Round four for Anderson Place

By ELLIOT LANDES
Staff writer

After a fourth frustrating city council meeting on his Anderson Place project, Jan Brzeski said he and his sister had hoped the city would favor the project, the first under the new Downtown Master Plan.

“Please understand,” said Brzeski, “each time you send us away for another two weeks, it costs thousands of dollars. We are beginning to feel like a punching bag in this process.

“We are trying to do something special here, to create a project that will be something you will really love, in an area that we have loved since we grew up here. We just want to send the project through. We are feeling pretty beat up.

“We are asking you, basically begging you, not to put any more financial burdens on this project. We are trying to do what we thought the city wanted.”

City staff brought two small development projects back to the April 17 city council meeting for partial hearing, both after repeated council meetings. Both Dave Snow’s Mary Rose Gardens and the Brzeski’s Anderson Place were ready for Plan Development (PD) permit approval, but staff did not offer the final Development Agreements (DA) because neither agreement was ready.

Council members questioned the value of approving only the PD for each project. The PD allows the development to be designed without following all the normal per-house zoning requirements. The DA, which would be approved at a future meeting, constitutes the actual permission for a particular project to proceed.

Community Development Director Dan Sokolow explained that approving part now will

◆ Partipation strong in new city wide recycling effort

By ELLIOT LANDES
Staff writer

Marissa Juhler of Waste Management reported on recycling in Winters at the April 17 city council meeting.

“I come bearing lots of good news,” said Juhler. Winters’ diversion rate, which is the percentage of recyclables, has increased significantly with the change on Jan. 1, 2007, to single stream recycling. Last March the rate was 30.6 percent, and for this March the percentage was 51.5 percent, above the mandated goal of 50 percent.

“We are happy to say there has not been a single load rejected from the recycling plant.” According to Juhler, the switch to single stream typically results in higher rates of contamination, referring to non-recyclables being included in loads of recycled trash. The recycling plant will reject loads with high contamination, and it is a good sign the plant has rejected no loads from Winters.

Juhler said she was happy to see the bulky goods collection is taking place at a higher than expected rate.

“What would be a phenomenal number to hit?” asked council member Mike Martin about the diversion rate.

“The 51 percent Winters has hit is phenomenal, this early in the program,” answered Juhler. “If we are really aggressive, we can

Changes proposed for middle school math program

By GARY BEALL
Express correspondent

The math program at Winters Middle School (WMS) is a mess, but it should be greatly improved next year if school district trustees accept changes being proposed by the school’s staff.

“It’s been sort of a mixed up program,” WMS principal Suzanne Martin told school district trustees meeting on April 19. “Courses have been text driven instead of standards driven.”

And the textbook, a 7th grade pre-algebra text, is a lousy text, according to Martin. She added that there also has been significant turnover in the math department and misunderstanding of the curriculum.

The result has been confusion among parents and students about what is being covered. Most 6th graders are not being taught benchmarks that they are being tested on in statewide testing. District superintendent Dale Mitchell explained that the problem originated when the WMS math program was redesigned a few years ago. One component of the redesign was a two-year algebra class, using the same text, that was supposed to teach both 6th grade and 7th grade standards. Mitchell said the design was good on paper, but that implementation was a challenge. The text was driving instruction and covering mostly 7th grade standards at the expense of 6th grade standards.

Martin said that she and her staff have been discussing problems with the math program for four

HERE, THERE & EVERYWHERE

CENTURY CLUB: We congratulate Andrew G. “Andy” Anderson on joining the Century Club earlier this month. He reached his 100th birthday anniversary, still walking around town and driving his car.

Anderson retired from Bank of America in 1972 after 45 years of service. He served as president of the Winters Chamber of Commerce in 1948 and 1964, and was named Winters Citizen of the Year in 1958. He was a charter member of the Winters Rotary Club.

Keep adding those candles.

OBITUARIES

Lorraine Wellonen

Lorraine Dirkje Wellonen passed away on April 17, 2007 in Davis after a long battle with cancer. Born on Feb. 25, 1924 in Sandy City, Utah, she was 73 years old. Formerly of Thousand Oaks, she moved to Winters in 1975.

Family members say the most important things in her life were family and church. She was an avid flower and vegetable gardener, and a master seamstress. They say she “walked through life leaving a wide wake of love and affection as she passed; all who crossed her path were blessed by that love.”

She is survived by her spouse of 66 years, Reino; children and their spouses, Jack and Georgian Wellonen of Springfield, Missouri, and Carl Wellonen of Winters; grandchildren, Emily, Jason, Cher and Stephanie; seven great-grandchildren; siblings, Carl Vreeken of Las Vegas, Nevada, Le Grand Vreeken of Las Vegas, Nevada, and Zina Cheesman of Utah; daughter-in-law, Rosemary Wellonen Morrill of California.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Carl and Pearl Vreeken, son Dennis, brother John Vreeken and sister Pearl Vreeken.

Services took place on April 24, 2007 at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Winters.

Hoyle Humphrey

Hoyle Truman Humphrey, 79, of Sonora passed away at Sonora Hospital on April 19, 2007. He was born on Oct. 23, 1927 in New Blaine, Arkansas. He enlisted in the Army in 1945, where he spent time in Japan after the atomic bombings, doing repair and clean-up. He was proud of his service in the Army, say family members. He worked as a PG&E lineman foreman for more than 40 years and was a member of the IBEW.

Family members say he had a green thumb and could get just about anything to grow. He created a showplace flower garden while living in Magalia. He loved nature and could sit for hours soaking up all the beauty and the sounds of silence. He also enjoyed fishing, especially in his retirement. Most of all, he loved his family, who describe him as “a caretaker through and through.”

He is survived by his wife, Pat, who he married in 1961; children, Karen Sellers, Sheila White, Michael Humphrey, and Darla Presba and her stepchildren, Eleanor Day, Judy Raridan and Margaret Egger; grandchildren, Tobie, Kelly and Cholena Humphrey, Landon and Erin Sellers, Caitlin Egger, Yvonne Payne, Lisa, Barb and Stacy Houck; siblings, Art Humphrey and Marge Cameron; ex-wife, Bobbie Fisher; several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Kate and Arnold Humphrey, brothers, Haskell, Richard and Hofferd Humphrey; grandson, Matthew Sellers, and stepson Ronald Knutson.

Graveside services were held on Wednesday, April 25, at the Winters Cemetery.

get to 60, 65 percent, which would be great, especially in the first year.” Getting to 70 or 75 percent will require other types of recycling, like composting, and can happen later, according to Juhler.

“There is need for continuing education,” said Juhler. “There are still people that don’t know they can put in juice boxes, shampoo bottles, paper towel rolls and junk mail.”

“Just a rinse,” said Juhler to a question about cleaning off recycled cans and bottles.

Council member Cecilia Aguiar-Curry asked about a problem of late pickup of recyclables.

“I’m very well aware of that problem,” said Juhler. “The truck fills up and must fit a run into Sacramento to unload.” Waste Management is looking at adding a driver to solve the problem, which is caused by the good news of increased participation in recycling.

Council member Tom Stone asked about encouraging paper bags for supermarket shoppers. Juhler agreed that paper is much more environmentally friendly, and paper bags are more costly for markets to offer. She didn’t have a good answer to how to encourage the change, other than legislation.

“Unfortunately, plastic is cheaper, said Juhler.”

In response to a question from council member Harold Anderson, Juhler said Waste Management cannot recycle plastic bags because the material is processed on conveyor belts, and the bags wrap up on the rollers and shut down the conveyors. She said some stores have the ability to compact and bale the bags for recycling. She said that other than bags, all types of plastics, which are numbered by type one through seven, are accepted for recycling.

Juhler creates programs for recycling education in the schools, and announced that many Winters students are participating in an Earth Day poster contest. Winners will receive prizes including pencils made of recycled money, reusable lunch bags and gift cards for pizza.

Juhler will have a recycling booth at the upcoming Youth Day celebration.

BECAUSE I SAY SO

DON'T THINK ABOUT THIS too hard or you won't get it. It's like staring into one of those 3-D magic eye drawings. If you strain too hard to see the hidden picture, you won't be able to see it at all. You have to just trust the process. Take a deep breath, relax, and read this column from that place in your brain that sees what your eyes can't, and it'll all come into focus...

So, I'm watching news coverage of the Virginia Tech massacre, and only in bits and pieces because the tragedy simply overwhelms me. And I start thinking back on all the unimaginable horrors that have taken place during the Bush Administration — the Sept. 11 attack on the Twin Towers, and the crash of American Airlines flight 587 in New York two months later; the explosion of the space shuttle Columbia and loss of its entire flight crew; Hurricane Katrina and the ruination of New Orleans. And now, the massacre at Virginia Tech. Even the whole Anna Nicole Smith saga. Bubble-headed, drug-addled bimbo or not, her life and her death in particular are just unnecessarily sad.

Unlike the disastrous Iraq War (and the loss of life and international goodwill, and crushing national debt it caused), the Valerie Plame CIA leak, the questionable firing of federal attorneys, eroding civil rights, executive branch corruption and cronyism, and etc., etc., etc., those previously mentioned horrors weren't actually Dubya & Co.'s fault. But it makes one pause to wonder why so many horrific events have occurred on Dubya's watch. Although I have no affection for Uncurious George, I must admit, he's had to face new and improved problems unparalleled by those of any president before him.

It's a bit unfair, really. Why is the president who is arguably the least prepared of them all to deal with disaster continually beset with calamities? Why is the universe hurling such disproportionate catastrophe on the weakest link? He's clearly not the brightest crayon in the presidential box, but he didn't deserve such a heaping helping of grief on his plate. So... Why?

And all of a sudden, I knew. Bush and Cheney are the lovebirds. As any Hitchcock fan knows, in his classic horror film, "The Birds," the quiet little town of Bodega Bay was suddenly besieged by crazed seagulls and crows, swooping down and pecking people, sometimes to death. There was nowhere to run, nowhere to hide, the birds came from everywhere, furiously fluttering and flapping, down chimneys, through holes in rooftops, aiming right for your eye sockets. But why.

Hitchcock never provides an answer, only a clue: The mayhem starts when socialite Melanie Daniels (Tippi Hedren) brings two caged lovebirds into town. Forget the twists and turns, and Daniels' manipulative motivations and the local female jealousy over the affections of beefcake Mitch Brenner (Rod Taylor), the feathered frenzy never relents until Daniels and Brenner decide to take the lovebirds and leave Bodega Bay.

They open the front door, and thousands of birds blanket the lawn and trees, watching. Waiting. With birdcage in hand and Brenner's terrified niece Kathy clinging for dear life, the traumatized trio steps gingerly through an ominous sea of birds, gets into the car and drives away, the birds parting like waters. But not one attacks. Hitchcock never explains why, never reveals the motivation.

Why were the birds so mad? We don't know. We'll never know. Our understanding of their wrath is irrelevant. All we need to grasp is that A) Bad things happened when the lovebirds came to town and B) It stopped when they left. Only The Birds will ever know the real reason. It isn't something mere humans can fathom. We need only pay attention.

And there you have it. Our country is one big, huge Bodega Bay. As soon as lovebirds Bush and Cheney arrived, one inconceivable misfortune after another beset our "town." There's carnage wherever you turn. And it won't end until everything is made right again. It's not the lovebirds' fault. They can't be blamed. But for whatever cosmic reasons you and I can't understand, their presence here is making the universe very cranky. And they must go.

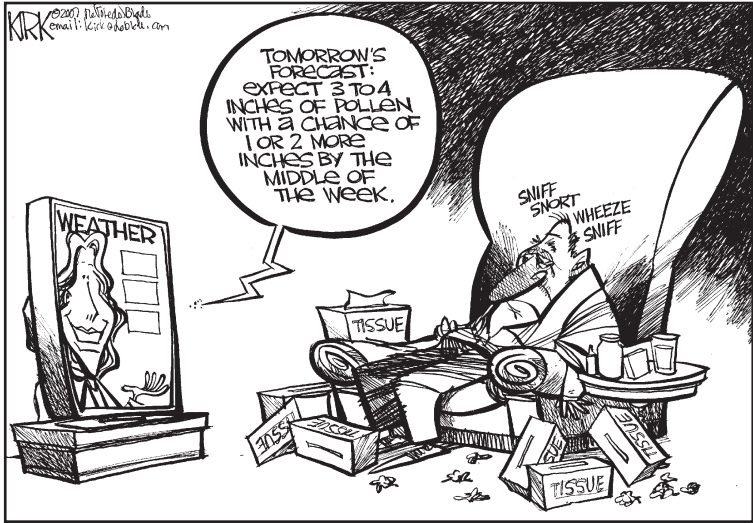

If Bush and Cheney are the lovebirds, that means Karl Rove is Melanie Daniels. He brought them here. And although his gams in a tight skirt can't compare to Tippi Hedron's, the message from the universe is the same: Take your lovebirds and go back where you came from. Or else.

ON A LOCAL NOTE: I attended the barrel tasting on Saturday at the new Berryessa Gap Vineyards tasting room (formerly Tufts Packing Shed) on Grant Avenue, and not only did they produce their best wines yet (the Syrah is outstanding), the new facility is beautiful. Simple, clean and classy, and what a jewel for the Winters community. Hats off to all involved. May this be the first of many top-notch projects in which our town can take pride.

And one more thing: Anyone else notice the painting of Karen Ogando at Arte Junction? It was in the front window last week. It shows her sitting on a couch, looking pensive, a glass of wine in her hand. But what is she thinking? About red tape at City Hall, maybe? Which planning commissioners she'd like to strangle? Where to locate the sushi bar in her new commercial project? (I hope it's the last one.)

OK, maybe it isn't really Karen Ogando. But it should be.

And... Yay, it's Youth Day! Let's all get along!

It was a great ride for Jared

Dear Editor,

On Saturday, April 21, the "Riding for Jared" motorcycle run fund-raiser was held. It was a great success. Through our efforts we will be able to make a large donation to the Jared Davis Memorial Scholarship Fund.

First of all, I would like to take this time to thank everyone that came out for the event and all the participants in the run, without you this could have never been successful. Special thanks to Charley Wallace and the Express staff for the publicity in our local paper.

I owe much gratitude to many families and friends of mine who came and helped with the event. Hats off to: the Krantz family, the Geerts family, the Davis family, Debbie and Wayne Holland, Jenny Ramos, Lisa and Tyler Floyd, and Dawn from Creekside Bar. I also really appreciate the support from my riding coach Cajun Charlie, and my mentors Rocky and Marshall from Vacaville Harley-Davidson

I would also like to recognize the support of my grandparents, John and Darlene Benson, and Walt and Sally Neil. Thanks also to mom and dad for keeping me organized. I couldn't have done it without all of you.

To sum things up, I feel that the event was a great success and I know in my heart that whenever I get on a bike and ride I'll be "Riding for Jared."

PTA needs volunteer support

Dear Editor,

The Winters Combined PTA was originally established on Jan.12, 1982. As we enter into our 26th year, we are proudly searching for new board members. Several volunteers are needed to make the PTA run smoothly. Some of the positions being sought include: Book Fair coordinator for Waggoner Elementary School and Shirley Rominger Intermediate School (SRIS), Family Science Night and Movie Night coordinators as well as many other positions. If you are not the type to help coordinate events, then perhaps you can serve as one of our many needed volunteers?

The PTA has already been working on the event calendar for the following school year. Please consider attending our last meeting on May 9 to get an idea of what we are about and how you can help. The meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. in the staff room at SRIS. Childcare will be provided.

Through our annual fund-raiser the PTA was able to fund and support such events as: Harvest Festival, Family Science Night, Spelling Bee, Farm & Pioneer Day, Star Party

Software technology, grade level money, teacher gift cards and so much more. Thank you to everyone who has volunteered to make this last year such a great success. Keep an eye out for the PTA fundraiser coming in October 2007.

We ask that you please continue to clip the box tops off the General Mills products this summer and send them to the school this fall. Winters Combined PTA earns ten cents for each one we collect!

The PTA would like to thank everyone who has signed up to be a member of the eScrip program. Through this program the PTA has earned approximately $600. If you have not yet signed up or need to renew your cards please go to www.escrip.com, refer to group # 139431312.

The current board members who will be returning next year include: Brandy Wingard, president, Andrea McKenna, secretary, Jenyse Lichwa, treasurer, Liz Layne, VP of Membership, and Laura Ray, VP of Sockhop. If you would like to contact the PTA please email us at: winterspta@netscape.net

A QUICK OPINION

OLD PEOPLE. A few months ago I received an invitation to attend the 50th reunion of Kappa Chi fraternity in San Luis Obispo. In the back of my mind, I knew the reunion was coming, and was looking forward to it. They cancelled Poly Royal 17 years ago after a riot and the purpose for Poly Royal, showing off the campus, seemed to have been lost.

After a break of several years the powers that be invented Open House. Open House is the same event as Poly Royal, same time of year, same people, just a different name. I venture down to Cal Poly about every five years or so. My best man, Randy Fiser, lives in Grover "City" Beach, just down Highway 101 from San Luis Obispo. They changed the name to Grover Beach because it sounded better for tourism than Grover City. Winters sounds pretty good to me, but if you have a better name, tell the tourism committee.

I left Cal Poly in 1974, and there have been a lot of changes to the college and downtown. For a city with 40,000 people, San Luis Obispo must have the highest sales tax in the country. Their downtown is booming. Walking around I didn't see one empty space for rent, and there is lots of construction going on. Old buildings have been repaired, and plenty of new buildings have filled in empty lots and dilapidated properties. If someone from Davis would happen to see what a real college town looks like, they'd pack their bags and move in a heartbeat.

The fraternity house looks a lot like the house in Animal House, the movie. Large corner lot with a six bedroom, two story house on it. The bar is upstairs and I don't think they have washed the floor since I left. My permanent tenant always smiles when she walks through the door. She says it always smells the same, and that brings a smile to my face. It doesn't smell flowery. More like stale beer and a urinal. It was home for over three years.

I've met the founder of the fraternity, Don Budai before. He, along with a few of his friends, wanted a place to play music and relax. The idea of a fraternity was born in 1957 and they moved into the house on the corner of Chorro and Upham. While I was there, the landlord, Mr. Porter, died and Mrs. Porter sold us the house. She wanted $28,000, but we thought we were the brightest bulbs in town, so we offered her $24,000. She didn't know if that was a good offer, so she went to a real estate friend of hers. We paid her $40,000 and were lucky she didn't take a higher offer.

To buy the house an alumni association was formed, and they are the ones who threw the party last weekend. We own the house, use the rent from current students to pay the taxes, insurance and upkeep. It is the upkeep that is a problem. It is an old house and needs help or a bulldozer.

After a wine tasting event on Friday night, there was an alumni meeting on Saturday morning, followed by tours of the campus and happy hour and a dinner, prepared by the alumni, at the Veterans Hall. There were over 200 people sitting down to tri-tip, pork, salad, beans, garlic bread, and more beans. By the time they finished passing the hat, selling sweatshirts, beer glasses, and collecting alumni dues, there was over $14,000 in the bank. Not a bad weekend at the office.

There was a photographer and photo opportunities. When they asked all of the past presidents to line up, by year of service, I edged over to Budai and Larry Courtland, founding members. I wasn't expecting to be standing next to them. A whole generation was missing. Mario Cano, a pledge brother and member of my wedding party was standing next to me. We looked down the row of about 25 young people. "How old do you feel?" Mario asked. "Pretty old," I told him. Good company, but I did realize that it has been a while since I was in college.

When I walked into the house there were name tags to be applied. When I'd introduce myself, "Oh, you're that Wallace," was the reply by more than a couple of people. Pledges have to memorize the past presidents. I memorized 13, these guys have to memorize 50.

There were only a half-dozen or so close friends who showed up, and we stayed up telling lies about each other. My permanent tenant was smiling and listening. Trouble was, she was there for some of the stories and knows what really happened. I thought we all looked good, Sherri thought we all looked old next to the current crop of fraternity brothers.

For those who don't like reunions, you're missing an opportunity to renew friendships and remember simpler times. I was a little disappointed that more of my generation didn't show up, maybe they'll make it to the 60th reunion. I plan on being there.

See you at Youth Day.

Horse help desperately needed

Dear Editor,

The Winters Youth Day Parade is in desperate need of two volunteers to be equestrian parade marshals on Saturday, April 28.

The job consists of handing out numbers to the 20 horse entries and after they are pre-judged, lining them up numerically along Haven Street and feeding them into the parade as the numbers come up.

We have entrants from all over California coming in for our parade, so this is a very important job. This would be a great experience for a 4-H or FFA student or adult.

To volunteer please call Mike Sebastian at 795-2091.

Dam debris can be cleared

Dear Editor,

A letter from the Department of Fish and Game to the city appeared in last week's paper. The letter said the Department in general supported the removal of in-stream structures like Winters' old percolation dam when they might impede fish passage. The Department's letter specifically identified debris (sticks and branches) lodging against the dam as a potential fish passage problem at Little Rock.

I met with the Department's staff at the dam to discuss fish passage, and suggested a reasonable solution would be for local volunteers to take on the job of keeping the dam clear of debris. This is certainly a task a local stewardship committee could do. A pitchfork and an hour's worth of work was all it took for me to clear the debris this spring. I would personally commit to keeping fish passage clear in the future, especially during the critical periods for fish passage.

Using a local stewardship committee and volunteer labor to solve the problem seems like a common sense alternative to spending $636,000 to take out the dam and in the process risk ruining swimming and fishing at Little Rock.

Upset about the way we live

Dear Editor,

It's true, I am angry, and sad at the same time, about the way we live in this country. As the world's largest consumer of all known raw and manufactured materials, some with very useful purposes and others that are not, I think we act as there is an endless supply of resources to fuel our wants more so than our needs, not realizing the impacts we have on our nation and the rest of the world.

I think life in the United States is like this because we are addicted to things we don't even know we're addicted to when we're born here in this country. As we are raised in it, we get caught up in what our society and the spin doctors tell us we need to do as we grow older. Then, without even realizing it, we do things to perpetuate these addictions and seemingly pass them on as our way of life. And as we try to survive with the addictions we're born into, how often do we take the time to stop and think for ourselves if what we're doing is really the right thing, and then act to change for the better, free from those addictions?

The part that makes me so angry is that I think large government and business systems are so corrupted with power and money that they will do anything to keep the masses addicted and uninformed so we remain easily controlled human doings instead of free spirited human beings. It is the free thinking and acting human being that threatens their power and money being taken away, so they control information and the purse strings whenever and however they can to keep the public suppressed. However, it is that free human being that is in touch with his/her surrounding world and environment who knows what actions to take to live in it without permanently damaging it.

The part that makes me so sad is that there are very few true modern day human beings acting as pioneers, perhaps even revolutionaries, willing to stick it in the face of these government and business systems, demanding a change for the better and then not backing off until that change happens. Without those stalwart individuals leading by example and doing the right things without the thought of monetary profit or acceptable rate of return, human doings will remain addicted and subservient, not having the chance to evolve into true human beings and keep our future from becoming quite bleak and depressing.

The only part that gives me hope is that in the United States, you do have many freedoms not found in other parts of the world such as freedom of speech, freedom to choice, freedom of change, and the freedom to act. I believe we are at a point in world history where we have many important choices to make on how to change ourselves and country for the better, however remember that talk is cheap, and actions speak louder than words.

America was better during World War II

Dear Editor,
Both liberals and conservatives seem to be unable to grasp the fact that American government was deliberately organized to prevent decisions from being made. They also ignore the fact that elected officials are beholden to interest groups. As a result, nothing important can be done in a timely fashion until the need is overwhelmingly obvious. And unless the need persists, the public is quick to forget any threat to their well being.

Public opinion polls reflect this fact and they themselves constitute a danger to the country. Government by poll is a slippery slope since the public's position often owes nothing to logic and polls usually hold policy hostage to shallowly rooted opinions.

Democracy is the source of our weaknesses and our strengths. A democracy must be slave to lightly considered public opinion, which is why the country couldn't get over Middle East isolationism until 9/11. A democracy is fatally attracted to romantic foreign policies over realistic ones.

If the liberals and the media would express a consensus in the direction of responsibility rather than self-gratification, a lot of our social, political and economic problems would begin to work themselves out. But this argument assumes that the tone of national life is created independently of our economics and demographics. An example is the fact that we as a nation did in fact have better cultural values at the outset of World War II; surely part of the reason is that 12 years of Depression will go a long way toward stamping out self-indulgent individualism.

This country has suffered no economic crisis so devastating as that which occurred in 1929. Also, some of the features of American culture that alarm conservatives, such as the erosion of family values, recreation drug use and high divorce rates, have been transmitted downward from the celebrity elite to the average American rather than vice versa, thanks to the saturation of the news media of the novel and rather bizarre lifestyles of the celebrities.

It would be more satisfying to find an institutional way of uniting the country than to hope, vaguely, for different values to take root. The concept of "diversity" in American society offers nothing but the fragmentation of values amongst diverse groups. It is a vapid feel-good concept.

The main institutions to establish a workable consensus of values are public schools (including universities) and the military. Right now, American society doesn't have a mechanism for bringing everyone together, which would give empathy and a sense of common purpose a chance to grow, and it doesn't provide a large part of the country with the feeling of true opportunity that is the well-spring of commitment to national (not interest-group) concerns.

If everybody were guaranteed a decent education, treated equally, and if school, the military and national service became mass shared experiences rather than sub-cultural ones, then we'd be much closer than we are now to the attractive side of a national culture such as existed during the years of World War II. It brought out the best in the country back then.

Lake Berryessa's Pope Creek Bridge Waterway Closed for Major Holidays

The Bureau of Reclamation announces that beginning Memorial Day weekend the Pope Creek Bridge waterway, located at Lake Berryessa, will be closed to all motorized and non-motorized watercraft. This closure will occur again for the July 4th holiday weekend and Labor Day holiday weekend. Re-opening of the area to watercraft will be reinstated after each holiday weekend.

Reclamation and the Napa County Sheriffs Office are working together to prevent unsafe conditions which result from thousands of visitors congregating on holiday weekends at the Pope Creek Bridge water area. Overcrowding on boats, near-drownings, disorderly conduct, offensive behavior, underage drinking, and assaults have occurred. Major injuries and several deaths have resulted from people jumping off the high rocks and Pope Creek Bridge. It is illegal to jump off the bridge and violators will be cited. There are signs posted warning visitors not to jump off the bridge or rocks. The closed area will be designated by buoys. The gates at Pope Creek parking lot will be closed and locked at 10 p.m. The closure will assist Reclamation and the Napa County Sheriffs Office in ensuring a safe and secure area on holiday weekends.

This closure is effective:

Memorial Day Weekend from 1 p.m. on Thursday, May 24, 2007, to 3 p.m. on Tuesday, May 29, 2007

Independence Day Week from 1 p.m. on Thursday, June 28, 2007, to 3 p.m. on Tuesday, July 10, 2007

Labor Day Weekend from 1 p.m. on Thursday, August 30, 2007, to 3 p.m. on Tuesday, September 4, 2007

Posthumous honors to be given to Rominger

The 13th annual city of Davis Environmental Recognition Awards will be presented at the May 1 Davis City Council meeting. This year's recipients include former Winters resident Charlie Rominger, who passed away last fall. The awards were created by the city's Natural Resources Commission in 1995 to honor and recognize the environmental accomplishments of individuals, businesses and nonprofit organizations working in and around the Davis area.

Rominger was nominated by Mitch Sears with supporting information from John McNerney. A fifth-generation farmer in Yolo County who employed sustainable farming practices, Rominger worked on preserving open space and supported local farmers. He served on the Yolo County Farm Bureau board of directors and won several awards for his holistic farm management and habitat restoration.

"The more we get business processes to mimic nature, the more benefits we find," Rominger once said. He preferred to manage his land "doing things in harmony rather than in conflict with nature."

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Davis will also be honored at the May 1 meeting.

Yolo veterans can receive diplomas

The Yolo County Office of Education is once again implementing Operation Recognition for veterans living in Yolo County. During the 1940's and again in the 50's, thousands of young men and women left high school and the comforts of home to serve in the United States Armed Forces. Their sacrifice ensured our freedom and helped build our country into a super power and helped shape the entire course of history throughout the world. After these wars, many veterans were not able to finish high school but led productive lives and contributed to our communities over their lifetimes.

Additionally, During WWII, thousands of Japanese American citizens were forced to leave their homes to be interned in relocation camps at various locations in the United States. Although these citizens were denied their freedom, they still considered themselves Americans and as such, fought to be included in the defense of our country. Consequently, many of these Japanese American citizens served in the U.S. Armed Forces and displayed great valor and courage.

During the Korean and Vietnam War, there were persons who did not receive a high school diploma because his or her education was interrupted due to his or her military service in that war. A high school diploma is and always has been a symbol of accomplishment. Because of the war, many of our veterans were not able to achieve this milestone.

The Yolo County Office of Education is once again honored and proud to be able to award an honorary high school diploma to WWII veterans, Japanese American internees, Korean War and Vietnam veterans who so willingly responded to their country's call with courage.

Veterans who resided in Yolo County during these wars and did not graduate from high school, are eligible to apply for an honorary high school diploma. Veterans may request an application to participate in "Operation Recognition" from Deanna Miller, 668-3766, miller@ycoe.org.

The application and verification of military eligibility or honorable discharge must be received at the Yolo County Office of Education no later than May 10. Diplomas may be awarded posthumously to the family of a veteran.

Del Toro, Torres plan to marry

SERGIO TORRES & ELIZABETH DEL TORO

Elizabeth Del Toro and Sergio Torres, both lifelong residents of Winters, plan to become husband and wife on Sept. 15, in a ceremony planned at St. James Catholic Church in Davis. A reception will follow at St. Anthony's Parish Hall in Winters.

Sergio proposed to Elizabeth on her 21st birthday, and asked for her hand in marriage a few days later. The couple met seven years ago on Youth Day, which is why they chose to announce their engagement this week.

Elizabeth is the daughter of Francisco and Guadalupe Del Toro of Winters. She has two brothers, Francisco and Eduardo, and a sister, Giselle. She is a 2003 graduate of Winters High School and a 2007 graduate of Maric College, where she studied interior design and architecture. She is a member of the Winters Hispanic Advisory Committee. She is employed at Cunningham Engineering, a civil engineering firm in Davis, and also works as a server on week-ends at the Putah Creek Cafe.

Sergio is the son of Silvia Torres of Winters and Sergio Torres of Los Angeles. He has a brother, Javier. He is a 1998 graduate of Winters High School, and a 2006 graduate of IBEW 180. He is a member of the Local 180 union. He is employed as an electrician-journeyman at Banister Electric.

City smoke detector, address codes changed

Effective May 4, a change in the city's Municipal Code will require installation of smoke detectors and visible address numbers at city residences upon issuance of a new building permit.

The Winters City Council, at its April 3 meeting, approved Ordinance No. 2007-01. The ordinance requires installation of smoke alarms in accordance with the California Code of Regulations, Title 24, Part 2, Volume 1, Sections 310.9.1.3, 310.9.1.4 and 310.9.1.5 whenever the city issues a building permit for Group R (residential) occupancy.

The ordinance will also require the installation of either four-inch high illuminated address numbers or six-inch high non-illuminated address numbers on the exterior of residences whenever the city issues a building permit.

The City Building and Code Enforcement Division will have a limited supply of both smoke alarms and address numbers for residents for whom this requirement would be financially burdensome.

months, have attended in-service training, and that a solution might be in hand. Martin and the math department are suggesting the following changes to the middle school math program:

- ~ 6th grade students will all take 6th grade math and no algebra,
- ~ 7th grade students will all take 7th grade math using the Prentice Hall pre-algebra text currently used by both 6th and 7th grades, and supplemental materials,
- ~ 8th grade students will either take a one-year Algebra I class using the Prentice Hall algebra text or they will take another 8th grade math class,
- ~ Intervention math classes at grades 6 and 7 will be created as the need arises,
- ~ Strategies to meet the needs of advanced and struggling students will be developed.

“I think we feel very comfortable with it,” Martin said about the proposal. Parent Michael Braun criticized the current program, saying it was difficult to get test scores and difficult to determine if or in what areas a student was failing.

“I have a lot of concerns with this program,” Braun said. “We’ve already missed the boat with the current 6th and 7th grade students. What are we going to do to catch them up?” he asked. Mitchell said that he would be following up with the WMS staff to address Braun’s concerns.

Trustee Robert Nickelson responded that he was concerned that he was district and board had “lost sight” of the math program at the middle school and that it needs to be fixed. However, he took issue with some of the proposed changes.

“I completely disagree with an all 6th grade math. We need at least two levels. I don’t believe in one size fits all. Better students need the opportunity to excel,” Nickelson commented.

Trustees Jay Shepherd and Mary Jo Rodolfa cautioned against having students jump ahead too fast at the expense of a good grounding in basics.

“We’ve always had a problem at the middle school of wanting to push ahead too quickly,” Shepherd said.

Dual Immersion

Parents also can look for possible expansion of the school district’s dual immersion program that currently offers instruction in both English and Spanish for students in grades K-5. The topic was pulled from the April 19 meeting agenda because it was not properly referenced on the agenda. The agenda called for discussion of entry and continuation criteria for the dual immersion program.

Mitchell told trustees that expansion of the program did not have to be a future agenda item unless a majority of the board wanted it to be. They did, and it is scheduled for the May 17 board meeting.

Audience members present to discuss expansion of the program were allowed to address the board. Two parents and one student told trustees that the program should be continued beyond the 5th grade to keep a student’s Spanish-speaking skills growing. Rominger Intermediate School teacher Dave Paratore said that the program needs a strong support system if it is to be continued.

Recognitions

Trustees recognized Wolfskill High School student Juan Vallejo for what principal Emilie Simmons called “a complete turnaround” in his attitude, behavior and attendance at school that has led to outstanding academic progress. They recognized Deloitte Services representative Ann Kaylor for the firm’s donations to the school.

Three arrested for rash of auto burglaries

Police from three different agencies tracked down a Winters man and two juveniles suspected of breaking into at least 15 cars in Vacaville in March. The burglarized vehicles were parked in north Vacaville and Browns Valley March 25-26, police said.

The trio are suspected of breaking windows and taking property from the vehicles. During one of the break-ins, a witness got the license plate number of a vehicle suspected to be involved.

On April 11, police from Vacaville and Dixon served a search warrant at a home near Winters and then arrested Winters resident Julio Avalos, 21, at an Owings Drive residence in Yolo Housing.

Winters police then helped detectives contact two other male suspects, both 15 years old, at two different homes within Winters city limits and arrested them. Both are Winters residents.

All three face auto burglary charges. Avalos was booked into the Solano County Jail. One juvenile was taken to juvenile hall. The other was cited and released to his parents.

make the process easier, because the DA discussion will be a full discussion on its own. Council member Tom Stone supported the approach if it will allow for shorter meetings. Mayor Woody Fridae expressed concern the items to be discussed in the DA may create conflicts with the PD approved earlier.

Asked what items were left to be determined for the Mary Rose Gardens project, City Manager John Donlevy said only “one and a half” items were left to be resolved. He offered to go through the draft DA in the council members’ agenda packet. Members balked at this, and voted to approve the PD as requested by the city staff, with Fridae abstaining.

“Do you see any issues that would prevent our reaching an agreement for the DA on this project?” asked council member Mike Martin about the Brzeski’s Anderson Place project.

“There are fiscal issues with this project,” said Sokolow. The challenges are greater because the 28 unit project has nine mixed use homes that incorporate office spaces, and the site is partially zoned for office use, along with a host of other complexities. Sokolow said the city was trying to make the project work fiscally for both the needs of the city and the applicant.

“We did some engineering at the last meeting,” said Martin. “Is that part of the problem?”

“I don’t know if I would call that engineering,” laughed council member Tom Stone.

Sokolow said the city engineer, who was not at the meeting, would be working with the applicant to come up with a plan for the Anderson intersection, because of council concerns at the previous meeting.

Council member Harold Anderson asked why the draft DA no longer called for tankless water heaters. Anderson said this was put in originally because the project would not meet the city goal of photovoltaic solar power for 50 percent of the units, because of the shape of the roofs.

Sokolow explained the project would use a long list of energy efficient techniques called “Energy Star”, which would bring the project to 15 percent higher efficiency than the California required standards known as “Title 24”.

“It’s one in a list of tools,” said Sokolow. He said giving the applicant flexibility on this issue was a way to make the project work financially.

“I understand that,” said Anderson, “but it is a tool we specifically asked for, and now it has disappeared from the DA.”

City Manager John Donlevy said the Title 24 standard is required, but working to the higher Energy Star standard was voluntary.

Martin said he liked this project and would like to not heap too much on the applicant, in hopes the project will go forward.

Mark Rutheiser, consultant for the developer, said the applicant would be willing to use the tankless water heaters.

In a separate issue, Fridae said the project should include crosswalks at Anderson.

“I think we’ll bring this entire project back,” said Donlevy, in response. “I thought we’d worked out some things, but clearly we aren’t ready to go, and I apologize to the applicant.”

Martin said he supports traffic controls at the site, but didn’t want the developer to have to pay for it.

“How much does that cost?” said Fridae. He said he only was asking for crosswalk striping, not bulb-outs and traffic calming devices, for students going from the project to the schools on Niemann and Anderson.

“I would like the staff to come back fully prepared,” said member Cecilia Aguiar-Curry. “I feel sorry for the developer, and this has been out there too long. We should get this done, with the engineer here.”

“I assure you we will do that,” said Donlevy. “In order to do that, is there anything else?” said Donlevy, alluding to the council members’ tendency to bring up new objections at each meeting.

“It’s reasonable for you to ask that,” said Stone. “I take responsibility for throwing some curve balls myself.”

“I don’t want to lose this project. I think it is a good project for a blighted area. I’m not against using city funds for some of the street improvements.”

Council voted to approve the PD as requested by the city staff.

The council will continue discussion of Anderson Place and Mary Rose Gardens at the next city council meeting on May 1 at 7:30 p.m., in council chambers.

Winters FFA members helped celebrate Marcella Heredia (center) FFA Regional Star Counselor award recognition

Heredia receives state FFA honors

By AMY CROSS
Winters FFA Reporter

For Winters High School counselor Marcella Heredia, being named the FFA Regional Star Counselor was certainly something to be proud of. However, after being honored as the best counselor in the state of California at the State FFA Conference, Heredia now has bigger and better things to boast about.

On April 16, 15 Winters FFA students, along with their advisors Kent Benson and Donnie Whitworth, waited eagerly among the crowd of almost 5,000 FFA members in Fresno's Sell-and Arena. All were anxious to hear the results as Heredia and the Star Counselors from five other regions stood on stage.

Finally, the results were announced, and Heredia was named the 2007 State Star Counselor for California.

"I was very excited, very happy, and very honored, mostly because this was an award that the students nominated me for. They didn't have to do it, they chose to, and that means so much to me," Heredia later stated.

Heredia's involvement and support of the Winters FFA program could not have gone unnoticed by Winters FFA members. From judging competitions to advocating agricultural classes, her contributions are numerous.

"Everybody in the chapter was very excited. The things that she does for our chapter give students great opportunities, and we are so grateful to have her as a counselor," Benson stated.

For her outstanding efforts to support the FFA program, Heredia will receive an all-expense paid trip to the weeklong National FFA Convention in Indianapolis, Indiana in October.

Campaign aims to help children without health insurance

By KATIE VILLEGAS
Yolo County Children's Alliance
Special to the Express

West Sacramento - The Yolo County Children's Alliance, First 5 Yolo, Yolo County Employment and Social Services and Yolo County Health Department have collaborated to support the expansion of federal and state programs to cover all uninsured children 0-18. At issue is the fate of the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). For the past 10 years, SCHIP has provided health coverage to children whose parents are either not offered health insurance for their children through their job, or who cannot afford the insurance that is offered. More than 6 million children are covered by SCHIP nationwide.

Congress must reauthorize SCHIP in 2007 in order for the program to continue and President Bush, governors and members of Congress are discussing budget figures for the program's future. Experts say the current funding levels for these state programs — set in 1997 — are not adequate to keep up with the growing numbers of uninsured kids, so it will take an increase in federal funding to cover kids currently enrolled in these programs, with more money needed to cover more uninsured children.

"California, as a 'donor state' has always been a contributor to the national budget beyond our fair share. Now it is time to bring our money home to provide health insurance for all of California's children, including 3,000 children in Yolo County," said Supervisor Helen Thomson, Chair of the Yolo County Children's Alliance.

Now in its fifth year, the Cover the Uninsured campaign is the largest mobilization in history to shine a national spotlight on the need to secure health coverage for all Americans. Sponsored by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, this year's effort is galvanizing a broad network of business owners, union members, teachers, students, consumers, doctors, nurses and faith leaders to focus on the need for children to have health insurance.

Organizers are planning activities that highlight the success of SCHIP, demonstrate the ongoing need for the program and enroll eligible families in available coverage programs. The centerpiece of the campaign is Cover the Uninsured Week, April 23-29. In Yolo County, Cover the Uninsured Week activities are being coordinated by the Yolo County Children's Alliance in conjunction with First 5 Yolo, DESS and the Yolo County Health Department. Activities planned for the week include a health fair in West Sacramento at Bryte Elementary School, a booth at the Davis Farmer's Market and a booth at Dia de los Niños celebration in Woodland.

For more information on any of these activities please call the Yolo County Children's Alliance at 757-5558.

New members celebrated in April

April, new member month, is blossoming with an impressive list of business, professional and trade members investing in our Chamber of Commerce. The growth in membership easily calculates to a growth in programs and a stronger business community in Winters. The Chamber board and entire membership offers an energetic “thank you” to all the new members and re-new members investing during April.

New members this month include: Aura Day Spa & Salon, Anderson Place Investors, Pizza Factory, Del Toro Landscaping, Kountry Kitchen, Cloth Carousel, Godmother’s Confidential Credit Guidance, and Johns & Associates.

If you are still thinking about investing in the Winters business community, now is the time to take action and sign up for membership. The membership directory will be printed in May and we need new members who would like to be included in the directory to sign up by the end of April. This professionally formatted and published directory will serve as a business resource, relocation, visitors and event guide. All Chamber members will be listed in the directory both alphabetically and categorically. Please call the office if you have any questions or need more information at 795-2329.

April offered an abundant array of activities in Winters. This month’s mixer, designated our “new member month” mixer, was held on April 16 and had a huge turnout of members, guests, new and prospective members. The Buckhorn, Cody’s Deli, Steady Eddie’s and Tomat’s provided a taste of Winters, and Berryessa Gap wine was served to an enthusiastic gathering. Chamber President Dave Fleming opened the doors of the historic Winters Opera House, home of The Palms, for the mixer. Local businesses provided a wonderful selection of raffle prizes and John Ascuaga’s Nugget in Sparks, Nevada, provided the grand prize of a night’s stay at their casino resort.

Katie Whitmarsh, Chamber executive assistant, and I represented the Winters Chamber at a quarterly regional Chamber luncheon. We stressed the importance of working together as Chambers drawing economical development and tourism, which brings additional revenue for Winters businesses. The Chamber also represents Winters on the Yolo Tourism Board promoting our attractions and activities in printed material. By the way, on Tuesday I represented Winters as a day tour sight at the annual meeting of Association Executives. We are taking advantage of every opportunity to serve as ambassadors for the Winters business community.

Youth Day is here and we are thrilled. In addition to recognition of our youth and their leadership potential we will have fun. The Chamber provides the beer booth in the park as a fund-raising activity. We have several slots open for volunteers to help at the booth. What a great way to get acquainted with the community and have fun. If you are interested in volunteering for 2-3 hours at the beer booth, please call the office at 795-2329 and let us know. Plus, the Chamber’s “Keep Winters Clean” campaign will sweep up Main Street getting ready for Youth Day.

Speaking about keeping Winters clean, we have been making a concerted effort to have recycling bins available at all of our events. Please look for them and recycle your paper and recyclable containers. We are a great supporter of the new recycling program here in Winters and hope you are too. Also, if you own a bike (or have been wanting to get one), take advantage of the opportunity to use that bike during Bike Commute Month in May. You can log your commute, errand and recreation miles. Go to www.bikecommutemonth.com for more information.

Local merchants are actively planning for “Winters Walk” on May 5. The artistic and business community are coming up with great ideas. Shaunie Briggs of Briggs & Company is bringing excitement to the monthly program with creative ideas and enticement for shoppers to come to Winters. Call 795-9505 or the Chamber office for more information or involvement in the Winters Walk.

Mark your calendars: May 14 is the monthly mixer at the Pizza Factory. Join us for networking, raffle prizes and some great pizza.

Help clean up the Earth

By DAWN CALCIANO
Special to the Express

Share the spirit of Earth Day by starting locally and cleaning up Putah Creek. Everyone’s help is needed to keep the banks of the creek clean and enjoyable for all.

The 17th annual Putah Creek Spring Cleanup takes place on Saturday, May 5, from 9 a.m. until noon along Putah Creek with meeting sites in Davis (fire ring at the UC Davis Putah Creek Riparian Reserve) and Winters (Rotary Park gazebo). From the Davis location, volunteers will take an easy walk from the fire ring toward Pedrick Road and picking-up trash along the way. The Winters location will offer both easy cleanup locations at the top of the bank at the Nature Park and a challenge area to clean up the steeper banks along the creek.

Organizers recommend volunteers wear sunscreen, closed-toe shoes, long pants, hats, and gloves. When volunteers check in at the cleanup site, a site captain will provide them with gloves and trash and recycling bags. Even if you’ve never done this before, don’t worry — just come and get to know your local waterways.

Clean-ups are important to not only beautify local areas but also to protect animal species that live in and along the creek. Putah Creek is a breeding and nesting area for native and migratory bird species. The creek is home to many native fish, beavers, river otters, and a slew of plants and insects. As we get some exercise by hauling trash away from the Creek, we are also making the Creek a more hospitable place for humans and wildlife to enjoy.

At the recent spring clean-ups over a ton of trash and tires were removed from Putah Creek. Clothes washers, a tractor tire, and patio furniture were pulled from the creek recently. With the help of volunteers, the creek has been getting cleaner each year.

This event is a joint project of the Putah Creek Council, city of Winters, UC Davis Putah Creek Riparian Reserve, and Winters Putah Creek Committee. Pizza lunch and water will be provided.

For more information and information on past cleanup events, visit www.putahcreekcouncil.org g. For the Davis site, contact Dawn Calciano, Putah Creek Council, 795-3006; dawn@putahcreekcouncil.org rg. For the Winters location, contact Carol Scianna, city of Winters, 795-4910, extension 115; carol.scianna@cityofwinters.org.

Hula studio introduces Royal Hawaiian Court

By MICHELE DRUMRIGHT
Special to the Express

Halau Hula O Lei Hali'a would like to introduce its Royal Hawaiian Court, "Na Ali'i O Hawai'i" for 2007. This court consists of a queen and her attendants, the kanaka ho'okani pu, or conch shell blowers, a mea'oli or chanter, the kahili bearers, and eight island princesses.

Throughout all the islands in Hawai'i, you may see such a court the first week of May for the May Day festivals, during the Aloha Week festivities in September or at any other major Hawaiian function. Most island courts consist of mainly adults as the royal members, while children may be privileged to be a kahili bearer or a conch shell blower. Our court members range from ages 10-31 years old, representing all age groups within our halau (hula school) in Winters.

For 2007, our Mo'i Ali'i (highest queen), Sara "Kapa" Williams, will be dressed in white, as will her court attendants. Normally, the colors of the Hawaiian Royal Court are red and yellow but because we are adding in the eight islands, we wanted our queen to stand out.

Our eight princesses will be dressed and adorned with their specific island color and flower. Our island princesses are: Big Island of Hawai'i, Amanda Rogers; Maui, Hope Wittman; Moloka'i, Luci "Noelani" Heines; Kaho'olawe, Gina Wingard; Lana'i, Trichelle "Ku'uleilanianuhea" Leslie; O'ahu, Madeline Koop; Kaua'i, Sydney "Ihilani"

Stewart; and Ni'ihau, Morgan Anderson.

Becoming a representative of the Royal Court took a lot of effort from each of the members. Our halau held an audition with three judges. There were amazingly 24 girls/women who took time to do major research on islands that many of them could not even pronounce at first.

By the day of the audition, many of them were not only able to pronounce the island's name but many other Hawaiian words and names that even the natives nowadays have a difficult time pronouncing. Each candidate gave a 3-5 minute presentation about an island they picked at random. They had to give a little bit of history about the island, state an interesting but rare fact about it, and tell us why they should become a princess and represent the halau.

The judges had a very difficult decision, since every one of the girls did an excellent job. Many contestants made displays that would have impressed any high school teacher. The judges focused on three areas: Appearance (attire, body language, etc.), Attitude (demeanor) and Presentation. After much heartfelt discussion, they had to choose the eight representatives and two alternates. All three judges said that they felt a spark or something special about the chosen representatives' presentation.

The queen was chosen by a vote from the halau members, while her attendants were hand-picked by the instructor. The attendants include: the kanaka ho'okani pu (conch shell blowers), who announce to those both near and far the coming of the Royal Court; a mea'oli, or chanter of the Royal Family, whose role is to announce the arrival of the Royal Court; and the kahili bearers who are basically honor guards.

The kahili is a feathered standard, which symbolizes royalty. These boys or men would carry the kahili on a long pole — similar to how troops would carry flags in military processions. The boys representing these positions are: Conch Shell Blowers, Ka'imi Drumright and Zachary Williams; Mea'oli, Princeton "Ka'inikiimohala'iaikamakanau'iokawekiu" Leslie; Kahili Bearers, Patrick "Keala" Leslie, Cody Svozil, Jesse "Tanoa" Crabtree and Aaron Ray La'akea Drumright.

You can get a first look at the Royal Court on a float in the Youth Day Parade on Saturday, April 28, and later see them in full action at our halau luau on Sept. 8. I hope you will all enjoy the upcoming shows and September luau we are bringing to Winters this year, as we do our part to bring a little bit of Hawaii here to our quaint little town.

Winters teacher gears up for cross-country bike trip

By CORY GOLDEN
McNaughton Newspapers

This Earth Day, one local family was preparing a special environmental statement of its own. This summer the Ariels — teacher and author Matt Biers-Ariel, midwife Djina Ariel and their sons, Yonah and Solomon — plan to bike 3,780 miles from their Davis home to Washington, D.C. There they'll deliver a petition urging to the nation's leaders to take steps to arrest global warming.

The plan began coming together last fall, because of a much different, and much more personal, event: Yonah's 13th birthday on Oct. 13. Though his family is Jewish, Yonah is an atheist. So he passed on a traditional bar mitzvah and party.

His parents suggested devising some other rite of passage, and Yonah agreed. They decided it had to be some sort of civic action, in keeping with Yonah's taste for politics. And he wanted some sort of physical challenge, too — "something epic," Djina said.

"In another town, in another era, maybe he'd go out into the woods to shoot a bear," she said. "But with someone who's been a vegetarian since age 5, that's not really an option."

OK, so no bear hunt. A trip to Israel, maybe, or a backpacking trip? Among the other options Matt tossed out was the cycling trip. He recalled a friend and his two sons, one with alopecia, who biked west across the country as a fund-raiser for research.

Yonah approved: "It sounded like a good idea, and that it might even be fun."

The family settled on global warming as an issue to which they would try to draw attention.

"We happened to see that move — the Al Gore movie, 'An Inconvenient Truth' — and that interested and stimulated (Yonah)," Djina said.

A perfect fit. "Climate change is) definitely is a very big problem we're going to be confronting," Yonah said. "The sooner we act, the sooner we're going to fix this. I thought that this (bike trip) was something I could do, something that maybe some future generation won't be able to do because the problem got out of hand."

The ride and petition dovetailed with the interest of the Ariels.

Matt, 47, an English teacher at Winters High School and contributor to National Public Radio, earned his bachelor's degree in conservation resource studies. In his early 20s, he cycled from Munich to Cairo. He has put his master's degree in Jewish education and Hebrew literature to work as a speaker at the annual multi-faith Care for God's Creation conference in Davis, speaking about the importance of trees and water to his faith. One of his three books, "Spirit in Nature," mixes environmental education and religious text.

He and Djina, 45, with Yonah and Solomon, 9, have always tried to be a conservation-minded family. Matt bikes 25 miles round-trip to Winters to teach, and the boys bike to school. They hang their clothes on a line to dry, and avoid using a car when they can. This year they installed photovoltaic solar panels on their Village Homes residence — not because it will pay off anytime soon, but it seem the right thing to do.

Though they tried, the family failed to attract the interest of a sponsoring environmental organization for the bike trip.

"In the end we just decided we're just going to grassroots this. I think it'll be an interesting sight, a family of four riding across the country," Matt said. "Maybe some people will sign the petition."

Matt hunted for one, but came up empty. MoveOn.org, the liberal advocacy group, had created a petition with demands that seemed too vague. So the Ariels penned their own petition, for which they are gathering signatures on Saturdays at the Davis Farmers' Market. It urges U.S. government on all levels, and ordinary citizens, to come together to:

- ~ Dedicate the necessary resources to make the United States the world's leader in non-fossil fuel energy production and technology;
- ~ Adopt "conservation as the first energy solution";
- ~ Raise automobile mileage standards to 40 miles per gallon;
- ~ Build transportation to double current mass transit trips; encourage biking and walking; and
- ~ Plant one billion trees.

The Ariels chose one of three cross-country routes that avoid freeways and large cities mapped out by the Adventure Cycling Association. It runs through Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky and Virginia. They plan to leave June 8, covering 60 miles each day, and arrive in Washington Aug. 10. Then they'll fly back. Along the way, they plan to stop at a Shakespeare festival in Utah, as many baseball stadiums as they can manage and lots of ice cream parlors.

"I think we get to have ice cream every day, as long as we do good and we aren't complaining about how far we're riding," noted Solomon, who'll be sharing a tandem bike with his dad.

Once in the capital, they'll deliver their petition to their representatives in Congress. They plan to take a copy to the White House, too.

"It's mainly for us to feel like we're doing something," Matt said. "I don't want to say the petition is an add-on, because it's very important to my family. But we don't have an organization behind us or anything, so we're just going to do the best we can."

To get ready, the family has slowly worked its way up to 60-mile rides on weekends, bikes weighed down with saddlebags filled with books. They're planning a practice trip to Calistoga next month.

"When we started training, the boys couldn't make it to Winters. Now they're really getting to be very strong," Matt said.

The Ariels insisted they could not only get along on the long trip — "probably," Solomon said of him and his big brother — but enjoy each other's company. Said Djina, "I'm just looking forward to spending some solid time with my family with no distractions, 24-7."

The family has stocked up on sunscreen, lots of it, and cycling clothes meant to resist the sun's harmful rays. They'll be careful to ride during the coolest hours of the day, avoiding the worst of the soupy Midwestern heat.

"If all of the predictions are right," Matt said, "this is going to be the hottest year yet."

Wrestling champ attends banquet

By RORY LINTON

The Winters High School Wrestlers and Kids Club wrestlers had the privilege of listening to Derek Moore. Moore became the first UC Davis NCAA Division 1 wrestling champion. He spoke about his career in wrestling, coming from Shasta High School as a walk on to UC Davis.

Moore had only placed 5th at the CIF state championships as a senior, but was determined to achieve his goal. The UC Davis coaches did not give Moore much hope, but as any wrestler knows, he did not give up.

Moore also is the first UC Davis athlete of any sport to receive the honor of an NCAA Division 1 championship. Not only did he accomplish this, but he was the first UC Davis wrestler to win back to back Pac-10 titles, ranking No. 2 nationally, earning a No. 2 seed at Nationals, earning NCAA Most Outstanding Wrestler of a National tournament, earning Pac-10 Wrestler of the Year honors and finishing the season undefeated.

Moore is going on to try out for the USA World team and has a goal to become a Olympian. He told the Winters wrestlers, “never give up, and meet your goals.”

Following Moore’s talk, Winters High School wrestling coach Tim Hausler came up to honor the local wrestlers, stating that if anyone completes in his program they are winners. He honored Jesse Hellinger with two awards: Most Valuable Wrestler and Most Pins. Hellinger’s percentage of pins was around 75 percent, which is a big accomplishment for any wrestler.

Hausler also honored

Brandon White as the Most Outstanding Wrestler and Billy Rotenkolber as the Most Improved, and presented Joe Souza with the Coaches Award. Hausler ended the presentations by saying, “I’d much rather coach a small team that is dedicated then a large team that’s not.”

JV lose first league game

By ERIC LUCERO
Express sports

The Winters JV baseball team lost their first league game of the season last Tuesday, April 17, in Wheatland by a score of 3-2.

“We got beat by one guy for the most part,” said coach Daniel Ward. “Johnson, their pitcher is the best all around JV player in the BVL. Last game he was 3 for 3 with a couple of doubles and threw the last three innings and struck out eight batters. We were lucky to squeak out a 3-2 win. So, when I found out he was pitching, I knew it was going to be a battle. We only gave up one hit and still managed to lose the game.”

Kyle Tobler threw the first five innings for the Warriors and gave up just one hit on three unearned runs, five strikeouts and four walks.

“Tobler pitched great,” said Ward. “We had two outs in the third inning with their number nine batter up, and then we made our only error of the game and walked the next two batters to load the bases for Johnson who cleared the bases with a triple which ended up being their only hit of the game. Unfortunately it was enough. Johnson threw all seven innings, struck out 11 while only giving up three hits and two unearned runs.”

Patrick Kuehn threw one inning striking out one batter with two walks and no runs.

At the plate, Cody Romero led the Warriors batting 1 for 2 with a run scored. Brian Case batted 1 for 3 with a run scored, while Tobler batted 1 for 3 with an RBI.

On Friday, April 20, the Warriors hosted Orland and got back to their winning ways with an 11-2 victory. Wesley Krintz picked up the win throwing the first five innings giving up two runs on four hits with five strikeouts and two walks. Wayne Holland threw the last two innings for the Warriors giving up four hits no runs and struck out four batters.

Case continued to hit the ball well as he led the Warriors batting 3 for 3 with a run scored and three RBI.

“Brian led the way for us offensively,” Ward stated. “He has been swinging the bat very well the last three games.”

Tobler batted 2 for 3 with a run scored and two RBI. Kuehn batted 1 for 3 with three runs scored. Romero batted 1 for 2 with two runs scored and two RBI. Krintz batted 1 for 3 with a run scored, while Aaron Geerts scored three runs for the Warriors.

“We did a good job of getting on them early and putting them away and everyone got a chance to play,” said Ward. “In the past we have had a tendency of letting weaker teams stick around and play with us. This was the best defensive game we played all year and the only game that I can remember that we have played w/o an error. Kuehn had a great game defensively at short.”

Mariners go 2-0 against Esparto

The Mariners beat Esparto on April 16, 9-2. Christian Corrales pitched two innings with six strikeouts. Adam Martinez pitched two innings with two strikeouts. Austin Murphy had a single, Jake Ivory had a single, a double and two RBIs. Alex Jimenez had a single

In game 2 on April 18, the Mariners beat Esparto 15-2. Murphy pitched four innings with eight strikeouts. Corrales had a single and an RBI, Murphy had two doubles and two RBIs, Martinez had an RBI, Michael Bermudez had a triple and three RBIs, Jimenez had an RBI.

WHEATLAND— At Sohrakoff Stadium here last Wednesday, the Winters High School track and field team competed in a Butte View League, double-dual meet with the host and Las Plumas High School. The JV girls team improved to 5-0 by topping Las Plumas, 101-25, and previously undefeated Wheatland, 75-56. The JV boys team also moved to 5-0 by beating Wheatland, 89-37, and previously unbeaten Las Plumas, 84-43. The varsity girls bested Wheatland, 78-25, but lost to undefeated Las Plumas, 97-29. The varsity boys lost to the two best teams in the BVL, undefeated Las Plumas, 51-76, and 2nd place Wheatland, 44-74.

The JV girls won 9 of 16 events and were led by a variety of contributors. Danielle Murphy won the 400 (a season-best, 1:07.3), the 800 (2:53.3), and the 300 hurdles (53.5). She was also second in the long jump in 13-7.75. Katie Anstead also won three individual events; she took the shot put in a personal best 29-10, the discus in 84-3.5, and the high jump (4-4). Catherine Hasbrook won the 100 hurdles (19.0), was third in the 300 hurdles (59.0), and was second in the high jump (3-8). Tice was third in the 400 (1:12.3) and second in the triple jump (27-3.5). sonal best, 6:52.2. Long added a third in the 200 (31.9). The victorious 4x100 team, assembled just before the start, consisted of Emma Pfanner, Lauren Atherton, Oxley and Tice (1:01.3).

The JV boys won 12 of 15 events and also were anchored by a strong cast of characters. Riki Lucero won the 800 (2:18.4), the triple jump (35-10), was third in the long jump (16-0), and joined Ryan Hofstrand, Cody Shafer and Jesse Hellinger to win the 4x400 in a season-best, 3:47.9. Hofstrand won the 100 hurdles (16.9) and was second in the 300 hurdles (44.5). Shafer won the 300 hurdles (43.7) and was second in the high jump (5-2).

Robby Emery won the 1600 (5:26.4) and the 3200 (11:38.0). Steven Warren won the 100 (12.4) and the 200 (25.4). Logan Garcia won the long jump (17-0), was third in the 300 hurdles (46.7), and joined Lucero in a sweep of the triple jump in season-best times. Figueroa also added a second-place finish in the 800 (2:12.0). Team captain Mat Catalan won the 110 hurdles (17.5) and led the 4x400 team of T. J. Johnson, Alvaro Zaragoza, and Johnny Lucero to a season-best mark of 3:41.9 (second place). Johnson won the 800 (2:11.9), while Zaragoza was second in the long jump (17-11.75) and in the 100 (11.9). The WHS track and field team competed in a double-dual meet with Wheatland and Orland on Monday. They travel to Rio Vista on Friday for the Moose Relays, an 18-school invitational that the WHS team won outright across all four divisions in 2006.

(33-2) with Brent Bell (33-1.5). Bell was third in the 100 (12.6) and joined Hofstrand and Shafer to sweep the 100 hurdles with his second place, 17.5 effort.

Bran isn't only source of fiber

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor wants me to eat more fiber to help me get over constipation, and he suggests that I get some bran. I don't have the foggiest idea what bran is. Can you buy it in a grocery store? —P.C.

ANSWER: Bran is the outer coat of grains. It's the stuff that's removed when grains are refined to make flour.

I don't know if all grocery stores have bran, but most health-food stores stock it.

The recommended daily amount of fiber is 20 to 30 grams. Thirty grams is 1 ounce. A half-cup of wheat bran contains 12.5 grams of fiber. You can't eat bran straight out of the package. It's not that palatable. You can sprinkle it on other foods, like cereal, or you can put it in baked goods.

Bran isn't the only source of fiber. Vegetables, fruits and whole-grain products have a good supply of fiber. And if you want, you can get products like Metamucil, Fiber-all and Perdiem that contain psyllium, another fiber source.

The constipation booklet deals with this common problem in detail. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 504W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6.75 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a waitress. Naturally, I am on my feet all day long. When I get home and kick off my shoes, my feet have a terrible odor. I take a daily shower. If I bathe more often, my skin dries out. Is there some way to control this smell? —C.M.

ANSWER: One way to decrease foot odor is to keep the feet as dry as possible. When you go to work, take with you a change of stockings. If you can get two stocking changes in while you're at work, all the better. Wear shoes that have openings in them for ventilation. Never wear the same shoes two days in a row. Give them a chance to thoroughly dry.

You don't have to take lots of showers every day, but you can wash your feet before going to work and immediately upon coming home. Dry them with a hair dryer. After they've dried, spray them, top and bottom, with an antiperspirant that has aluminum chloride in it.

At night, before going to bed, spray your feet with a solution of sodium bicarbonate. Put half a teaspoon of bicarbonate in a cup of water. This spray changes the acidity of the skin and gets rid of some of the odor-producing germs that cling to the feet.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: How much does exercise really add to your life? I am not an exerciser and don't intend to become one. —S.K.

ANSWER: I don't know if this is reliable, but some claim it adds an extra year or two to your life. Length of life is not what counts. Quality of life is. Exercisers are more likely to maintain their independence right to their last moments on Earth.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Americans need to step up to the plate

The Democrats are all wrong. All the hand-wringing over an exact timetable for troop withdrawal from Iraq with the Senate giving one date, and the House of Representatives with another. The proposals are to continue to pay for more war but slap a timeline on how long the military should remain there. What then? Just pull up stakes and leave? No one is talking about what will happen to Iraq after our forces leave (remember the so-called coalition forces have all but gone already). The Democrats are clearly putting forward a measure to win votes in the election in 2008.

But for Iraq, it is a world gone mad. Killings on an unprecedented scale each week despite the troop surge. New thinking is desperately needed. Forget the Republicans — they ran out of ideas about a week after they launched "shock and awe" in 2003. Forget the Democrats, they just want to disengage. What we have to do as a nation is face up to the unpleasant reality that we, not Mr. Bush, not the Republicans, no, we as a nation, launched a war of choice, not a war of necessity, against another sovereign nation. We the People have a moral obligation to set things right. Doesn't the M word sound so retro?

The argument runs like this. We voted the Republicans into office in 2000. (Don't bring up stolen elections or Al Gore). According to the rules of American democracy which is held in such high regard by so many, then anointed by the venerable Supreme Court, the American people, through their Electoral College favored the Republicans. Therefore We the People are responsible for the actions of their our Government. (If we are not responsible, who is? Certainly not the people of, say, Peru). Then the ideologically driven administration presented Congress with information about weapons of mass destruction — weak information, shoddy data, or simply lies — it doesn't matter. It was our Government that did it. Then Congress, voted in by the American people, fell for it and failed to conduct their oversight of the Executive Branch. Surely, then, it is the American people, not some executive scapegoat, that is ultimately responsible for the decision to go to war in Iraq. You, me, and Harry who lives down the street.

Furthermore, US taxpayers are responsible for prosecuting that war. The cost to our Congressional District 1 has been $875.02 million. Each Winters citizen's share of the war has been $1,634 each (based on 2005 census of City). That is $6,537 for each family of four. Our community has contributed $11,054,000 plus to the war in Iraq. The bombs that have killed so many civilians in Iraq and the current troop surge are paid for by We the People.

So if we are responsible for this can of worms, surely it is up to us to step up to the plate and put things straight. We need a Marshall Plan for Iraq where we first talk to Iraq's neighbors and beg them to help us secure peace in the region. Without Sunni and Shia involvement across the Middle East, there will be no halt to the killings. That is why Nancy Pelosi is in Syria talking to President Assad.

We need to pour billions of dollars into the country's infrastructure to try to increase the standard of living, employment prospects, and give hope to the Iraqi people. To replace that which we have destroyed... build schools, build hospitals, provide jobs and equipment, not merely to feather Haliburton's and Bechtel's nests, but supply support that Iraqi's can use to reconstruct that which has been taken from them. We must try to bring back the 80% of doctors who have fled Iraq. Hospitals are in a state of absolute crisis — no sanitation, no electricity, no drugs, no medical expertise — it is too dangerous — with armed killers picking off patients in their beds each night. Nights in hell.

A new commitment to Iraq is needed. Not a walk away policy. Negotiate for the help that we need from Iraq's neighbors, including Iran. Then pull out the troops. But don't shelve responsibility for the most cynical act performed by this country in living memory. For the United States of America to regain the respect of the world, and to reinstall the respect of its own people, and to retake the moral ground that it used to hold many years ago, it must provide enormous resources, time and effort, to rebuilding this nation that has been destroyed by our bankrupt foreign policy. Morally, we cannot afford to leave this one — as we did when we walked away from Nicaragua, Grenada, Panama, and Somalia.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A sudden change of plans could lead to a misunderstanding with a friend or family member. Be ready to offer a full explanation of your decision. A past favor is returned.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Expect pressure from those who want you to change your position on a matter of importance. However, the determined Bovine will be able to withstand the bullying and win out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's time to stop dwelling on past disappointments and move on to other possibilities. By week's end, you'll be meeting new people and making new plans for the future.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A long-simmering situation between co-workers threatens to heat up and could create problems with your work schedule. Best advice: Consult a supervisor on how to proceed.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might have just learned that someone close to you is keeping a secret. And, of course, the Cat's curiosity has gone into overdrive. But be patient. All is revealed soon enough.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Don't give up. The recognition citing the good work you recently did will come through. Meanwhile, an opportunity opens up that can lead to a lot of traveling later on.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A financial crunch eases, but it's still a good idea to keep a tight rein on what you spend for nonessentials. Education becomes a major focus as the week winds down.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Recent encounters with stressful situations could require some restorative measures to get your energy levels back up. Talk to your doctor about a diet and exercise program.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) New connections follow changes on the job or in your personal life. But keep your feelings reined in until these relationships have a chance to develop.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Pay more attention to your aches and pains, and avoid self-diagnoses. Seek professional advice to make sure these problems won't lead to something more serious.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You love doing research and learning new things, so you'll be happy to know that education becomes a big part of your life at this time, and for some time to come.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your Piscean penchant for doing things logically could be challenged by an equally strong emotional reaction to a new situation. Best advice: Keep the two factors in balance.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love music and nature. You would be an excellent environmentalist, as well as a fine singer or musician.

second game of the week and defeated the Trojans 13-9.

On Tuesday, April 17, the Warriors traveled to Wheatland for a Butte View League game against the Pirates and suffered a 12-2 loss. The high winds didn't favor the Warriors as they totaled just four hits. Brittanie Hedrick and Nicole Trost each had doubles, while Zulema Mora and Courtney Corrales both singled for the Warriors. Olivia Manas pitched all four innings for the Warriors.

On Friday, April 20, the Warriors returned home to Shirley Rominger School and took on the Trojans of Orland with a 13-9 victory for their first league win. Manas threw two innings with four strikeouts, while Trost threw five and also had four strikeouts.

At the plate, the Warriors were a little busier than last game as they spread the ball all over the field. Hedrick led the Warriors hitting two singles, a double, a triple and three RBI. Mora had a single, a double and three RBI. Trost had two singles and an RBI. Keeley Nickelson had two singles and an RBI. Manas had a single and an RBI. Lillian Boisrame had a single, while Corrales had a single, two RBI and did an excellent job at catcher tagging out three runners at the plate.
