

TANC takes a beating

◆ Residents pack house to voice concerns over plan for power lines

By ELLIOT LANDES
Staff writer

The public came out in force on April 22 to let officials from the Transmission Agency of Northern California (TANC) know what it really thinks about new 500 kilovolt (kV) and 230kV transmission lines planned to run over their properties, south and west of Winters. About 180 people filled The Palms e for the lively meeting, which was held in response to a request from the City of Winters. Winters Community Development Director Nelia Dyer chaired the meeting.

Most of the comments were articulate and informed, focusing less on the not-in-my-backyard plea to move the lines elsewhere, but a higher level discussion of whether the lines are needed at all, or asking that the lines run in existing easement corridors. The audience was strongly against the project, applauding criticism more and more as the microphone passed through the room.

The presenters included TANC General Manager Jim Beck, Assistant Manager Bryan Greiss, Tom Murphy of Aspen Environmental Group who is handling the environmental review, facilitator Janet Thompson, Lauren Altschuh of TANC and Steve Tuggle of the Western Area Power Administration. After a short presentation on the TANC Transmission Project, the bulk of the meeting was used for two hours of audience

Council approves sidewalk café fees

By MOLLY DAVIS
City editor

Spring is in full bloom, and in a town like this, with such great food, there's not much better than sitting outside, enjoying a meal, in the sun. And now we can do that legally.

The Winters city council approved a resolution to establish sidewalk café fees. Amid some acute attention to detail pertaining to a fee set by square footage versus number of chairs, the council decided to accept the staff's recommendation of a one time application fee of $150 and an annual fee based on $1 per square foot.

Councilmember Tom

Stone suggested that the measurement be based on the square footage required per seat, much like it is calculated for indoor seating. However, City Manager John Donlevy quickly commented that the city charges by square foot, adhering to uniformity.

John Pickerel, owner of the Buckhorn Steakhouse and the Putah Creek Café, asked a few questions on behalf of the owners of El Pueblo, who could place tables under their awning and be exempt from a sidewalk fee.

Pickerel commended the city, saying, "It's about the space you've

Youth Day was totally cool

By DEBRA LO GUERCIO

Youth Day is always the coolest day of the Year in Winters, but this year it was cool for real, with blue skies, sunshine, and the temperature staying in the low 70s.

Festivities officially began the day before, on Friday, April 24, with opening ceremonies at the Community Center. Parade Chairman Mike Sebastian formally honored this year's Grand Marshal, Manuel Garcia, and Honorary Grand Marshal, Peggy Narducci, as well as Jim Stark, Educator of the Year.

The Youth Day officials were introduced, including Mayor Jameson Shugart, Vice Mayor Brandon Emery, City Council Members Tyler Pearce, Tess Hyer and Rachel Myers, City Treasurer Amber Sebastian, City Clerk Marcus Carrasco, Judge Ashley Wiser, City Attorney Justin Hyer, City Manager Xavier Borchelt, Police Chief Sarah Selby, Fire Chief Jackie Santana, Chamber President Ilene Reynoso, Community Services Director Lily Munoz, Public Works Director Sarah Neil, Junior City Council Members Serena Cliché, Alex Balasek and Emily Donlevy, Junior Treasurer Katie Sebastian, Junior City Clerk Gabby Manas and Junior Judge Dylan Wingard.

One of the highlights of opening ceremonies was the crowning of this year's Youth Day Sweetheart and Sweet-hunk, Anna Solorio and Robby Emery. The other candidates

Keepin' it fresh

◆ Winters Farmers Market debuts on Sunday, May 3

By DEBRA LO GUERCIO
Express editor

One of the great ironies about all the fresh, local produce being grown in the Winters area is that it's very difficult to actually buy it here in town. If you want to purchase local organic vegetables or fruit, sometimes the nearest place to find it is the Davis Farmers Market or the Davis Food Co-op.

That all changes this weekend, as the Winters Farmers Market makes its debut on Sunday, May 3, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Rotary Park. Eighteen local vendors will have a variety of fresh produce, cheese, eggs, meat and flowers for sale, and six prepared food vendors will make sure shoppers don't go hungry.

Clayton DunHam

Clayton DunHam of Winters, passed away on Friday, April 24, 2009 at his home. He was an area resident for 60 years.

He was born in Salina, Mayes County, Oklahoma, in Indian Territory to Muggie Mae Vann and William Columbus DunHam. He was the last surviving member of 12 children and was honored to be the last to carry on the DunHam name for his generation.

He and his wife and business partner, Barbara Hughes, carried on the Clayton DunHam and Sons Trucking Company for over 60 years, and were known throughout the state of California. He was delighted to be able to carry his chauffeur's license until the time of his passing, and held to a strong belief that people worked hard for what they possessed. He was very proud of his son Brett, who has managed the Winters Cemetery for over 30 years.

Mr. DunHam felt highly honored to be of Cherokee Indian bloodline. He and his family are registered at the Cherokee Nation in Tahlequah, Oklahoma. He was a member of the Cherokee of Northern California and also with the National American Indian Organization. He absolutely loved his Indian heritage and was often heard saying, “I would have loved to be a full-blooded Indian rather than a half-breed.”

He was a very active fifth generation Democrat Party Member and belonged to the Yolo County Democratic Group and the California State Democratic Party.

The DunHams never missed a ballgame on television and he was a committed Red Sox fan, proud to support Dusty Petroia. The DunHams held deep “discussions” throughout the entirety of each game.

He was very fond of his Antique Automobile and Gun collections and particularly loved his very 1st vehicle, his 1936 Ford Coupe. On April 25, the day following Mr. DunHam's passing, his life was honored at the opening of the Youth Day Parade with a moment of silence in his memory. He had provided antique automobiles to be displayed on Youth Day for many years.

For the last couple of years of his life, Mr. DunHam provided loving care to his rose garden and on the day of his service his casket will be adorned with the roses from his garden.

He is survived by his wife, Barbara Hughes; sons, Dennis, John and Brett; three granddaughters, including a special granddaughter, Sierra, and her companion Richard, three great-granddaughters and four generations of nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by three children, Billie Gene, Janice Sue and Tommy Clayton.

A visitation is planned for Saturday, May 2, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., at Main Street Church, 205 Main Street, under the direction of Wiscombe

May 19, 1894

We have had the so-called industrial army with us this week. The men came here, as they claimed hunting work, but we have yet to hear of them applying for any.

Constable Womack was selected to go to the leader of the industrials and ask that he and his men leave here, as their presence was a burden upon the town. The leaders agreed to leave if the citizens would give them $5 with which to get their supper and breakfast. This was done and Wednesday the army left, but only went as far as the Wolfskill warehouse. A guard was then left with the baggage and 81 men started on the march through Pleasant Valley. At various places they picked up Japs and Chinese and when they arrived in Vacaville Thursday morning, they had 40 of them in charge.

The officers and citizens of Vacaville immediately put the whole army under arrest. The army by this action has placed itself outside of the pale of sympathy of every law abiding, fair minded man, and should receive the full penalty of the law for its transgressions.

Cycling marathon begins in Winters

By JOHN WHITEHEAD
Special to the Express

On Saturday, May 2, at 6:30 a.m., nearly 50 ultra-marathon cyclists from up and down the West Coast will start an endurance bicycle race in downtown Winters.

"There won't be a starting gun, and there's no finish line," explains race director Patsy Inouye of the Davis Bike Club. Riders will start alone, at 30-second intervals, and race against the clock for exactly 12 or 24 hours.

Participants will pedal past Monticello Dam, then ultimately to Clear Lake and back toward Winters through the Capay Valley. While covering about 200 miles in 12 hours is a feat in itself for many of the riders, others continue to repeat a local 18.5 mile loop that is monitored by race officials. The Winters Community Center will be staffed overnight until after sunrise on Sunday.

The cyclists destined to win will rarely get off the bicycle throughout the entire 24-hour period. As they pass through Winters on each lap, they will call out their rider numbers to the official time keeper. In return, they get some encouragement and are told how many hours and minutes remain.

Some record-setters come with their own support crew, and can receive food and water through the open windows of a vehicle that briefly pulls up alongside. Other participants are more than happy to stop during the night to rejuvenate themselves with food catered by Winters restaurants.

The original 12-24 started at Lillard Hall near the Yolo County Airport. It was moved to Winters, a more friendly environment where everyone can benefit from the town's amenities before and after the race. Each year, a donation is made to the Winters Healthcare Foundation, as a way to say "thank you" to the city.

TO CHANGE OR NOT to change. That is the question. In just a couple days, I'm going to have to decide whether or not my last name is going to change along with my marital status. I've been pondering this for awhile, as both choices have their positives and negatives, and just kept Scarlett O'Hara'ing that little item: I'll think about that tomorrow.

Well, the particular tomorrow when I'll have to make a decision is quickly approaching. I was reminded of this fact in an email from the president of my fan club of one, Terry from Davis, who asked me whether or not I'll be changing my name. I think I'm leaning in one direction... sorta kinda. More than likely. Maybe.

I think.

Yeah, probably.

On the other hand....

And there you have it – a glimpse right inside my brain, at the sophisticated and nuanced thought processes behind most of my decision making. There's nothing bouncing around in there that a mocha frappachino won't not solve.

On the downside of changing my name is the hassle factor. There's credit cards, address labels, Social Security, the DMV, and scores of other things that would have to be changed. True, I've done it twice before, and it's a pain and an inconvenience, but eventually it all gets done. Ultimately, you can get the various corporations and government agencies on board. Friends and family are another matter.

Although I've attempted to retrain people for years after going back to my maiden name, some people still say "Ramos" because "LoGuercio" is too hard to remember. Or say. Or spell. I try to be patient with them, because even in Italy, "LoGuercio" is a rather obscure name. It's not exactly "Smith" or "Jones" over in beautiful downtown Roma. And even those who speak Italian won't get it right because the Americanized pronunciation is a watered down, bland, blah version of the authentic Italian. Sort of like Olive Garden.

It's not that difficult, really: Lo-GRRR-see-oh. I keep correcting and correcting, and it's taken nearly 10 years, and most people are finally getting it, with the exception of my best friend, who still stubbornly pronounces it Lo-GWER-chee-oh, as it would be in Italian. Ah well, she calls me "Deb" too, and I've long since given up on getting her to add the "ra." On the other hand, I'm not complaining too much. At least she doesn't still pronounce my last name "RAY-mus." Unlike some of you others. And you know who you are.

So, with nearly everyone on board with my new old maiden name (hmmm... new old maiden... just noticed that as I typed it... I guess that's technically what I am right about now as I launch into midlife matrimony... an old maiden) now I'll be tossing all the pieces in the air and retraining everyone to address me by yet another name.

Good God, I'm demanding, aren't I. Wonder if The Cutest Man In The World has noticed yet. I suspect he has, now that he's moved in and discovered that I can't stand for the bed to go unmade, or for any lights to be on at night (including even a tiny light from a Blackberry on the recharger), or clutter in the living room, or or or...

I should probably be thankful he even wants me to change my name at all at this point.

Hmmm.... He's left an awful lot of boxes yet unpacked...

Y'think?

Nah....

Anyway.

Assuming that TCMITW doesn't flee back to Pennsylvania like he has flaming wolverines snapping at his heels, by this time next week, I'm fairly certain my last name will be the same as his. Yes, it will be a hassle. Yes, I will have to nag and retrain people. Yes, it may be a stumble in my so-called writing "career" to switch names midstream, but I think I'm gonna go for it. Why? Because my name would be just too cool to pass up: Debra DeAngelo. Lordy, Lordy, that has a Hollywood snap, doesn't it?

Debra DeAngelo. That sounds like the name of a Pulitzer Prize winning columnist or best-selling novelist, doesn't it? A porn star, if nothing else. In name only, of course, unless I can get a full-body double. Not to worry, though — I suspect my future as a porn star is only slightly more unlikely than my future as a Pulitzer Prize winner or best-selling novelist. Unless they start making porn for blind guys. I might have a shot at that.

But that's OK. A future as the editor of a little weekly newspaper living in a cozy little town married to The Cutest Man In The World sounds pretty sweet.

Almost as sweet as Debra DeAngelo. Well, the name anyway.

TANC project affects us all

Dear Editor,

Just three weeks ago, thanks in large measure to an article in the Winters Express, it first became known to the public that a large high voltage electrical transmission line (the TANC Transmission Project, or TTP) was being planned for Northern California and that one of its routes might pass very close to Winters. The project was, and still is, at the environmental review stage.

A small, but continually-growing, number of people around Winters and in other parts of California became active in publicizing this project. Some were adamantly against it, some were for it, but almost all felt that publicity about it had been grossly inadequate. Consequently, many started to push for an extension to the comment period for the environmental review.

That extension was made and the public now has until May 30 to learn about the project and to make comments for inclusion in the environmental study.

This project could have significant impacts on our entire community, not just on those over whose property it might pass. Please take the time to learn about the TTP, figure out what you think of it, and, if you have concerns, submit them in the form of a written comment for inclusion in the environmental impact study.

There is a website (<http://www.no-ttp.org/ttp/ttp.html>) that provides basic information about the TTP and a blog that is set up to foster an exchange of ideas and opinions about it (<http://ttp-winters-interaction.blogspot.com/>)

TANC meeting at Palms tanked

Dear Editor:

The TANC meeting at The Palms last Thursday really did tank. I don't want to say that the panel came across as six bumbling idiots, that wouldn't be nice. They were greeted by a swarm of mad yellow jackets, however.

The panel did come out looking like a pack of blood hounds hot on the trail of money scent. If they have any logical sense, they left it at home, because they seemed to dodge, evade or plead ignorance or deliberately avoid many simple, straightforward questions.

It seems that one should ask, is this another Enron in the embryo stage? The economic feasibility of this whole thing seemed to be completely missing. If the project is not logical, feasible and necessary, and not pie in the sky or someone's pipe dream, why are they traumatizing so many of our good citizens?

I do not believe that this project deserves one single acre of agricultural land, and if they can justify it by answering all of the above concerns, and a whole lot more, a closer look may be justifiable.

Meeting organized, efficient

Dear Editor,

I would like to thank Dawn Van Dyke and Nelia Dyer for the wonderful job they did organizing the TANC meeting last Thursday. It was very organized and efficient.

This meeting was open to everyone and anyone who wanted to know more about TANC or had questions for them. The women who told the people from Davis they did not belong there were rude and out of line. I know I was happy to have them there. The more people we have at these meetings the better chance we have to stop this project. No matter where they are from.

RAEANN RAMOS

HOMELESS ON YOUTH DAY. A tradition ended this Youth Day. My mother cancelled the potluck at her home and left a lot of us searching for handouts from neighbors and friends. She tried to cancel last year, but everyone showed up and volunteered to take over the job of setting up, cleaning up and fixing most of the food. My mother never sat down once. This year she sat down at a friend's home and seemed to enjoy herself. I think my father missed his easy chair.

I heard about a complaint, not first hand, that the Chamber of Commerce shouldn't be selling beer on Youth Day because it is a day for kids. Who says? It may be called Youth Day, but it is a day for youth of all ages. There are a few students who get a lot out of Youth Day, while others seem to think that it is just another Saturday.

I'm sure the students that get involved and learn about government and run for public office get a lot out of their experiences. Visiting the state capitol and meeting with local and state politicians must have been a great time. The student floats might be the best ever and the pooper-scoopers deserve a big hand. The bands were great and the park was packed. Horseshoes clanked and the beer poured.

I didn't see any issues with the people drinking beer, playing horseshoes or just standing around talking to old friends. For those who object to fund-raisers during Youth Day, remember the day is free, but the event isn't cheap to put on. While most people volunteer their labor, there is prize money to be paid, trophies to pass out and ribbons to purchase. I don't think pouring beer in an enclosed area for 4 hours is going to damage the youth of tomorrow.

TOWERS NOT A POPULAR IDEA. I've spouted off about solar and wind power for years and I would find it a little hypocritical of me to tell a power company that wants to develop solar and wind energy that they can't put in power towers to transport that power to where it is needed just because it is my backyard. That isn't to say that they shouldn't look at alternative methods to get their power from Northern California to the Bay Area, but everyone should agree that we need to develop and support the idea of alternative power systems in the United States.

I would like to see a nuclear power plant on San Francisco Bay just so the power lines wouldn't have to run that far, and before you jump up and down screaming about the problems with nuclear power, read about our nuclear technology that is being used around the world to solve other countries power needs. France gets almost 75% of its electricity from nuclear power, we burn coal and natural gas.

We should be using natural gas to drive our cars, not for generating electricity. If we ever want to stop fighting in the Middle East, we have to stop relying on foreign oil. Without oil the United States would come to a complete stop. After the 1974 oil embargo, France decided to do something about their need for oil. They decided to replace their power plants with nuclear. They are almost completely independent of oil while we keep burning up our own reserves and importing billions of gallons from countries that we can't stand, and worse, who want to kill us.

There are alternative plans to where the power lines will go, but they will be going from the north to the south. Just as our water flows south, so will our power. This won't be the first power plant to be built and it would be a good idea for the government to decide where future power plants will be located and where the power lines will go. That planning should take place now, not a year or two before the power plants are completed and everyone is in a hurry to make a decision.

Going through our foothills might be a viable option, but looking at following the Sacramento River makes more sense to me. I don't think anyone lives in the by-pass, and having income for the power lines might even pay to ensure that the wetlands stay that way forever.

Making PG&E rent their existing power lines to new power companies should also be looked at, but PG&E might have future plans of their own for alternative power grids.

Whatever plan is decided on, someone won't like where the lines are located. Maybe they will be in our backyard, but should we throw a wrench into the gears to stop new energy sources from reaching the electric grid? Just a question.

Have a good week.

BRIAN BELLAMY and JESSE LOREN

Loren, Bellamy exchange vows

Jesse Loren of Winters and Brian Bellamy of Vancouver, Washington exchanged wedding vows on Friday, April 17. Tom McMasters-Stone officiated the wedding at the couple's home, in the garden beside the pool. The couple's vows were written by Bellamy's mother for her own wedding.

The bride wore a teal skirt and top and a cocoa jacket, and carried a petite bouquet of pink roses. Loren's daughters, Crystal and Caitlin, served as bridesmaids, and wore wreaths of fresh flowers on their heads and carried bouquets of white calla lilies. Loren's son, Jarrett, was the ring-bearer.

Also in attendance were the couple's friends, Debra Lo Guercio and Joe DeAngelo. A celebration of the couple's new life together is planned in June, on the Summer Solstice.

Loren teaches English at Vanden High School. Bellamy is a solar design engineer for Premier Power.

Reward offered for arrest of vandals

By ROBYN ROMINGER
Special to the Express

A $500 reward is being offered by Save Rural Yolo County for the arrest and conviction of the people who vandalized the organization's signs along State Highway 16 east of Madison.

The grassroots group, whose members oppose the construction of a state prison in Madison or any other area of rural Yolo County, made a number of signs stating, "Save Rural Yolo County—No Prison," and placed them on private property throughout the county. On the evening of April 20, someone vandalized five signs that were placed along State Highway 16 between Interstate 505 and County Road 98. The signs were defaced with orange spray paint and cut down.

About two weeks ago, at least four other signs were stolen from private property.

Leo Refsland, chairman of Save Rural Yolo County, said, "There have been other instances of the signs being cut down. Some have been stolen. This is the first time graffiti has occurred. It's a shame that the person or persons responsible didn't contact Save Rural Yolo County to voice their concerns over the signs. Instead, they dropped to one of the lowest forms of human existence and destroyed someone else's property. The irony in this is that they committed a rural crime by defacing a sign that opposes a rural prison."

Members of Save Rural Yolo County filed a police report with the Yolo County Sheriff's Department (case # 09-1151). The grassroots organization hopes that the reward money will motivate people with any information to report it to the sheriff's department, so that the vandals are brought to justice and prosecuted for vandalism and trespassing.

The California State Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation is looking into building a "secure re-entry facility" in Madison designed to rehabilitate up to 500 inmates serving the final year of their sentences. These prisoners will range from non-violent offenders to murderers. Members of Save Rural Yolo County oppose the construction of a state prison in Madison or any other area of rural Yolo County.

The correction department's final decision on whether or not to build a prison in Madison is pending. Two lawsuits filed against the county by Save Rural Yolo County and the Yolo County Farm Bureau are moving forward. The lawsuits claim that the county violated its General Plan and environmental and farmland-preservation laws. The 15-acre site, which is part of a 175-acre parcel owned by developer John Kaufman, is currently planted to alfalfa.

Grad Nite fund-raiser takes place next week

By SALLY IVORY
Special to the Express

The Winters High School Grad Nite Parent Group invites you to attend their next fund-raiser, Dream Dinners, at Peabody Plaza in Vacaville, on Wednesday, May 6. For the cost of a $25 ticket, attendees will be able to prepare any six serving entrees from the Dream Dinners May menu (<http://www.dreamdinners.com>), as well as sample a variety of entrees from the upcoming summer menus.

For every entree sold, Dream Dinners will donate $15 in support of Grad Nite, and if you book your next Dream Dinners session while at the fund-raiser, they will donate $25 to Grad Nite.

This is a great way to enjoy an evening with family and friends, and support our efforts in hosting a Safe and Sober Grad Nite for the Class of 2009. The Grad Nite committee appreciates all that the community has contributed to support WHS Grad Nite, but the group is still several thousand dollars short of its goal, and needs to once again ask for support to keep this important event going for future WHS grads.

If you would like to purchase a ticket, contact Sally Ivory, 795-2960.

The project will construct 230kV and 500kV transmission lines on two routes connecting the Round Mountain substation near Redding eastward into Lassen County, ostensibly to bring power from future renewable energy sources in Lassen County. Another line will follow one of three possible routes from Round Mountain south to a substation in Tracy, and then in two legs, one to Silicon Valley and one east towards Yosemite. It will take at least until 2014 for the lines to be constructed.

The western of the three north-south routes runs through public lands, farms and ranchettes south and west of Winters. The middle option skirts the east edge of Davis, through the Vic Fazio Wildlife Preserve, and over parts of El Macero, making Davis and Winters in competition with each other to make the lines go somewhere else.

Davisites were numerous in attendance at the meeting, and many of them expressed surprise TANC would not be holding a Davis meeting. One described many Davis El Macero residents as “totally and completely unaware” of the plan. Later, a Davis resident, before excoriating the plan, suggested people in Davis read their local paper — there have been two front page articles in the Davis Enterprise in recent weeks.

This meeting was not one of the twelve official “scoping” meetings TANC is currently holding under the rules of federal and state environmental review laws, known as NEPA and CEQA. The review process was originally scheduled to end April 30. The day of Winters’ meeting, TANC announced the scoping period would be extended an additional 31 days, a partial victory for advocates against the project, though they were demanding 90 extra days. In their comments, a number of people objected strongly to the shortness of the extension.

The NEPA/CEQA process requires notification of all affected landowners. TANC representatives say they did this notification, using parcel maps to send flyers to owners within 1000 feet of the proposed lines. Many attendees said they were not notified, even though the lines will go over their properties. TANC representatives said they would use certified mail for future notifications.

“Four days ago, I heard about this,” said a farmer from the Cache Creek Valley, “and it’s supposedly going to go right across my property. There was no notification.”

Told by Greiss the line will not go over structures, he said, “So if I quick build something...?” producing laughter.

A number of comments questioned the need for more lines for alternative energy to come from Lassen County, when the generation does not yet exist. In answer, Greiss said the process takes many years, and the producers will not start building generation until they see a transmission route being planned.

Greiss at one point said undergrounding was not an option, because the technology for 500 kV lines “has not been perfected.”

“Power lines are outdated technology left over from the 1930’s,” said farmer and Solano Farm Bureau President Joe Martinez, speaking over applause and cheering.

“I respectfully disagree with you, sir,” said Martinez, “because in New Zealand and Australia they are already putting 500kV lines under ground. So why put in a project that will rape our landscape, rape our countryside, for a technology that will be outdated before one single electron goes through those power lines?”

“My final comment, with all due respect, is - hell no!”

“As long as I can draw a breath,” said Winters walnut farmer John Barbee, “I’m going to fight to prevent you taking a single acre of land to put in these power lines.”

A number of commenters suggested solar energy could be used for decentralized local power, so transmission lines would not be necessary. One speaker described transmission lines as a “dead technology.”

Asked repeatedly about how close the lines would be placed to structures, Greiss typically answered, “at least a thousand feet.” Asked specifically about the legal distance required, Greiss admitted it was only 50 feet.

Some critics questioned whether TANC had done all it can to work with other transmission companies, like PG&E, to reduce the need for new routes. Asked by Winters area resident Jean Crossley who are the “big thinkers” that oversee TANC’s planning, Beck answered the TANC member organizations oversee the project by deciding whether they will participate.

Under state law, joint powers authorities like TANC are not subject to the public review of the California Public Utilities Commission. The 15 members include cities, irrigation districts and utilities, including SMUD.

Dyer in her career has been on the receiving end of meetings like this one. Asked afterwards what she thought of the meeting, she said she was impressed by the tone of the comments in that they showed individuals’ concern for the community, beyond just their own particular interests.

“It left me feeling very proud of Winters,” said Dyer.

Anyone interested in participating in the environmental review process can join the Google group named “tanc-powerline-group,” or connect to the following web sites: <http://sencal.org>, or <http://ttp-winters-interaction.blogspot.com>.

created. City staff has been unbelievably cooperative.”

Ultimately, the council unanimously approved the resolution as the staff report recommended.

The council also approved a permit for the construction of the St. Anthony’s Church and Rectory project, which modifies the height and parking restrictions, allowing for the project to continue as planned.

Four new ordinances pertaining to mapping policies were also unanimously approved. The ordinances will allow for a more coherent way to use tentative subdivision maps, final subdivision maps, parcel maps and vesting tentative subdivision maps.

A public hearing was held to consider objections from property owners regarding weed abatement, to which there were no public comments. The hearing is held each year as sort of a formality.

Finally, the council unanimously approved an ordinance for the Winters Farmers Market, before simultaneously meeting as the community development agency. As the agency, minus Woody Fridae and Harold Anderson due to conflicts of interest, approved the purchase of the plot at 311 First Street, across the street from City Hall, for part of the downtown plan.

“Staff is really comfortable recommending the acquisition of this,” commented Donlevy.

With Fridae and Anderson back in the room, the agency also approved the purchase of three Grant Avenue parcels.

Finally, the agency unanimously approved a resolution authorizing a housing and loan agreement for the acquisition and rehabilitation of the Almondwood Apartments. Housing Programs Manager Dan Maguire introduced this resolution, explaining that the complex’s affordability is in jeopardy because of expiring cost restrictions. Staff recommended that the city assist the new owner in starting a 55-year affordable housing regulation.

“Almondwood is very much an asset to our community,” Maguire explained.

Mayor Michael Martin asked Maguire if the apartments could become market rate residences if the city didn’t step in.

Maguire told him, “Yes. Staff feels it’s a very cost effective application of our housing credits.”

Besides approving the various resolutions, the council also received public comment from Monte Molina, who wanted to voice his disapproval with the city manager and the Youth Day committee for allowing bounce houses to be placed on the new little league field. He explained that the little league program is a leasee to the city for the use of the field, and that their agreement says that usage should be mutually approved. He explained that the sod has not had time to heal completely, and that little league only uses the field for games, not practices. Mayor Martin explained that the council could not respond to public comment, but could bring this item back to a future meeting.

The council also had a presentation. Cloth Carousel presented a number of quilts to the Winters police department, which will be kept in patrol cars and handed out as needed.

Chief Bruce Muramoto accepted the quilts, praising the women who were “gracious enough to spend their time” making the quilts. He also noted that Jan Bawart, owner of Cloth Carousel, donated the materials.

Bawart said the quilts will be given out to children rescued by police in various negative situations. She said, “little kids need something to keep with them — sometimes kids are taken in with just the clothes on their backs.”

Celebrating Lake Solano

Seventy people showed up on Earth Day, April 22, for the ribbon cutting and opening of the new Visitor's Center at Lake Solano County Park on Pleasants Valley Road. The modern structure holds displays on Putah Creek flora and fauna and includes three 450-gallon aquariums with bass, catfish and trout. The project fulfills a dream of Duane Davis, the retired park ranger who lives at the site. Davis has worked to this goal for 35 years. The 5,000 square foot facility cost $2.8 million and includes offices for rangers, interpretive displays, and a meeting room. The site will be available for rent for private functions, to help pay for operations. Construction was funded in part by Solano County, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Putah Creek Discovery Corridor Cooperative.

Week long range camp planned for teens

Mark your calendars for this great opportunity! May 8 is the application deadline for "Range Camp," a week-long camp experience for students ages 15-18 who have an interest in the science and conservation of natural resources in California.

The camp, celebrating its 25th year, is put on by the California-Pacific section of the Society for Range Management. Students learn plant identification, principles of livestock and wildlife management, forestry, fire ecology, hydrology and water quality, geology and soils, and management of stream and river environments. Field activities include learning to read wildlife "signs," outdoor navigation with compasses, maps and GPS, forest management, a tour of a working ranch, and a beach BBQ.

Sessions are taught by faculty from the University of California, staff from local, state and federal agencies, and private professional scientists and natural resource management specialists. Range Camp runs from June 21-26 at the University of California's Elkus

Youth Ranch, just south of Half Moon Bay.

Information and application forms are available at <http://www.rangelands.org/casrm/rangecamps.html>. Please contact us about funding opportunities. Cost is $350. A limited number of camp scholarships are available.

This is a unique opportunity for students thinking about college to learn about university-level courses of study in agriculture and natural resources, and for students looking for job opportunities to talk with a variety of professionals whose careers touch on their areas of interest.

The Society for Range Management will send the top two campers as representatives to a national high school youth forum held concurrently with its annual science conference in Denver, Colo., February 7-11, 2010.

In addition, the Yolo County RCD will sponsor two students from Yolo County to participate in Range Camp. Please contact Sheila Pratt, 662-2037, extension 117, for sponsorship information.

Laguerre appointed new SCC Superintendent

Following a nationwide search by a 14-member selection committee, and public forums for the three final candidates, the Solano Community College District (SCCD) Governing Board appointed Dr. Jowel Laguerre as the new permanent superintendent/president during a special meeting held Wednesday evening, April 8. Dr. Laguerre will assume his responsibilities beginning on July 1.

"The elected trustees of Solano Community College District were impressed with Dr. Jowel Laguerre's extensive educational experiences and with his interview on April 1st for the position of Superintendent/President of SCCD," explains Governing Board President A. Marie Young. "Dr. Laguerre is accustomed to dealing with pressure and creating specific solutions for various problems at education institutions. His extensive accreditation experience will make him a valuable addition to SCCD as we focus on removing the district off of accreditation sanctions, while implementing our vision/mission statements and core values. I am anxiously looking forward to working with Dr. Laguerre, who is a 'seasoned' administrator, and I am confident that he will be an incredible asset to SCCD."

Laguerre is currently the Vice President for Academic Affairs at Truckee Meadows Community College (TMCC) in Nevada, which has an enrollment of over 13,000 credit students annually. During his tenure there, he has collaborated with the faculty and staff to develop, implement, evaluate and enhance planning, budgeting, community relations, diversity and accountability. He has strengthened the processes and policies for assessment of student learning and the review of programs and curricula. He has provided leadership for the college's comprehensive accreditation self-study and reports to the accreditation agency, has served as the institutional liaison for the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities, and has served as an accreditation evaluator.

Laguerre previously served as Executive Vice President for Academic and Student Services at Montgomery College (Maryland). He holds a Ph.D. in Educational Leadership (Higher Education), a M.S. Ed. in School Administration and a M.A. in French Literature from the University of Kansas.

Although talk of such a farmers market materializing in Winters has been bantered about for years, and even a few feeble starts in place, it wasn't until this year that someone took charge of the project and made it happen. That someone is Ana Kormos, the director of outreach and health education for the Winters Healthcare Foundation.

Kormos explains that the need for having easy access to local fresh produce became apparent while she was teaching nutrition courses for the WHF for Spanish-speaking diabetic patients. As she steered them away from diets of processed food toward diets full of fresh produce, and taught the patients different ways to cook these new things, she discovered that many of them had difficulty finding them nearby.

"Where do I get bok choy? Where do I get eggplant?" These are the questions many of them asked. Kormos filled that void with a $168,000 grant from the Community Clinics Initiative, a collaboration between the Tides Foundation and the California Endowment, and designed a three-fold approach to encouraging healthy nutrition. The grant helps support the continuing diabetes nutrition program, community gardens where people can grow their own food, and the brand new Winters Farmers Market.

Although Randii MacNear, coordinator for the Davis Farmers Market, has been a valuable resource for getting the Winters market started and has taken the project under her wing to help get it going, Kormos says the Winters market isn't simply a Davis Farmers Market Lite. A lot of research and public input went into the careful planning of the Winters market, including weeks of public surveys and questionnaires.

Winters residents were asked their opinion about a wide variety of things, from the best day of the week for a farmers market, to hours, to what kinds of things they'd like to buy. From that information, vendors were selected and plans for the market put in place. Kormos received additional support from the City of Winters to get the project going, and the end result of all this collaboration and research will be evident this Sunday. However, Kormos notes, it's not just enough to offer opinions, the community has to come through with support for the market if it is to succeed.

"The community has told us what it wants," says Kormos. "Now that the farmers market is here, we do need people to come out and buy things, plan their week around it, and make sure it's sustainable. The vendors have to do well to keep coming back and for the market to grow."

She points out that a weekly farmers market is more than just a place to buy fresh produce — it can become a regular community gathering spot, particularly in small town, where people know they can visit with friends and neighbors. To facilitate that friendly atmosphere, the Winters Farmers Market will also feature entertainment, beginning this Sunday with live music with the Putah Creek Crawdads from 8-10 a.m., and Arann Harris and the Greenstring Farm Band from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

To make sure that no one feels left out on the Winters Farmers Market's big day this weekend, the Winters Healthcare Foundation is offering $25 in shopping vouchers to individuals and families based on need and/or circumstance, such as unemployment, financial hardship or extreme illness.

Kormos is hoping everyone will be as enthusiastic about the local market as she is.

"I think it'll be amazing. We have some incredible vendors coming to this market that I didn't expect we'd be able to get to Winters on a Sunday. It's going to be great. Better than I imagined in the beginning."

That beginning was quite awhile back. Kormos has been working diligently on the local farmers market since July of last year. In the process, she's seen what this area has to offer and hopes everyone who comes to the market will be just as impressed.

"We have an abundance of agriculture around us. All this beautiful produce was grown right here, and it really wasn't that accessible."

Until now, thanks to the hard work of Kormos, guidance from the Davis Farmers Market, support from the city of Winters and, most important of all, community turnout and enthusiasm to keep this good thing going — that will be the "make it or break it" factor for the Winters Farmers Market.

Anyone who'd like to help make sure the new local venture gets off to a strong start is invited to the Winters Farmers Market Kickoff Party, planned for Saturday, May 2, 7-10 p.m. Advanced tickets are $12, which includes one beverage ticket and live music with the Greenstring Farm Band. All proceeds will support the voucher program, and vouchers will in turn support the market vendors.

Next ArtWalk planned for Saturday, May 2

The next Winters ArtWalk takes place on Saturday, May 2. The Winters Center for the Arts will host its annual Winters High School Art Show. This year, artists have created self-portraits and bowls.

The Pizza Factory will host a portion of the student work and reception from 6-7 p.m.

New works will be on display in the WCA gallery, featuring handcrafts and fine art from over 50 local artists.

Visitors can take a break at Steady Eddy's for a refreshment or lunch while viewing "May Flowers," new photographs by Stefanie Wastell,

"As this is my second photography exhibit at Steady Eddy's, I wanted it to be different from my first show last winter" says Wastell.

"It is obvious that I have a passion for flowers, but this time I attempted to show a little more of my creative side.

"Over the past few years I have been working toward a B.A. in graphic design and have become familiar with the amazing creative software out there.

"I decided to focus some of that creative manipulation on a selection of my favorite photographs. Just a little change of color and light and I was able to create new images and bring new life to the originals.

"Although the flowers alone have so many vibrant hues and amazing textures, I wanted to have a little fun and imagine what could be. I hope you enjoy the flowers seen through my creative eyes."

Chamber of Commerce

CHAMBER NEWS AND ACTIVITIES

April was busy month for Chamber

By NANCY MEYER
Chamber president

Your Chamber of Commerce has had a very busy month. The April Chamber Mixer was held at the Winters Participation Gallery/Center for the Arts. It was well attended and fun was had by all. Great raffle prizes were donated by 3 Palms Nursery, Pacific Ace Hardware, Chris' Florist, Ficelle, Putah Creek Café, Steady Eddy's, Tom & Carol McMaster-Stone, VeloCity, Linn Myer and First Northern Bank. Food was provided by Cody's Deli.

The Gallery is located at 18 Main Street. The hours are Thursday, 12-4 p.m.; Friday, 12-8 p.m.; Saturday, 3-8 p.m.; Sunday, 12-3 p.m. Stop by to see all the wonderful art for sale and on display.

At the April 10 board meeting, the Chamber board formed a committee to hire an executive director. We received some excellent resumes and hope to be making a final selection soon. Tom Stone has served as the Chamber's executive director for the past 18 months without being paid a dime. The Chamber and business community are very thankful to Tom for all of his time, energy and effort. Without him volunteering and stepping up to the plate, we wouldn't be in a position to hire a new director.

The board voted to send a letter to the Transmission Agency of Northern California (TANC), requesting a 90-day extension of TANC's scoping period. The main reason for sending the letter was the lack of notification to the landowners about plans to erect power lines. Several of our county and state representatives have also sent similar letters. For more information regarding the TANC project go to www.tanc.us

Youth Day was great! I have to give big thank yous to the following people for dressing up & walking in the parade as fruits and vegetables, Dave Fleming, carrot; Edmund Lis, cucumber; Chris Jones, strawberry; Stephanie LaShure, carrot; Megan Maguire, banana; Debbie LaShure, our local farmer. Also, special thank yous to Darsen Long of Winters for driving his 1948 Ford 8N tractor, and to Leslie and Glen Byrns of Davis for driving their antique Morris Mini pick-up truck that carried the Chamber banner. The group walked the parade, and the silly fruits and veggies passed out 200 Winters Farmers Market Bucks. These bucks are good for the May 3 opening day of the market.

The board arranged for Briggs & Co. to make a quality sign made for the Farmers Market. Board members Dave Fleming and Howard Hupe installed it last week on the corner of Grant Avenue and Railroad Avenue. Make sure you check it out.

Hupe, who is the chair of the Chamber's Downtown Committee and a local historian gave a lecture and overview of historical homes of Winters on April 26. This presentation was given to the Yolo County Historical Society.

New Chamber members this month are: State Farm/Andy Pignataro, Cecilla Aguiar Curry, 3 Palms Nursery/Phil Kitchen, Northern Solano County Association of Realtors, George M. Griffin Ranch/Shirlee Hailey. Thank you for supporting the Winters District Chamber of Commerce. We couldn't do all that we do without our membership.

With the challenges at Lake Berryessa, with Bureau of Reclamations funds being pulled away, Winters has seen and will continue to see a decrease in revenue. So, it is more important now than ever to shop locally.

Have a Wonderful Month!

The Winters Warriors JV baseball team won both league games last week starting with a 3-0 victory on Tuesday, April 21, over Wheatland on the road.

Jared Ney took control of the game early for the Warriors as he picked up a victory on the mound.

Ney ended the shutout with 12 strikeouts and gave up just one hit and had solid defense behind him throughout the game.

At the plate, Thomas Boswell led the Warriors batting 2 for 3 with a run scored. Ney helped himself out batting 2 for 4 with an RBI.

Ricky Salgado batted 1 for 1. Austin Murphy batted 1 for 1.

Derek Rodriguez batted 1 for 2 with an RBI. Joe McIntire batted 1 for 3 with a double, a RBI and a run scored.

Jacob Lucero had an RBI and Kevin Hyde scored a run for the Warriors.

The Warriors were back on the road on Friday, April 24, this time traveling to Sutter to take on the Huskies who had beaten them the first time around.

The Warriors looked as if they had the game handled until the bottom of the sixth. A 5-0 lead quickly changed to a 5-4 lead and the Warriors were on the edge of letting one slip away.

In the bottom of the seventh the Huskies had the bases loaded with no outs. McIntire struck out the next batter for the first out.

On the next play Lucero stopped a quick shot to third, tagged his base and threw home to Austin Calvert who tagged out the runner going home for a Warrior victory.

Boswell had another big game at the plate batting 3 for 3 with a triple and a run scored. Ney batted 2 for 4 again with a run scored.

Jesus Quirarte batted 1 for 2 with a homerun, four RBI and a run scored. Kyle Canela batted 1 for 3. Hyde batted 1 for 4 with a run scored.

Bradley Case batted 1 for 4, while McIntire scored a run for the Warriors.

The Winters Dodgers Minor League Softball team beat Esparto in true Dodger Blue spirit on April 20. They pitched two rookie pitchers, Miah Barrera and Seidi Long.

Barrera started the game, pitching one and a half innings with three strikeouts. Long came in relief to finish the second inning. Both Barrera and Long did an amazing job for their first game on the mound. Adriana Jiminez won the game with two strikeouts.

The score was 10-5 Esparto in the bottom of the third with two outs, when the Dodgers won the game off of two walk-ins, and two hits while the bases were loaded. Jiminez tied the game with a bases loaded double, and Makayla Rojas hit the clinching two out RBI single with moments to spare, winning the game, 11-10, Dodgers.

PISANI'S ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Corrales is the season leading hitter on the varsity team, with a .442 batting average and last week against Wheatland, batted 2 for 4 with three RBI and a run scored.

"Chelsea had a good game batting against Wheatland, but most importantly she has been solid on defense all season long," said coach Dan Kolda.

Waggoner student's collage wins regional poster contest

By DEBRA LO GUERCIO
Express editor

When Karina Vasquez entered the annual Fight the Bite calendar contest, she says she wasn't even thinking about winning. She just thought it would be fun. Her teacher, Maria Elena Ochoa Moreno, announced the contest to the whole class, but Karina was the only one to enter.

Using the "Seven Ds of Mosquito Prevention" as outlined by the Sacramento-Yolo Mosquito and Vector Control District (SYMVCD), which sponsors the contest, Karina's entry was a construction paper collage, featuring a little girl in a bathing suit reaching for some DEET mosquito repellent. Above her flew several hungry mosquitoes.

Karina says she learned the collage technique from her big sister, Cristina Pagano, who was on hand along with their mother, Maria Vasquez, when officials from the SYMVCD and representatives from Radio Disney AM 1470 surprised Karina's class with a visit on April 23.

Cassie Guthrie and Taylor McKillop from Radio Disney presented Karina with a stuffed Mickey Mouse and balloons, and distributed pencils and temporary tattoos to the whole class. Guthrie announced that as the winner of the contest, Karina will be going to a recording studio to be the voice in the Fite the Bite commercial that will air on Radio Disney all summer.

Next, Luz Rodriguez, from the SYMVCD, presented Karina with a huge check for $150 as the first prize-winner in the contest, which had more than 1,000 entries this year. Rodriguez said Karina's entry really stood out from all the others, and was selected for the top honors.

Rodriguez says the contest aims to increase children's awareness about preventing not only mosquito bites, but the spread of West Nile Virus. She added that by raising children's awareness the "Fight the Bite" message hopefully gets passed

Veterans, Internment Camp Internees are able to receive Honorary High School Diplomas

The Yolo County Office of Education is once again honored and proud to be able to award an honorary high school diploma to veterans of World War II, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War; along with former pupils who were interned in the United States.

A high school diploma is and always has been a symbol of accomplishment. Because of the war, or because of internment by order of the federal government, many of our veterans or fellow citizens were not able to achieve this milestone. Senate Bill 1517 allows the County Office of Education to grant high school diplomas to these individuals.

Veterans, or internees, who resided in Yolo County during these wars and would have graduated from high school, are eligible to apply for an honorary high school diploma. You may request an application to participate in "Operation Recognition" in the following ways: call Patti Robles, 668-3755 to have an application mailed to you.

The application and verification of military eligibility or honorable discharge must be received at the Yolo County Office of Education no later than May 15.

A ceremony to present these honorary diplomas is planned for Tuesday, May 26, 5:30-6:30 p.m., at the Yolo County Office of Education.

Diplomas may be awarded posthumously to the family of a veteran.

Winters Warriors clinch a share of title

By ERIC LUCERO
Express sports

The Winters Warriors took on the Wheatland Pirates on Tuesday, April 21, in Wheatland and not only came home with a 4-3 victory, they also sealed up at least a share of the Butte View League Title. The Warriors, now 20-2, will play their last two games of the regular season this week, and only need to win one game to win the BVL championship outright. The atmosphere at this game was that of a championship game, and it went down to the last inning.

Zach Higgins took the mound for the Warriors and got the win, throwing the first five innings, giving up three runs; just two earned on five hits and had five strikeouts. Kyle Tobler threw the last two innings for the save, and gave up no runs on one hit and struck out one batter.

At the plate, the Warriors totaled seven hits, with Bryan Case going 1 for 2 with a run scored and an RBI. Josh Meyers also batted 1 for 2 with an RBI. Max Van Dyke batted 1 for 2 as well. Cody Romero batted 1 for 3 with a run scored. Rocco Romero batted 1 for 4 with a run scored and an RBI. Ray McIntire batted 1 for 4 with a double and a run scored, while Tobler batted 1 for 4 for the Warriors.

On Friday, April 24, the Warriors traveled to Sutter to take on the defending section champions and beat the Huskies for the second straight time this season, something they haven't done for the last three years. The Warriors won by a score of 7-1. Tobler threw a complete game for the Warriors, giving up one run on four hits and struck out seven batters. At the plate, McIntire led the team batting 2 for 2 with two runs scored. Case batted 1 for 3 with a double, a run scored and an RBI. Cody Romero was 1 for 3 with a double. Higgins batted 1 for 4 with a double and a run scored. Van Dyke also batted 1 for 4 with a run scored and an RBI. Niko Doyle batted 1 for 4 with a run scored; Tobler went 1 for 4 for the Warriors, while Rocco Romero scored a run for the Warriors.

Golfers turn out for WHF fundraiser

Sixty four golfers stepped out in support of the Winters Healthcare Foundation (WHF) medical and dental clinics on Monday, April 20, at Yocha-De-He, the new 18 hole course at the Cache Creek Casino Resort.

John R. Martin of Double M Trucking was chair of this year's seventh annual tournament. Double M Trucking has been one of the major sponsors of the event every year since 2002.

WHF fundraising chair, RoseMarie Hendrickx, returned as event organizer. Under her stewardship six out of the seven annual golf tournaments and auctions have raised over $115,000 for the clinic programs—an accomplishment made possible through the involvement of the community, the generosity of local businesses and, of course, the enthusiasm of the golfers.

First place winners of the 2009 Tournament were the team from the Andy Pignataro State Farm Insurance Agency, Andy Pignataro, Gus Mariani and Rich and Bobby Rodriguez. Runners up were the members of the Mariani Nut Company team, John Martin, Francisco Arellano, John Buffington and Joe Jimenez.

Rich Rodriguez won the closest to the pin competition on the 16th hole, and Mitch Korcyl won the longest drive on the 11th hole.

After the tournament, players and guests enjoyed dinner with wine presented by the Berryessa Gap Winery. Diners watched the sun go down from the new “eco-friendly” club house, a state of the art building that commands a spectacular view of the entire fairway with its luminous greens, gleaming lake and landscaping that incorporates plantings of native grasses and wild flowers, and even a small vineyard.

Please join us next spring, 2010, for the 8th Annual “Swing for the Clinics” Golf Tournament at Yocha-De-He. If you don't play golf, just come for dinner!

Baseball team places second in '09'

By TOM CRISP
Special to the Express

Hopefully that will not be the headline in 2009, but it was true 100 years ago. In 1909, the Winters High baseball team was a member of the Solano County Athletic League for the first time in the school's history. Prior to that time, they had played some games, but were not part of any league. The league had existed since 1897, but Winters and Esparto just joined in February of 1909. Also in the league were Dixon, Armijo, and Vallejo. Vacaville and Benicia were members of the league, but did not have baseball teams in '09.

Winters High had high hopes going into the season. After all, they had won all five of their games in the fall season and most were not close games. They beat Vacaville 12-2, Armijo twice 15-4 and 10-2, and Dixon twice 14-5 and 5-2. Prior to 1927, when the SCAL (which included Winters High) adopted football as its fall sport, the teams played baseball in the fall and also in the spring.

With only about 45 or 50 students in the school (and probably much fewer than half being boys), it was sometimes hard to put a team together. In previous years the “high school” team was supplemented with non-high school students. In 1909, however, it was proudly proclaimed that all of the team members were now going to school. Their ages ranged from 16 to 20. It wouldn't be until 1938 when the maximum age for athletes was reduced from 20 to 19.

The pitcher for the Winters nine was Henry Rogers. He was the only pitcher listed for all of the games. Since they only played one game a week, on Saturday afternoon, it was possible to use the same pitcher in every game. “Behind the bat” was Ray McFall, who was the leading batter for the team. The Winters Express provided box scores for four of the five spring games, and McFall had 7 hits in 16 at bats for a .438 batting average. He was the only batter over .300.

Charles Elliott, stepson of livery stable owner David O. Judy, played first and was the second highest batter at .294. At second was John Brady, and at shortstop was Fred Wyatt, son of bank president Marcus O. Wyatt. Covering third was Perry Thornberry, a resident of Silveyville. Thornberry would later serve on the Winters City Council for over 20 years.

In the outfield were George Griffin, grandfather of the current Winters High principal of the same name, Vernon Gregory, and Harry Day, son of Richard Day, the drug store merchant. Also making an appearance in a couple of games as an outfielder was a player with the last name of Edwards.

As a warm-up for league play, Winters hosted Esparto in late February. Despite out-hitting their opponents six to three, Winters lost the game 8-3. It was noted that Esparto had some “post-graduate” players, but since it was only a practice game no fuss was made.

The opening league contest against Armijo the next week was postponed due wet weather, so Winters had its first league game against Vallejo on March 13th. Pitcher Rogers was brilliant as he threw a two-hitter and struck out 18 in his nine innings of work. That strikeout total is still one of the best in WHS history.

The following week Winters crushed Dixon 16-1 and then had a week off to prepare to “cross bats” with Esparto once again. Most of the games were played at 2 pm on a Saturday afternoon, but the April 3rd showdown was part of a double header. The Winters High Girls' basketball team hosted Vacaville at 1:30 p.m. on the “home court” (which was outdoors) and the baseball game followed at 3:00 p.m.

As reported in the Express, “The Esparto boys came rolling in during the forenoon in automobiles and various rigs and rooters plenty came with them. The Vacaville high school girls arrived on the noon train and both the basket ball and baseball teams were taken to the Beecher hotel, where a spread was enjoyed and good fellowship and acquaintances were kindled among the students of the three high schools.”

The day didn't start well for Winters High as the girls were soundly defeated by Vacaville, 15-3, in what was their only recorded game for the season. Early in the game Winters led 3-2 on a free throw by Emma Johnson and a field goal by Bertha Ormsby, but they would be shut out the rest of the game.

The baseball contest appeared to be anything but a battle of two undefeated teams as walks and errors led to a 3-2 lead for Winters after one inning of play. Esparto came back to tally two runs in the third inning to take the lead which they would not relinquish. The final score was 8-5 in favor of Esparto, but not without some grumbling.

“Several former decisions of [Will] Adams [umpire] during the game savored very much of bias but the decision on Strickland's cutting 2nd and 3rd was clearly unfair. Strickland cut the base and does not deny it.” The reference was to a common practice of the day of a runner trying to short cut their path around the bases when the umpires back was turned.

Winters finished out the season with an 8-3 victory the next week over Armijo in their rainout makeup game. That put their league record at 3-1, one game behind Esparto at 4-0. More research is needed to determine the standings of the other three teams. Including the fall season, Winters had an 8-2 record for the year.

Medicine can help heartburn

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: In 2004, I had a scope put down my throat and into my stomach. The doctor said I had a hiatal hernia and signs of acid reflux. He put me on Prilosec. It stops my heartburn very well. I have been on it ever since. If I miss two doses, the heartburn returns. Is it safe to take this medicine for long periods of time? — L.K.

ANSWER: Prilosec (omeprazole), Aciphex, Protonix, Nexium and Prevacid are proton-pump inhibitors, the strongest medicines for decreasing stomach acid production. The manufacturers of these medicines suggest a four-to-eight-week course of medicine. The medicines don't cure heartburn. They suppress it as long as a person takes them. So what's a person to do when heartburn returns after a course of therapy? Another kind of medicine, like Zantac, can be used. Common antacids often work. Avoiding foods that stimulate acid production is another way to control symptoms.

However, if acid reflux is severe, then the proton-pump medicines are the best. Evidence suggests that long-term use might make a person more apt to have a hip fracture. That danger can be partially offset by taking calcium and vitamin D. Many people remain on these medicines for extended periods. You have to make this decision for yourself.

The booklet on hiatal hernia, acid reflux and heartburn focuses primarily on the common heartburn problem and its treatment. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 501W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I would like to know about the side aches I get when I walk or run. Why do they occur? Do I walk them off or take a break until they go away? — E.H.

ANSWER: What you call side aches, others call side stitches. Everyone gets them. Some feel they are spasms of the diaphragm — the large, thin muscle that serves as a partition between the chest and abdominal cavities and the muscle that is the principal breathing muscle. Or they might be due to too much food or fluid in the digestive tract. Some believe a decreased blood flow to the diaphragm is the cause. In truth, no one knows.

One way to get rid of them is to raise both your arms overhead while taking a deep breath. Then lower your arms while exhaling and simultaneously contracting your abdominal muscles. Another favored treatment is to bend the knee on the side of the pain while pressing your fingers into the painful area.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have what doctors call black hairy tongue. Can you tell me about it? — Anon.

ANSWER: Black hairy tongue, aside from its looks, is an innocent condition that comes from the elongation of tongue papillae, tiny projections from the tongue's surface. Gently brushing the tongue three times a day with toothpaste, baking soda or 3 percent hydrogen peroxide can usually get rid of it. If it's not gone in a month, return to the dentist or doctor for a follow-up exam.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Why I missed Youth Day

By MOLLY DAVIS
Staff writer

It's 5 minutes after 6 p.m. here in the old Express office, and for whatever reason, no one wrote a column for the Features page. Usually we'd dig through the columns that come with our King Features (the same people who tell you what your future holds in Salome's Stars, and what's plaguing you in that Dr. Donohue column), but there was nothing there, either. So Charley suggested I write a column entitled "Why I missed Youth Day." So here you go.

This would've been my first Youth Day here in Winters, as I moved here last June. I've experienced an Earthquake Street Festival — heck, I even helped pour beer and sell tickets. I assume that Youth Day was similar, but I expect to have a lot of people tell me about all the differences. Go ahead, I've perfected a blank stare that makes people think I'm paying attention while I'm really thinking about what I'm going to eat for dinner (probably something from Chuy's).

Anyway, I had an excellent reason for missing Youth Day, thank you very much. One of my best friends from SoCal (where I'm originally from) turned 30, and had a lovely birthday party out in Indio. The Hottest Boyfriend in the Entire World (hey, if Debra can refer to Joe as The Cutest Man on Earth, or whatever she calls him, I can call my boyfriend Dave something equally adorable. At least I don't refer to him as my "Permanent Tenant!") drove us down, and we stayed at my mom's house in Yucaipa for the weekend.

I had a great time. It was wonderful to see J.J. and help her celebrate three decades of life. I got to spend time with my other friends, including my BFFIB, Kerri (that would be my Best Friend Forever in Boston, as opposed to Meghan, my BFFIW, or Best Friend Forever in Winters), who flew out as a surprise.

What was really adorable, though, and totally worth missing Youth Day for, was seeing The Cutest Baby That Ever Lived (this doesn't get old, does it?), my nephew, Evan. He's the pride and joy of our family, a nine-month-old bundle of smiles. He's my tubby little guy, and thankfully, he took to Dave immediately, alternately grabbing his mohawk and lip ring. Don't do anything important on July 12, Winters, because that's the little guy's first birthday, and you can bet that I'll be there to dote over him and snap pictures of him throwing cake at my brother and sister-in-law.

Lastly, I happily missed Youth Day in order to spend time with my mother, whom I adore. You can't not love my mom. She's awesome, and furthermore, she bought me three new pairs of shoes, a purse and a dress. And gave me a bunch of cookware and whatnot for my new apartment. My mom has gone through a variety of nicknames over the years, from Home Skillet to Ma. Now every time I call her, our standard greeting is "Hey, lady," though I refer to her as "my mom" when talking to anyone other than my brother or sister.

In summary, I had a great time in my old 'hood (Yucaipa, in case you needed specifics) seeing my beloved family and friends, and taking a little road trip with Hot Boyfriend. I have no regrets missing Youth Day whatsoever...although I would've enjoyed seeing my BFFIW in a banana costume.

Oh well. There's always next year.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might need to do a bit more investigating before making a career move. You do best when you come armed with the facts. A personal matter still needs tending to.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your creativity plus your good business sense once more combine to give you an important advantage in a difficult workplace situation. An ally proves his or her loyalty.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Avoid rushing into something just because it offers a break from your usual routine. Take things a step at a time to be sure you're moving in the right direction.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Bouncing back from a disappointing incident isn't easy, but you should find a welcome turn of events emerging. Spend the weekend with someone special.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) An incomplete project needs your attention before someone else takes it over and uses it to his or her advantage. There'll be lots of time for fun and games once you get it done.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Doubts involving a potential career change need to be resolved quickly so they don't get in the way when you feel you're finally ready to make the big move.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Looking to blame someone for a workplace problem could backfire if it turns out you've got the wrong "culprit." Best to get more facts before acting on your assumptions.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Patience might still be called for until you're sure you finally have the full story that eluded you up till now. A trusted associate could offer valuable guidance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Look into your recent behavior to see if you could have caused the coolness you might now be sensing from a loved one. If so, apologize and set things straight.

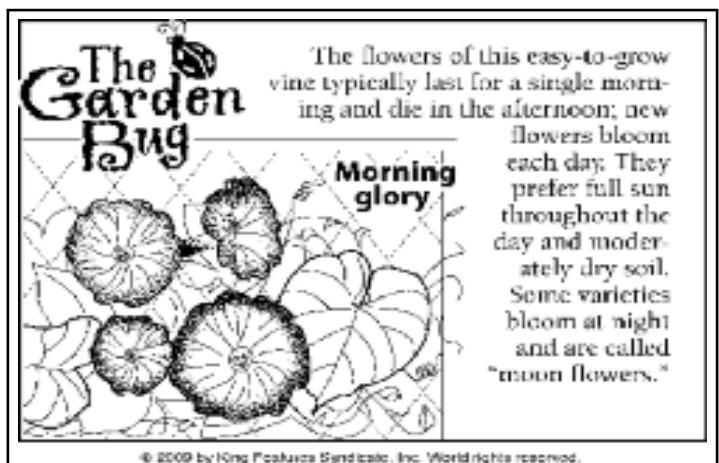

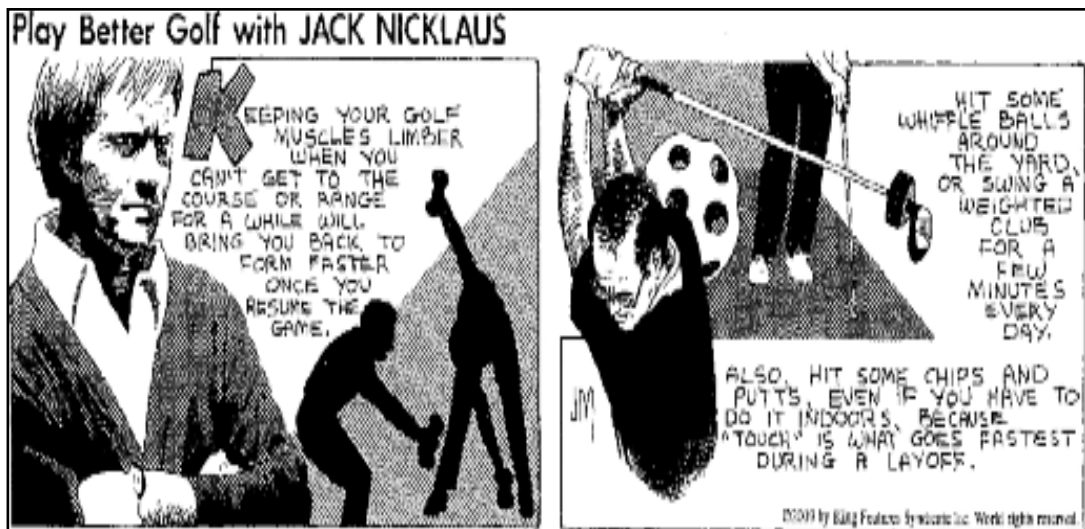

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Easing up on your social activities allows you to focus more of your energies on a long-neglected personal matter. You can get back into party mode by the weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A dispute with a colleague can be resolved peacefully once you both agree to be more flexible about the positions you've taken and allow for more open-minded discussions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Volunteering to take on added responsibilities could be a risky way to impress the powers that be. Do it only if you're sure you won't be swept away by the extra workload.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your sense of self-awareness allows you to make bold moves with confidence.

¿Qué es la influenza?

Es una enfermedad de las vías respiratorias causada por un virus extremadamente contagioso, existen tres tipos diferentes de virus (A, B, C) los cuales pueden mutar (cambiar), y existen varios subtipos. Es más frecuente en otoño e invierno. Es importante por que afecta a todas las edades, y en mutaciones importantes del virus suele causar complicaciones graves e incluso la muerte en un gran número de personas, frecuentemente niños y ancianos.

El resfriado común no es igual a la influenza que la Influenza, aunque ambas son enfermedades respiratorias agudas y tienen síntomas comunes, el microorganismo que causa la Influenza es diferente al que causa el resfriado o gripe común.

La influenza se puede contagiar de persona a persona a través de las secreciones de nariz y boca (toser, estornudar, hablar, cantar) o por contacto directo (las manos, cuando el enfermo no se las lava, los besos). Es muy contagiosa (3-7 días una vez que inician los síntomas) y de mayor riesgo cuando ocurre en lugares cerrados (estancias, guarderías infantiles, escuelas, asilos, albergues, entre otros). Se estima que ante una epidemia esta podría recorrer el mundo en un periodo de 3 a 6 meses. Los síntomas de la enfermedad son inicio súbito (el enfermo recuerda muy bien el momento de inicio) con fiebre, dolor de cabeza, dolor intenso de músculos y articulaciones, cansancio excesivo, lagrimeo, dolor de garganta y tos.

Para diagnosticar la enfermedad es necesario que un médico lo estudie para realizar un examen clínico detallado e investigue antecedentes de otros enfermos, contactos y viajes. El diagnóstico se realiza mediante la identificación del virus en secreciones de nariz o laringe (aislamiento viral) durante las primeras 24-72 horas de iniciada la enfermedad, o mediante el estudio de sangre para identificar anticuerpos.

Un cuadro de influenza no tratado adecuadamente o asociado a otra enfermedad no controlada puede generar complicaciones, principalmente respiratorias (otitis, sinusitis, rinitis, neumonía, bronconeumonía, laringitis obstructiva), cardíacas o incluso la muerte, esto se observa frecuentemente cuando ocurren grandes brotes o epidemias. Es necesario vigilar a los niños ya que si reciben tratamiento con ácido acetilsalicílico pueden presentar encefalitis.

La influenza es causada por un virus, para los cuales no existe tratamiento, sin embargo hay medicamentos que hacen la enfermedad más soportable, la acorta y disminuye los síntomas, siempre y cuando se administren durante las primeras 48 horas de la enfermedad. Los medicamentos son de uso delicado, sólo el médico está capacitado para determinar si deben administrarse a un paciente, ya que no están exentos de efectos secundarios.

Existe una vacuna que se ha referido como la mejor forma de prevenir la Influenza, ésta se prepara cada año considerando los tipos de virus circulantes en el mundo, es bien tolerada pero no debe aplicarse a personas con alergia a las proteínas del huevo, con antecedente de reacción grave a la vacuna o que hubiera padecido Síndrome de Guillain-Barré (seis semanas antes de la vacunación).

Se debe aplicar a toda la población antes de la temporada invernal, sin embargo existen grupos de riesgo prioritarios como son pacientes con enfermedades que afectan el sistema inmune, enfermedades cardiovasculares, metabólicas y renales. En los mayores de 65 años de edad con EPOC, diabetes mellitus, enfermedades cardiovasculares y asma. Mujeres embarazadas con alto riesgo (adolescentes, diabetes gestacional, preeclampsia, eclampsia, embarazos en múltiparas).

Las recomendaciones generales son: Abrigarse y evitar cambios bruscos de temperatura. Comer frutas y verduras ricas en vitamina A y C (zanahoria, papaya, guayaba, naranja, mandarina, lima, limón y piña). Lavarse las manos con frecuencia, principalmente después de tener contacto con enfermos. Evitar exposición a contaminantes ambientales, no fumar en lugares cerrados ni cerca de niños, ancianos o personas enfermas.

A los enfermos se les pide permanecer en casa, evite acudir a centros de trabajo, escuelas o lugares donde exista concentración de personas (teatros, cines, bares, autobuses, discotecas, fiestas, etc.). Esto evitará que otros se infecten a través de usted. Cúbrase boca y nariz con un pañuelo al hablar, toser, estornudar. Esto evitará que las personas a su alrededor se enfermen.

Evite tocarse ojos, boca y nariz ya que el virus se disemina cuando una persona toca algún objeto contaminado y luego se toca los ojos, boca o nariz. La influenza se puede prevenir mediante la aplicación de una vacuna que se prepara según el tipo de virus circulante en el mundo), es necesario vacunarse cada año. Evite el polvo, humo del tabaco y otras sustancias que pueden interferir con la respiración y que hace a los niños más propensos a enfermarse.

Servicios de la ciudad de Winters

En la segunda de una serie de presentaciones ofrecidas por el comité hispano de la ciudad de Winters, la ciudad de Winters se enfocara en presentar los servicios de los diferentes departamentos que componen la ciudad. Cada departamento ofrecerá una breve descripción de los servicios que ofrecen. Además se podrán contestar preguntas tales como ¿Necesito obtener un permiso para instalar un sistema de riego? ¿En donde pago mi recibo del agua? ¿A quien llamo si veo actividades sospechosas en mi vecin-dario?

Los departamentos en la ciudad son: Servicios administrativos, programa de recreación y el programa después de la escuela, planeación y construcción, finanzas, vivienda, policía y trabajos públicos.

La noche de información tendrá lugar el lunes 4 de mayo a las 7 p.m. En la sala de juntas de la ciudad, la información se traducirá en inglés y en español. Habrá bebidas, para más información puede llamar a Dawn Van Dyke, 795-4910 ext. 108, o Mary Jo Rodolfa, 795-4910 ext. 111.

Encontrar hora de ejercitar es importante

La mayoría de las personas al recomendarles que deben hacer ejercicios, lo primero que se preguntan es: ¿De dónde voy a sacar el tiempo? ¿Cómo voy a pagar el gimnasio? ¿Quién me puede entrenar en un deporte? ¿Cómo establecer la disciplina? Aunque algunos tengan la buena voluntad muchos sucumben antes de intentarlo debido a que no logran resolver los anteriores interrogantes.

Sin embargo esto no debe ser un motivo para sentirse frustrado. Hoy se ha hace evidente que no es necesario ingresar a un gimnasio ni pasar largas jornadas haciendo spinning o salir corriendo por los parques de la ciudad para cumplir con la cuota de ejercicio que se recomienda para estar saludables.

Sólo basta caminar. Aunque se trata de una actividad que muchos pasan por alto, los médicos han llegado a la conclusión de que una caminata diaria no sólo es una excelente alternativa sino tal vez una opción mejor que otras formas de ejercicio. Es comparada a una píldora mágica. Caminar a un ritmo de dos a tres millas por hora en forma continua durante 45 minutos puede mantener alejadas enfermedades tan graves como infarto del corazón, derrames cerebrales y diabetes. También puede disminuir entre 30 y 50 por ciento la posibilidad de aparición de enfermedades como cáncer de seno, osteoporosis, impotencia, diabetes y depresión. Un estudio demostró que aquellas personas que caminaban fuertemente tres veces a la semana durante tres horas redujeron su riesgo de ataque cardíaco y derrame cerebral entre 30 y 40 por ciento.

Hacerlo es muy fácil. Prácticamente todo el mundo está en condiciones de caminar. No se necesita preparar grupos de músculos pues estos ya están dispuestos, a diferencia del ciclismo u otras disciplinas, en las que se requiere entrenamiento previo para fortalecer ciertas áreas del cuerpo. Pero, además, es una actividad que genera muy poco riesgo. Desde los más jóvenes hasta las personas de edad pueden hacerlo sin que se afecten sus articulaciones o ligamentos, lo cual sí se podría presentar en ejercicios de más alto impacto, como el tenis, el ciclismo o incluso con sólo trotar, una actividad que deja a muchas personas con problemas de rodillas.

Un estudio demostró que caminar a una velocidad de 3 millas por hora o más requería un gasto de energía tan alto como el que se exige cuando la persona corre o trota. Estos gastos de energía fueron asociados con mejor ritmo cardíaco, mejor respiración y respuesta metabólica. El beneficio que se observa es a largo plazo y después de 40 minutos diarios. Con caminar sólo 20 minutos no se logra el impacto suficiente.

De igual manera mejora el nivel de colesterol en la sangre, debido a que durante el ejercicio el organismo segrega una proteína llamada HDL, más conocida como el colesterol bueno. Esta proteína se fija en el colesterol malo y lo transporta hacia otras partes del organis-

Festival de la Tierra

El segundo festival anual de la tierra se celebrara en el Parque Rotario el domingo 7 de junio de las 10 a.m. a las 2 p.m. Podrá darse una vuelta por el parque y visitar los puestos con información y productos enfocados en la conservación de la energía, alternativas en los medios de transportación, reciclables y vivienda. El mercado de Winters estará en el parque de las 8 a.m. a 1 p.m. Ofreciendo deliciosa comidas y frutas y verduras cultivadas en nuestra comunidad.

Los niños van a poder visitar el estudio móvil de arte RECRATE, donde podrán hacer trabajos manuales con materiales reciclados. Los talleres serán ofrecidos por los jardineros maestros del condado de Yolo, y la música estará a cargo de un grupo musical del Colegio Comunitario de Sacramento. El evento esta patrocinado por la ciudad de Winters. Para mas información o para poder rentar un espacio puede comunicarse con: Dawn Van Dyke 795-4910 ext. 108 o Carol Scianna 795-4910 ext. 115.

cada día mejoró los síntomas de esta enfermedad más rápido que las drogas antidepresivas.

Al igual que con todos los ejercicios es difícil mantenerse. Por lo cual se recomienda tener buenos zapatos, ponerle hora fija a las salidas, llevar un diario con los progresos y establecer metas. Otros recomiendan simplemente salir y caminar 10 minutos. Con el regreso ya habrán sido 20. Así, poco a poco, se podrá establecer una rutina que con el tiempo, aseguran, será muy difícil detener.
