves. These stories had never before surfaced in the family at large. Now I see why. I recall thinking when I was a teenager that maybe these boys would never grow to adulthood, or they would be terribly psychologically crippled from the severe discipline their father exerted on them. After hearing some of their tales, I understood why Uncle Chet reacted as he did.

The fraternal twins (Bill was the older by five minutes) were a force unto themselves. These are some, only some, of the tales:

On a spring day when they were about 8 or 9 years old, the oil supplier came by to replenish the heating oil tank in the basement of the house. He connected his pipe, and proceeded to shoot the breeze with Uncle Chet. A little too much time went by and he said to Chet, "I thought you said you had a 500 gallon tank." Chet said, "I do."

"Well," said the oil man, "I've just delivered 650 gallons into your tank."

They went into the basement to find that The Twins had dismantled the connection of the delivery pipe to the storage tank and the basement was awash in a foot and a half of heating oil.

Major whupping.

The next story occurred on a quiet, humid summer afternoon after their house had been painted white. Mame and Chet had gone next door to talk to Ruth and Harry who were neighbors and also cousins. As they came back they noticed that the collie dog, Lady, was albino. Then they saw that the tree trunks were all white. The Twins were sitting on the back stoop, totally oblivious. Mame asked what was up. The Twins raised their hands, the palms of which were covered with white paint, and said, "Nothin."

Major whupping.

I babysat for them a lot when I was young. When I was 14 and they were about six, I was finally allowed to take care of them myself for an evening. If I remember correctly, after a variety of skirmishes, Bob held my left arm out, putting me off-base, and, as I tried to grab Bill, he was hitting me with a croquet mallet on my other hand. That was the last time I ever babysat for them.

I know that twins are not always the terrors that these guys were and they are able to build a wonderful inclusive relationship with each other. Contrary to my early beliefs, Bill and Bob grew up to be fine upstanding citizens — a librarian and an athletic coach.

Thanks to Auntie Mame.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your honesty is, as always, admirable. But you might want to be more tactful in discussing a sensitive issue with a family member. Remember: You can give advice without giving offense.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An unexpected workplace snag should be handled quickly and efficiently so that it leaves you time for family get-togethers. Also, you might soon get that long-sought apology.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Aspects favor family matters, especially where children might be involved. Spending time with loved ones helps restore some much-needed balance to your typically busy schedule.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) That seemingly clear-cut agreement might not be quite so straightforward after all. Recheck for language that could make you liable for hidden costs and other unpleasant surprises.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Careful, Kitty. Better to deal with someone with proven reliability than with a big talker who promises much but can't confirm that he or she will deliver. Your social life really zings this weekend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Your matchmaking skills are at peak performance levels both in helping to staff workplace teams for upcoming projects and for bringing people together on a more personal basis.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You're finally seeing some progress with your new venture. But be prepared for it to continue at a slower pace than you're used to. Meanwhile, a loved one could be preparing a surprise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A family member's success pulls you into the spotlight as well. Enjoy it, but don't let it overshadow or otherwise obstruct what you're doing with your own creative projects.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Using what you already know might not be quite enough to get a proposed project off the ground. Look for any new information that might help tilt the scales in your favor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) While a changing workplace environment can be daunting for some, it could be the challenge you've been hoping for. If so, confront it with confidence and move on.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) It's a good time to recheck travel arrangements for any changes that could work to your advantage. Aspects also favor strengthening and restoring old, fraying relationships.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Using your intuitive reasoning helps you cut right through the double-talk and go straight to what's really going on around you. Stay the course until all your questions are answered.

BORN THIS WEEK: You radiate light and warmth, and others love being close to you.

Las Tres Américas

Esta semana se esta celebrando en Boston la convención nacional del partido Demócrata y, sin duda, estamos escuchando mucho de las “dos Américas”. El senador John Edwards, el candidato a la vicepresidencia de los Demócratas, se dió a conocer en el ámbito nacional por decir que en Estados Unidos había “dos Américas”; una para los ricos y los poderosos y la otra para el resto.

Es curioso que esto lo diga alguien que tiene 44 millones de dólares en el banco, según una de sus últimas declaraciones de bienes. Pero lo que pasa es que Edwards también sabe lo que es no tener dinero para pagar las cuentas. Su padre trabajó como obrero en una fábrica de Carolina del Norte ganando apenas lo suficiente para que su familia sobreviviera económicamente. Edwards, más tarde, salió adelante con muchos esfuerzos y como abogado hizo su fortuna; es ejemplo del típico sueño americano.

Hoy, como candidato al segundo puesto más importante del país, Edwards propone desaparecer las “dos Américas” y crear una sola. Sueña bien como mensaje de campaña y para ganar votos. Pero ni Edwards ni el candidato Demócrata a la presidencia, John Kerry, ni el presidente George W. Bush, ni el vicepresidente, Dick Cheney, han hablado de la “tercera América”.

La “tercera América” es la de los indocumentados en Estados Unidos, la de los millones que viven en la oscuridad y en el miedo, la de los que temen ser deportados, la de los que son acusados injustamente de ser criminales o terroristas, la de los que toman los trabajos que los norteamericanos no quieren realizar y la de los que no tendrán ni voz ni voto en la próxima elección. Los que viven en la “tercera América” brincarían de júbilo si pudieran ser parte de la “segunda América”. Lo único que piden es un proceso de legalización para normalizar su estancia en Estados Unidos, para que sus hijos puedan estudiar en las universidades estatales, para que ellos puedan trabajar en condiciones justas, para poder conseguir una licencia de conducir y tener derecho a seguro médico.

Pero en lugar de poder legalizar su situación migratoria o de tener acceso a una nueva amnistía, estos inmigrantes han sido enfrentados con redadas. Durante el mes de junio al menos 492 indocumentados fueron detenidos en redadas realizadas en los condados californianos de Riverside y San Bernardino, muy lejos de la frontera entre México y Estados Unidos. Las redadas en lugares públicos fueron hechas por un grupo especializado de agentes de la patrulla fronteriza de la estación de Temecula.

Con o sin autorización oficial, el efecto de las brutales redadas fue devastador. En el sur de California hubo escuelas, lugares de trabajo, gasolineras y centros comerciales vacíos por el miedo a ser detenido y deportado. Además de separar familias y crear terror entre la comunidad inmigrante, las redadas no sirven para nada. ¿De qué sirve detener 492 indocumentados durante tres semanas cuando cada día mil inmigrantes de México cruzan ilegalmente a Estados Unidos? Sin duda, se necesita otro tipo de medidas para controlar la frontera. Las redadas son solo una reacción absurda y abusiva ante un problema que rebasa a cualquier agencia gubernamental.

Los inmigrantes indocumentados seguirán viniendo a Estados Unidos mientras ganen en una hora lo mismo que ganan durante uno o dos días en sus países de origen. Es una cuestión económica de oferta y demanda. Nada más. Pero esto no lo entendieron 50 congresis-tas que le enviaron una carta al subsecretario del Departamento de Seguridad Interna, Asa Hutchinson, aplaudiendo las incomprensibles acciones de los agentes de Temecula. Es más, esos congresistas, liderados por Tom Tancredo, piden que ese tipo de redadas se extienda por todo el país. Y alguien estaba escuchando.

Por primera vez en la historia, el miércoles 14 de julio, agentes de la patrulla fronteriza realizaron una redada en el mismo aeropuerto de Los Angeles. Nunca se había realizado una operación así tan lejos de la frontera. Sesenta y cuatro indocumentados fueron detenidos. ¿Y qué se ganó? Casi nada; solo crear más miedo.

No, la solución no son más redadas. La solución es un proceso de legalización de los más de ocho millones de indocumentados, aunado a un acuerdo migratorio con México –para que haya un flujo más ordenado, y sin muertes, de inmigrantes hacia el norte- y a un gigantesco programa de inversión y comercio para crear empleos y aumentar los salarios en América Latina (de forma tal que los latinoamericanos no vean a Estados Unidos como su única opción para sobrevivir económicamente).

Sí, efectivamente, hay “tres Américas” en Estados Unidos: la “primera América” es la de los que tienen todo y les sobra; la “segunda América” es la de los que no tienen seguro médico, la de los desempleados o que tienen trabajos mal pagados, la de los que tienen que escoger cada semana qué cuentas pagar y cuales no, la de los que no pueden pagar la universidad de sus hijos; la “tercera América” es la invisible, la muda, la silenciosa y la que vive a la sombra de las otras dos.

No, nadie habla de la “tercera América”. ¿Por qué? Porque la “tercera América” no vota en las elecciones presidenciales del dos de noviembre.

México/EE.UU: protección laboral

México y Estados Unidos firmaron el pasado miércoles una declaración para mejorar el cumplimiento de leyes y regulaciones que protegen a los trabajadores mexicanos residentes en territorio estadounidense. Este no se trata de ningún acuerdo migratorio, ni de legalizar a los indocumentados mexicanos en EE.UU., sino de cumplir las leyes laborales que ya existen en este país e informar a la gente que tiene ciertas protecciones.

Sin embargo, tanto la Secretaría de Trabajo estadounidense, Elaine Chao, como el ministro de Relaciones Exteriores mexicano, Luis Ernesto Derbez, calificaron este acuerdo como “histórico”. “Estos son acuerdos históricos para proteger a los trabajadores mexicanos”, dijo la secretaria de Trabajo estadounidense.

La funcionaria subrayó en la ceremonia de la firma que esta declaración es un reflejo de que la administración del presidente George W. Bush “está comprometida a asegurar que los trabajadores mexicanos trabajen bajo condiciones de seguridad y sean compensados de manera plena y justa”.

Por su parte, el ministro de Relaciones Exteriores, Luis Ernesto Derbez enfatizó que los derechos laborales de los mexicanos en Estados Unidos eran un capítulo importante en la agenda social de las relaciones bilaterales. “Con la aplicación de estos acuerdos, los gobiernos de México y Estados Unidos harán prevalecer los derechos laborales y las normas de seguridad e higiene en el trabajo como principios fundamentales de los sistemas de justicia e igualdad”, señaló el ministro.

Con la aplicación de estos acuerdos, los gobiernos de México y Estados Unidos harán prevalecer los derechos laborales y las normas de seguridad e higiene en el trabajo como principios fundamentales de los sistemas de justicia e igualdad. Derbez destacó que por intermedio de los 45 consulados de México en EE.UU. se hará la difusión de los derechos laborales a todos los trabajadores mexicanos. Se calcula que viven más de 20 millones de personas de origen mexicano en EE.UU., de las cuales cerca de cinco millones son indocumentados.

“La búsqueda de una solución para ordenar y dar legalidad a los flujos de trabajadores mexicanos que requiere la economía estadounidense, constituye el principal reto que enfrentamos en este capítulo”, afirmó el jefe de la diplomacia mexicana.

Pese a la firma de estos compromisos, el gobierno no ha logrado durante la administración Bush ningún tipo de acuerdo migratorio, a pesar de que el mandatario estadounidense prometió antes de llegar a la Casa Blanca que buscaría una solución para los miles de indocumentados mexicanos que viven en este país.

Pese a todo, durante esta visita, Derbez indicó que la inmigración sigue siendo una de las prioridades de México, sea cual sea el resultado de las siguientes elecciones presidenciales en EE.UU., el próximo 2 de noviembre, donde Bush se juega su reelección frente al candidato demócrata John Kerry.

Nuevo programa de la Universidad de California

Los estudiantes que cumplan los requisitos mínimos de admisión para ingresar en la Universidad de California (UC), pero que no fueron aceptados este año tienen una nueva opción. Se trata de la llamada Oferta de Transferencia Garantizada o Guaranteed Transfer Offer (GTO). En pocas palabras, es una oferta de admisión diferida que permite a los alumnos completar sus dos primeros años en un colegio comunitario para después transferirse a un recinto específico de la UC.

Mientras que los recortes estatales al presupuesto de la UC no nos permitieron ofrecerles un lugar a todos los alumnos de primer año que llenan los requisitos mínimos de admisión y que solicitaron ingreso para el otoño de 2004, queremos que tengas la oportunidad de ingresar.

Aceptar una oferta de transferencia garantizada significa que tendrás una plaza garantizada en un recinto específico de la UC cuando estés listo para transferirte.

Como parte del acuerdo, asistirás a un colegio comunitario de California para completar tus asignaturas de educación general (los dos primeros años de universidad). También te comprometes a terminar un plan académico específico que te proveerá tu recinto de la UC y a obtener un promedio académico que iguala o excede los requisitos de admisión del plantel.

Te ayudaremos a trazar una clara ruta que te lleve del colegio comunitario a la UC. La universidad proveerá servicios de consejería para todos los participantes en el programa. Se te dará un contrato académico por escrito que detalla los cursos que deberás tomar y las calificaciones que deberás obtener en el colegio comunitario para lograr transferirte a la UC.

También te alentamos a que aproveches los servicios de consejería académica de tu colegio comunitario. Nos mantendremos en contacto contigo. Los consejeros de la UC te conectarán a una red en la internet que te permitirá comunicarte con ellos fácilmente. Este sitio de internet te permitirá mantenerte al tanto de tu progreso académico, chequear cualquier cosa con tu recinto de la UC y pedir consejos a profesionales que están ahí para servirte.

Tendrás tiempo de tomar los cursos que necesites. Estamos conscientes de que algunos estudiantes, más que otros, necesitan tomar una mayor cantidad de cursos. Por eso tendrás hasta cuatro años para completar tu contrato académico. Los consejeros de la UC te ayudarán a preparar un programa de estudios que te prepare para transferirte a la UC

Yolo County health disparity reviewed

Overall, Yolo County's health disparity is minimal when compared to the State's, but there are still some issues that need to be addressed, according to the results of a health disparity forum sponsored by the Woodland League of Women Voters and Yolo County Health Department.

Efforts to decrease the stigma related to mental health issues and increase access to services was one of the priorities identified by attending stakeholders. An increase in services for women in correction facilities and screening of youth in the juvenile justice system for mental health, depression and substance abuse, were also highlighted.

"The goal of the forum was to begin the discussion among stakeholders regarding the state of health disparities in Yolo County," said Cheryl Boney, Deputy Director of Public Health Programs for the Yolo County Health Department. "There is a need to link service providers, educate them about resources and train outreach workers on practical aspects and interventions they can use to assist families."

The state budget and current legislative efforts will affect the ability of the County to address these issues. As such, the forum began with a state budget and legislative update. Assemblywoman Lois Wolk told stakeholders the Governor's budget had both "bad and good news" for counties.

"The good news is that the state has received better than expected receipts from a previously enacted tax shelter amnesty program, to the tune of about $1.3 billion and another roughly $1.3 billion related to an increase in the administration's forecast of tax collections in 2003-04 and 2004-05 combined," Wolk said.

The budget shortfall of roughly $17 million, however, still hangs over legislators' heads and the final impact on counties is yet to be seen.

Wolk discussed legislation that will affect the future of health disparities including:

~ AB 2179 would require the State Department of Health Services to take action within 90 days (current requirement is 180 days) of receiving a MediCal enrollment application from a physician who serves in a medically underserved area.

~ AB 2324 would require the collection of data on race, ethnicity and primary language of participants in public services and to convene a task force to eliminate determinants of racial and ethnic health disparities.

~ AB 1963 would require better health outcomes for rural and underserved communities, especially agricultural workers, through the "promotores de salud" and community health workers.

~ AB 2281 would preserve and enhance rural health in California through the Rural Health Policy Council.

Also presented at the forum was the latest 5-year MCAH Needs Assessment for the Yolo County Maternal, Child and Adolescent Health program. Nutrition and fitness and substance abuse prevention were selected as the two major issues to be addressed in Yolo County from 2005-2010.

For more details about the forum, check out the county's website at: <http://www.yolocounty.org/org/health/bulletins/DisparitiesForum.asp> or call Cheryl Boney, 666-8645.

Durante el tiempo que estés en el colegio comunitario y después que te transfieras a la UC, habrá opciones de ayuda financiera que puedes aprovechar para concentrar tu tiempo y esfuerzos en completar el contrato académico y terminar los estudios en la universidad. Además, la propues-

Mientras que se espera la aprobación del presupuesto, la UC te mantendrá informado de los beneficios financieros a los que tienes derecho.

Los estudiantes que hayan recibido una Oferta de Transferencia Garantizada podrán entrar a un sitio de la internet donde
