School board asked to define 'new direction'

By JULIA McCANDLESS
Staff writer

As the 2009/10 school year has come to an end, focus at the July 1 school board meeting shifted to the significant changes that next year holds.

Several district staff members expressed their frustration with a lack of communication from Superintendent Rebecca Gillespie regarding the district's mysterious "new direction" for Winters High School.

Counselor Marcella Heredia said the lack of information given to her about any changes the district hopes to implement has her worried, and she asked for the new direction to be explained.

"I feel like I'm at the back of the bus, she's (Gillespie) driving it, and I don't know where we're going," Heredia said.

"Tell us what your vision is," said Traci Calvert about the district's new direction.

Trustee Robyn Rominger admitted that she was also unclear about the new direction.

"I'm curious, too, about what the new direction is," said Rominger, who responded to both Heredia and Calvert by requesting that the issue be placed on the next meeting's agenda.

Debbie Hemenway additionally requested that the board look into airing meetings on public access television to allow all community members the opportunity to watch the meetings.

"We have got to do something about the perception among a fair number of people within the district and within the community that this board is not open," Hemenway said.

Rominger said she was in support of public access recordings, and the board expressed interest in looking further into the issue.

Alcohol sales focus of special meeting

The Winters Planning Commission will take a closer look at the city's ordinances regarding alcohol sales in the downtown area at a special meeting on Tuesday, July 13, at 5 p.m. in council chambers at City Hall, and may amend the ordinance following a public hearing and discussion.

The meeting will begin with a public hearing regarding a parcel map application for the dedication of right-of-way for the Walnut Lane re-alignment project and splitting one lot into two new lots at 101 East Grant Avenue.

A second public hearing will be focus on the possible amendment of the city's ordinance regarding alcoholic beverage establishments.

City staff have received inquiries from potential business owners concerning the city's regulations governing alcoholic beverage establishments in the central business district, which is also known as the Downtown Form Based Code area as de-

Rash of vandalism continues

By DEBRA DeANGELO
Express editor

The steady pace of vandalism continues in Winters, as evidenced in this week's police report (page A-2). Besides $500 in damage after someone threw a rock through a window at the Community Center and an unknown amount of damage to repair a fence sprayed with graffiti at St. Anthony Parish Hall, Winters school campuses were hard hit once again.

The equipment storage sheds at the Winters High School baseball diamond and the Shirley Rominger Intermediate School softball diamond were both broken into and ransacked. At the high school garden equipment and sprinklers were stolen, and the shed was spray-painted with graffiti, resulting in $370 in damage. At the Rominger campus, the damage to the shed itself came to $200.

Windows were also broken in the high school lunchroom, causing $300 in damage, and also at the high school band room. The band room was additionally ransacked, resulting in $300 worth of damages.

A brick was also thrown through a window at Waggoner Elementary School, causing $250 in damage.

All together, vandals cost the Winters School District $1,420 in property damage between June 27 and July 5, about the span of one week. The figure does not include staff time necessary to make the repairs. This comes at a time when the Winters School District is struggling to make ends meet during budgetary shortfalls, cutbacks and staff layoffs.

Anyone with information about these incidents can call the Winters Police Department, 795-2261. Anyone witnessing a crime in progress should call 795-4561 or 911.

Helen Hatsumi Hiramatsu

Helen Hiramatsu was born in Winters on March 15, 1921, to Johachi and Miya Nishikawa, and graduated from Winters High School in 1938 with highest honors. After school, she worked as a hairdresser in San Francisco, but after World War II broke out, she was interned with her family in Amache, Colo. In 1943, she married Roy Hiramatsu and, while he was in the service and stationed overseas, she attended business school and later worked for the government in Washington, D.C. After the war, she and Roy returned to Winters to farm, and for 62 years they enjoyed a happy and productive life together until Roy's death in 2006. In 2007, Helen was diagnosed with colon cancer, and she bravely fought that disease for more than three years. She passed away peacefully at her home in Winters on June 29, 2010, surrounded by family and friends.

Helen dearly loved her life on the farm; spending time with family and friends; visiting Japan; her Buddhist faith; her yoga practice; and the many gifts of each day. Those who knew her remember her kind, gracious and inspirational nature; her joyful spirit; and her deep love and pride for her family.

She leaves behind her son, Dennis, and daughter-in-law, Julie; her daughter, Julie; her daughter-in-law, Virginia, and granddaughter, Suzanne; her sister, Maizie; and many loving family members.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Roy; her eldest son, Ron; her sisters, Hattie and Mitzie; and her brother, George.

A memorial service is planned at 11 a.m. Thursday, July 8, at the Buddhist Church of Sacramento, 2401 Riverside Blvd., Sacramento. In lieu of flowers and gifts, a donation to the American Cancer Society or to the Yolo Hospice would be most appreciated.

Budget concerns

With a dwindling budget and a state economic crisis staring the Winters District in the face, trustees approved Senate Constitutional Amendment 6, which would reduce the two-thirds vote requirement on parcel taxes to a 55 percent voter approval.

Trustee Matt Brickey was the only board member opposed to the decision, explaining that he felt that increased district revenue should be the state's responsibility, rather than fall on the shoulders of taxpayers. School District Executive Assistant Laura Smith confirmed that the district currently has no plans to implement a parcel tax, and that this decision is a cautionary action in case of future need.

The board also approved the temporary borrowing between funds for the 2010/11 school year, as a result of more deferrals of the District Revenue Limit payments. Any borrowing between funds shall be repaid in the same fiscal year when the funds are available. Chief Business Officer, Gloria Hahn explained the need for the borrowing.

“We don't want to be in a situation where we run out of cash and payroll. This is a kind of protection,” Hahn said.

Attendance

The 11th month Attendance Report was issued at 95.9 percent, which is more than the original projection. The district lost a reported $19,503 in excused/unexcused absences in the 11th month and a total of $482,583 for the entire year. Hahn said that while great, the financial loss is average compared with other years.

The Annual Report of Attendance was also issued as 1,591, which is a decrease of 4 ADA. The decrease is 36 ADA less than the 2008/09 annual ADA and will generate less California State Lottery funds in the coming year.

The next school board meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 5, at 6:30 p.m. in the Walnut Room at the school district office, 909 W. Grant Avenue.

Property values still falling

Yolo County Assessor Joel Butler released the 2010/11 tax roll last week, confirming the largest decline in Yolo County property since Proposition 13 was passed in 1978. The results are a net decrease to the Yolo County tax roll of almost 2 percent to a value of $19,873,514,684.

“In recognition of the declining home prices, staff has been diligently working for months to review more than 21,000 properties for possible decreases in value,” said Butler.

More than 16,000 properties are being assessed below their Proposition 13 Factored Base Year Value. This year, residential properties in most areas of the county that had been purchased since January 2001 were reviewed. The reduction to this year's roll was partially offset by new construction, properties changing ownership that had older base year values and agricultural properties.

In a historic first since Proposition 13 was passed, the inflation factor for properties at their Proposition 13 value declined by about one quarter percent with the result that all remaining properties in the county will receive a reduction, even though it may be minor.

The city of Davis fared best, increasing by a modest 0.36 percent over 2009/10. This is reflective of the slow growth of housing especially during the boom years. Homes in Davis have not experienced the magnitude of declines as West Sacramento (-2.6 percent), Woodland (-4.7 percent) and Winters (-10.5 percent).

“Home values have declined and foreclosures are up, but not to the same extent as in some neighboring counties,” said Butler. “This is a tribute to the leadership within Yolo County that works to preserve the quality of life for its residents. Employees have done a tremendous job in reviewing home values to help avoid the need for filing appeals.”

Online property values are available at www.yolocounty.org/index.aspx?page=1603. The Assessor Parcel Number or street address will be required to access parcel information.

A Fourth with no fireworks?

A July without the Fourth isn't a July at all. When I found out that Winters wouldn't be holding their annual fireworks show or their pancake breakfast, I was beyond shocked. I was at a loss for words. In fact, I was looking for the right words to say because not only is it a sign of our dismal times it's also a sign of losing heart. Have we forgotten how to be patriotic?

The 4th of July isn't just a time for picnics and summer clothes or camping on the weekend. It's America's birthday. Why shouldn't we celebrate the land we call home?

Sure, we are in a recession. Budget cuts are everywhere. California is feeling the effects. We all are. Everyone I know is being thrifty somehow, somehow. Cancelling the events is understandable from a financial point of view.

But from the big picture, it's outrageous. How could we let this slide by with just a shrug of our shoulders? Throughout history, Americans have been able to make ends meet. Victory gardens, painting on pantyhose, gas stamps — all are examples of past acts of patriotism. So where is that spirit now, when we need it the most?

The fireworks aren't just pretty to look at. Over the years, they have become a symbol for our country visibly showing our spirit and the ability we as Americans share to survive any hardship. Gathering on the football field as a small town in a big state in an even bigger world makes us feel as one. Makes us feel like family. Everybody shares in that moment, no matter our background or our beliefs. We look up at the sky and smile.

I think we should all take a step back and think about our actions. Last year, we should have chipped in, this year we should have put up a challenge. Or put up a check.

How much money a day do we spend on soda, chips and trivial things that cost less than five dollars? Exactly. Winters can afford it. Why travel to Dixon to share in something we can have at home?

It's for our little ones, our elders and ourselves, because lately I've been getting the vibe that being patriotic is a thing of the past and if that's the case what's to come of our future?

Swimming saves money and health

Earlier this year I decided to get involved in the Masters swim program. I had visited the pool last year and finally decided to join this year.

At the time it seemed like it was a lot of money, but now that I am a regular daily workout swimmer. I have changed my eating habits and furthermore have saved a significant amount of money.

I no longer drink sodas, which saves about one to three dollars a day. I no longer eat junk food so there is more savings. Also when I eat out, I make healthier food choices and eat less, which results in more savings. (I won't mention the alcohol.)

To date, I have lost almost 30 pounds, which has changed my physique, and my stamina to a level that I never thought would happen.

Swimming is the best exercise I have discovered, and I'm glad to have made this discovery. It's a no-impact workout on your joints, and it really works your lungs and full body (every muscle in your body).

It's amazing the workout you can get from swimming. I recommend everybody give it a try. This year I'm getting ready to turn 50 years old (that's 18 + 32 years experience), and I'm currently in the best shape of my life. I'm not as flexible as when I was young but doing very well, thanks to my discovery of Masters swimming.

I want you to hear my story because the City Aquatics Programs need some help in the monetary way. Just because it's a Masters swim program doesn't mean you have to be any kind of a special swimmer. The program is geared for all swimming abilities.

When I first started, I was only able to swim a couple of laps. Now, about six weeks later, I am able to swim an entire 60-minute workout. It is amazing.

What I really like about the Masters swim program is that you always have a coach on deck who is working with you and encouraging you to do what you can and maybe help you discover that you can do even more than you thought you could. It really helps to have a coach giving you interesting swim sets, helping you with your stroke technique, and helping you become a better swimmer.

I have surprised myself by experiencing what I am able to do in the pool. Earlier in the month I swam a 200-yard freestyle (eight lengths without stopping) in 4:34. Recently I swam the same distance in 3:24, over a minute faster. On June 12, I competed in the Lake Berryessa Open Water Swim event and completed the one-mile swim in rough water. It was a blast. On June 27 I went to Lake Sonoma to swim the two-mile open water course. I am hooked on swimming!

Joining the Masters swimming program is the best thing that has ever happened to me. One of the only downsides to joining this program is that I've had to buy a bunch of new clothes because my old clothes are too big, but it's an expense I'm really happy to have.

So, I suggest you come on down to the pool, give it a try, and say hello to us. This program costs me about $2.50 per day, and I've saved about $7+ per day eating better, so this program actually gives back money to my checkbook.

We invite anyone interested (18 years and older) to stop by the pool and visit us. We are a non-profit group trying to keep the pool open in these hard times.

A QUICK OPINION

SUMMER HAS ARRIVED. I was too afraid to see what would happen when all the out of town people set up their tables and chairs to view the "Annual Winters Fireworks Display," only to watch a dark sky, so I headed for Ripon for the 4th of July.

It had to be disappointing for those who like coming to Winters for an evening out and had to scramble to Vacaville or Dixon to get their fix of bright lights and loud noises.

In the past, they would buy their fireworks from our local fireworks vendors, the Winters Little League and the Winters Swim Team, and set them off after the community fireworks display. I wonder what the Little League and swim team sales will be like next year if we don't have professional fireworks and everyone knows it?

One solution to funding the fireworks might be for Little League and the swim team to sponsor the fireworks display at the high school. I'm not sure if they can raise $10,000 (that's what the fireworks cost last year), but by reviving the pancake breakfast, or coming up with a new fundraiser and passing the hat, their sponsorship wouldn't cost them much. They could ask for donations at their booths, which could add a lot to the cause.

Just a thought.

Biking to raise funds to fight breast cancer

On Saturday, July 17, at 9 a.m. Mike and Cyndy Mulhern will be making a stop in her hometown, Winters, in the parking lot at Ficelle. Mike and Cyndy, who live in Sacramento, drove their motor home to Boston, Massachusetts in May.

Cyndy did the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer on May 15 and 16. She rested, and on Tuesday, May 18, Mike dipped the back tire of his bicycle in the Atlantic Ocean at the Boston Harbor and began his journey across the United States to help raise money and awareness for Breast Cancer.

They will be in Winters on July 17 to be cheered on by friends and family, hopefully raise more money to donate, and continue on to San Francisco, where Mike will end his journey by dipping his front tire in the Pacific Ocean.

Please come out and cheer them on, encourage them and, if you can, donate to this very worthy cause.

There was hardly any sleep taking place in this so-called sleep study

The most recent of my Adventures With Insomnia was a so-called sleep study last week. Ironically, there was very little sleep involved. It's profoundly difficult for me to sleep in my own bed under perfect conditions, so I knew going into this that the chances of me sleeping in a strange environment hooked to a bunch of wires while someone videotapes and watches me all night were pretty much zero.

Despite all odds, I managed to doze off long enough to establish that I don't have sleep apnea. My doc wanted to check that out after I told her that my husbie insists that I stop breathing at night. Maybe I misunderstood him. Maybe he said he wished I'd stop breathing, because I'm so insanely difficult to sleep with.

Now to be fair, I'm only difficult when everything isn't exactly the way I like it. I'm a ridiculously light sleeper and a chronic insomniac, so I need everything to be perfect. All the lights must be out (and no digital clocks — much too bright), and no noise louder than a cat's paws on carpet.

The person in bed with me must not sneeze, twitch, roll over, touch me, get up to go to the bathroom or breathe louder than a field mouse. S/he must also never be awake, because I'll pick up that awake vibe like a radio receiver and zing back to consciousness.

I need an extra pillow to cuddle, and my little sound machine that plays ocean waves, and my Swami Jnaneshvara Bharati's "Yoga Nidra" CD handy in the player for emergency backup. (Note: No movement or sound allowed during the CD. It interrupts my intense concentration on relaxing.) Also, the blankets and sheets can't be wrinkled or rumpled in any way. I have that "Princess and the Pea" thing going on. Wrinkles and rumples annoy my delicate skin.

A few more requirements: The neighbors can't run their pool filter at night or leave the porch light on, or my eyelids will snap open.

DEBRA DeANGELO
BECAUSE I SAY SO

And barking dogs? Is it wrong to fantasize about stabbing them in the neck?

I don't think these simple guidelines are too much to ask for. I could sleep with me under these conditions just fine. In fact, I'd spoon me all night. Sadly, the sleep study lab fell somewhat short of my criteria.

I arrived around dusk, and the soothingly chipper lab tech, Mary, told me what would transpire as she glued electrodes to my head, face, chest and legs, a little microphone to my throat, and wrapped strings of tubes under my nostrils and lips to detect nose vs. mouth breathing. Then she strapped two tight elastic bands around my chest and waist. My inner Princess was writhing.

She braided my hair into a little top-not, onto which she clipped the wires attached to my head, then roped the dangling wires all together and slung them over my shoulder like a long, freaky sci-fi ponytail, and plugged them into a small electric box. Go to the bathroom? No problem. Just unplug the box itself, and take it and your chapel-length electronic veil right along with you to the bathroom. Piece of cake.

Uh-huh.

Before tucking me in, she reminded me to sleep on my back. Not likely, I said. I never sleep on my back. I need to be on my right side with my left knee bent and my left hand tucked under my chin, and my right arm straight out under my head. That is "The" sleeping position. She warned me she'd probably have to prompt me over the speaker to sleep on my back at some point. That's going to be so very much worse than a porch light.

Turns out, lying on my back wasn't so huge an issue because I was wide awake most of the time, what with the room's box air conditioner roaring on and off, and people talking and banging doors in the hallway. The heck with back-sleeping. If I had any hopes of a rendez-vous with the Sandman, I'd have to curl into The Position. Which was not electrode-friendly. Mary was in and out of the room all night replacing the electrodes that kept popping off.

OK, OK, I'll try to sleep on my back. And the minute my brain would relax, that air-conditioner would rumble back on. Around 4 a.m., I couldn't take it any more. The air conditioner must die. I gathered up my wires and my box, unplugged myself, and went to fumble with the thermostat. In moments, Mary was at my side, concerned because I'd disappeared from the video screen and the computer monitors had flatlined. Which can be a drag.

Relieved that I had neither hung myself in the closet with the wires nor escaped, Mary listened sympathetically to my whining about the noise as she tucked me back into bed like a sleepwalking toddler. She rearranged all my wires, put extra tape on the electrodes, plugged me back in and encouraged me to try to sleep in any position I could.

Wonder of wonders, without that jet engine kicking in every 30 minutes, I dozed off at last. Until 5:30 a.m., when the test ended and Mary woke me up.

She peeled off my wiry entrapments and told me the doctor would be in touch with my results soon. But I already know what he'll say: "You have difficulty sleeping." Right back where I started. I guess that's karma. Or gestalt. Or something. I'll figure it out after I get some sleep.

Fighting breast cancer from sea to shining sea

By MIKE MULHERN
Special to the Express

On May 18, I dipped the back wheel of my bicycle in the Atlantic Ocean, symbolizing the start of my ride across the United States. The purpose of this ride is to raise money for breast cancer research and awareness, with all proceeds going to the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer Foundation.

My final destination is San Francisco's Chrissy Field, where I will be dipping my front wheel in the Pacific Ocean to signify the end of our journey across this beautiful country and where I got the idea to do this ride in the first place.

There are many reasons, unfortunately, that I am riding my bicycle from Boston to San Francisco. My mother was diagnosed with breast cancer many years ago, and eventually passed away from ovarian cancer. My sister had a double mastectomy in 1999. My aunt and my wife's aunt have been diagnosed and treated for breast cancer as well.

Maybe the most important reason for this ride didn't even result in a diagnosis. Over the past two years, my wife has had two scares; two lumps with atypical cells were discovered at different times. Two biopsies taken. Two excruciating periods of waiting, of not knowing what was next, of thinking what might have caused those lumps in my wife's breast. These periods were tense; they offered me time to think, time to reflect, on what is truly important in life.

It didn't turn out to be breast cancer. It didn't matter. In retrospect, it may have been the tipping point that eventually resulted in my upcoming journey. My ride is 100 percent self-supported. All donations I receive will go directly to the Avon Breast Cancer Foundation, Inc.

On May 10, we left Sacramento to head for Boston where my wife Cyndy participated in the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer. She has been driving our motor home, supporting me along the way. Cyndy has been posting updates, pictures and a chronicle of key events to our website, www.coast2coast4acure.com, as they occur. We have at this time reached our first goal of $20,000, but would like to be at $30,000 or more by the time we reach San Francisco.

A memory that I will never forget comes from visiting the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer in San Francisco, July 2009. While waiting for my wife to cross the finish line at the end of the first day, I stood in amazement watching the other participants: Fighters, walking this 39 mile trek, chemotherapy having taken their hair but not their spirit; survivors, showing the courage and strength that helped them beat this awful disease. But it was the sighting of two young girls that truly touched my heart.

I saw them from afar, walking toward the finish line, arm-in-arm. They were probably 16 and 18 years old. As they drew near, I saw tears streaming down each of their faces. They were crying, holding one another, supporting one another. As they walked past me I realized it wasn't the first time they had supported one another like this — they were each wearing a button on their shirt that said "My mom died of breast cancer."

It was then that I realized that I didn't want to stand and watch anymore. I wanted to join the fight. I want you to join the fight as well.

I believe that one isn't really doing anything in life unless they are trying to help others.

Thank you for anything you can offer, even if only the prayers and support of us finishing our journey safely. We have seen some beautiful parts of our country defined in Chapter 17.58 of the Winters Municipal Code.

Currently, the Winters Municipal Code prohibits on-sale liquor establishments within 200 feet of sensitive uses in the central business district. Sensitive uses include schools (public and private); established churches or places of worship; hospitals, clinics, or other health care facilities; public parks, playgrounds, or other recreational uses; or other on-sale liquor establishments.

Community Development Director Nellie Dyer explained at the June 29 planning commission meeting that with the current businesses and uses downtown in combination with the current municipal code, it is difficult for additional on-sale liquor establishments (including wine tasting rooms) to locate in the downtown.

Based upon this, Dyer is of the opinion that the Winters Municipal Code should be amended to offer appropriate regulations for these businesses in the downtown.

West Nile Virus appears in Yolo County

The Yolo County Health Department is investigating two potential cases of West Nile Virus (WNV), both with serious symptoms.

People typically develop symptoms between three and 14 days after an infected mosquito bites them. Approximately 80 percent of people infected with WNV will not display any symptoms. Up to 20 percent of people who become infected experience fever, headache, body aches, nausea, vomiting, and sometimes swollen lymph glands or a skin rash on the chest, stomach, and back. Symptoms can last for as little as a few days or several weeks.

About one in 150 people infected with WNV will develop severe illness. The severe symptoms can include high fever, headache, neck stiffness, stupor, disorientation, coma, tremors, convulsions, muscle weakness, vision loss, numbness, and paralysis. These symptoms may last several weeks, and neurological effects may be permanent.

People over the age of 50, diabetics, and those who suffer from hypertension are more likely to develop serious WNV symptoms and should take extra care to avoid mosquito bites.

ment from August through October.

Ana Kormos, manager of the Winters Farmers Market, says the change in day and time reflects the summer routines of local residents.

"Winters is a very traditional town. Local residents still enjoy walking around town on summer evenings. Having the Market in conjunction with the Winters Friends of the Library Concert series seemed like the best way to grow the Market's appeal.

"We'll have the same 16-plus vendors, selling farm-fresh produce and delicious food to go. The Winters Market Kitchen will continue to prepare food for sale, all of it sourced from the Market."

Elsewhere downtown, local restaurants will be open for dinner, as will the tasting rooms at Berryessa Gap Winery and Turkovich Family Wines.

Kormos says the Sunday market attracted 75-100 regular shoppers each week.

"We just weren't seeing the number of shoppers increase over time. We're ready to try a more festival-style market in the evenings."

All the current farmers who sell at the Winters Farmers Market will continue to be at the Thursday Market, as will local cafes El Pueblo Tacqueria and Steady Eddie's, plus Ciocolat and Upper Crust Bakery of Davis, and East West Gourmet Afghan Food of Concord.

Musical groups performing at the Winters Friends of the Library concert series include:

~ July 8: Zapato Viejo, traditional and contemporary Latin American music.

~ July 15: Woodland Community Band, patriotic music, swing music and show tunes.

~ July 22: Mae McCoy and the Neon Stars, music "as country as cornbread, as sophisticated as Tiffany's."

~ July 29: Teresa Tudury with Ben Buetner and Keith Cary, called by LA Weekly "a cross between Bette Midler and Bonnie Raitt."

The Tri-County Gamblers lost their first game of the season but are still 17-1 and in the driver's seat for the playoffs. The Gamblers still have to face Sonoma and Vallejo over the next two weeks, but for now have a strong hold on first place.

On Wednesday, June 23, the Gamblers hosted Capay and picked up a 9-2 victory over the Grizzlies. Andrew Ratterman threw the first six innings for the win, giving up one run on seven hits, while Trevor Larsen threw the last inning and gave up one run on two hits.

At the plate, Tri County totaled eight hits with Ray McIntire leading the way. McIntire batted 1 for 1 with a homerun, two RBI and a run scored. Kyle Tobler batted 1 for 2 with two RBI. Scott Brace batted 1 for 2 with a run scored. Ratterman batted 1 for 2 with two runs scored and an RBI.

Bryan Case batted 1 for 2 with a triple and a run scored. Cody Romero batted 1 for 2 with a double and a run scored. Zach Higgins batted 1 for 3 with a homerun, two RBI and a run scored. Max Van Dyke batted 1 for 3 with a double and a run scored. Adam Martinez had an RBI and a run scored, while Larsen had an RBI for the Gamblers.

On Saturday, June 26, the Gamblers played at home against visiting Napa R&L. The Gamblers picked up a 5-2 victory and their 16th straight win behind the arm of Tobler. Tobler threw a complete game, giving up two runs on four hits and had 10 strikeouts.

Ratterman led the Gamblers, batting 2 for 4 with an RBI. Rocco Romero went 1 for 2 with two runs scored. McIntire went 1 for 2. Cody Romero batted 1 for 3 with two RBI. Tobler helped himself out batting 1 for 4 with a homerun, an RBI and a run scored and Kendrick Moore scored a run.

The Gamblers traveled to Napa on Sunday, June 27, for a double header against R&L and lost their first game of

Neil, Tobler play ASA travel ball

By ERIC LUCERO
Express sports

Ashlynnne Neil and Haley Tobler, two Winters High School soon-to-be juniors, are playing ASA softball on a traveling 18-years-and-under team made up of players from all around Northern California.

On the California Chaos Gold, the two 16-year-olds decided to play up for the tougher competition and are competing very well.

In their last tournament, Neil batted 3 for 7 with a double, an RBI and two runs scored. Neil is pitching and playing third base for the team. Tobler is playing shortstop and center field and had a hit and an RBI in the last tournament.

In June, the two Lady Warriors traveled to Las Vegas for a showcase event to give them the opportunity to show some college scouts their softball skills.

“It was pretty intense,” Neil said. “I was there to pitch so what they would do is bring a bunch of scouts into the bleachers and have you pitch in front of them and then bring in the next pitcher to do the same thing. There were a lot of talented girls there.”

blocking and running plays, and then ended the camp with a scrimmage on the football field with several fans in the stands.

The JV team went up against River City High School and did a good job of running a new style offense against a bigger school.

“We did better than I thought we would,” said coach Tyson Allen.

“We came a long way in four days, that’s for sure.”

The varsity team went up against Pioneer and was outscored by the Patriots but not totally outplayed. The Warriors had some bright spots on both sides of the ball and definitely will be fun to watch this year.

“We have some kinks to work out,” said coach Daniel Ward. “But I like what I saw out there. We played a school that has about four times the enrollment that we do and competed very well against them. I can’t wait for the season to start.”

the season by a score of 1-2. Van Dyke threw a complete game and a good enough one to win, giving up just two runs on three hits and had five strikeouts. Offensively though, the Gamblers had just one hit from Brian Machovec who went 1 for 3 with a run scored. Larsen had the only RBI for the Gamblers.

In game two of the double header, the Gamblers bounced back and picked up their 17th victory of the season by defeating Napa 12-4. Higgins threw the first five innings and allowed just two runs, while Austin Calvert threw the last two and allowed two runs as well.

At the plate, Machovec led the team batting 2 for 3 with a double, three runs scored and two RBI. Larsen batted 2 for 4 with an RBI. McIntire went 1 for 3 with two runs scored. Ratterman went 1 for 3 with three runs scored. Higgins batted 1 for 3 with a double and two RBI. Van Dyke went 1 for 4 with a homerun, four RBI and a run scored. Case batted 1 for 5 with a triple, two runs scored and an RBI and Cody Romero scored a run.

Track stars receive awards

The Winters High School track teams had a lot of success this past season and a lot of individual success as well.

Head coach Tyson Allen rewarded those individuals at their end of the year awards ceremony in May.

Receiving the Block W Coaches award for the girls varsity team was sophomore Chloe Graf. Alex Evanoff was the varsity boys winner of the same award.

Maya Tice and Burt Masem both earned the Block W Senior Scholar Athlete Award for the girls and boys varsity teams, respectively.

What is prickly heat?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Exactly what is prickly heat? Do adults get it? If they do, I think I have it. —M.K.

ANSWER: Adults do get prickly heat. It looks like red dots or tiny blisters on the skin. The rash itches or feels “prickly.” Sweat ducts have become plugged. Prevention comes with dressing as coolly as possible in light cotton clothes. Air-conditioning is the ultimate answer. Second best is having a fan blowing on you. If you have a breakout, cool-water compresses take away the itch or prickliness, as do cortisone creams, which are found in all drugstores.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband has some kind of sleep disorder. He doesn’t believe he has a problem. I know about restless leg syndrome, but he has something beyond that. About four nights a week, his legs kick all over, and he throws his body in every direction. The bed bounces like a trampoline. In one month, he made large holes in two quality flannel sheets. Several times, he has hit me across the face. What is this problem? —M.L.

ANSWER: You describe periodic limb movements of sleep, PLMS, which used to be called nocturnal myoclonus. Most of the time, only the legs are involved. The toes, ankles, knees and hips involuntarily bend and straighten during sleep. The movements happen every 20 to 40 seconds, and each episode lasts from a few minutes to hours. Restless leg syndrome is a crawling sensation beneath the skin of the legs. The person has to get up and walk around to put an end to the annoying sensations. Sometimes it is associated with iron deficiency, and sometimes restless leg patients also experience periodic limb movements. Pramipexole or ropinirole treat both conditions. Your husband should see a doctor. The booklet on restless leg syndrome and nighttime leg cramps explains these conditions and their treatments. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 306W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient’s printed name and address.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I play softball for my company. Last week, while rounding second, I felt like I stubbed my toe. It hurt, and it still does. People tell me it is turf toe. What is that, and how long does it go on? —M.L.

ANSWER: Turf toe happens when the big toe is forcefully bent upward. That motion sprains ligaments at the base of the toe.

Every time you take a step, your big toe propels the body forward. Limit your walking to give the toe a rest. Splinting the toe with tape is helpful. Shoes with a sturdy sole also protect the toe.

If the ligaments have only been stretched, your toe ought to feel fine in two weeks. If the ligaments are torn, it will take six weeks.

You and I are going on “people’s” diagnosis. If there isn’t a major turn-about shortly in how the toe feels, have a doctor confirm the diagnosis.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

The secret to successful writing

I was asked to join a group of highly educated and successful professionals called the “iPinion Syndicate.” They have a web site at www.iPinion.me. At first I thought, “Man, these guys must be really rich to own their own web site.”

The creators of the “iPinion Syndicate” are David Lacy and our own Debra DeAngelo. Besides being webmasters, David is an award-winning columnist who teaches English and writing at UC Irvine. Debra, as we all know, is the Winters Express editor and a weekly columnist. She is the award-winning maestro of columnists, my mentor, and as her name implies, possibly an angel.

I don’t have room to name them all, but among the award-winning professionals in the iPinion Syndicate is a photographer named Tracy J. Thomas. Her photographs, some of which can be viewed on the iPinion website, simply take my breath away.

So, why should they ask me to join them? At first I thought it was because if you want to look smart, have at least one dumb guy around. You know, keep one bad writer around to make your writing look better.

It made me wonder, what is good writing and what is bad writing? Take for example, the paragraphs below, all of which were written by me at one time or another:

~ Hey Mate, yer brother-at-arms died yestadee, can I have his boots?

~ Gentlemen, owing to sudden and very severe indisposition, I regret to say that I shall not be able to attend the battle today. I hope, however, that I shall be able to resume my duties tomorrow. ~ Dionysus was raised by the nymphs of Nyssa. His schooling on the finer arts of war must have begun at an early age for there is a painting on which his father, Zeus himself, carries his infant son to a nymph.

~ Concerning combat signals, an arm extended with the hand held palm down in a waving action, means there’s an enemy squad ahead. Two arms in flying motion means “Run like hell.”

For years I thought and thought, but I could never figure it out. I was thinking sooo hard. I know this because I wanted a cup of coffee but I didn’t want to stop thinking long enough to go and get one.

After five minutes or so, I knew what I had to do. I was dreading the moment because I was going to have to “man-up” in order to do it. I’m sure you know what I mean because everyone has those moments where you’re thinking, “Aw geeze, I don’t want to do this!” Yes, you guessed it. I was going to have to ask my wife, Therese, for her opinion.

Sometimes she makes me really, really mad. She’s so smug in her “rightness.” There I was, in the middle of the living room floor, kneeling with my arms outstretched, waiting for a commercial so I could beg her attention.

When she finally became aware of me, she said, “Yyyeeesss, you wish something of me? I said, “Yes, bogwan-esse. I need to know the secret of successful writing. How do I know if it’s good or not?”

I watched her in awe, as she scribbled something on a small yellow Post-it pad that she keeps near her at all times. She ripped off the top piece of paper and offered it to me. She said, “Donald, you are such a twit,” as she flipped her hand in a dismissal action.

I quickly backed away and scurried to the kitchen like a big fat rat trying to get a morsel of cheese without the other rats seeing it. I opened and then read the note.

I thought, “What the heck?” I quickly peeked around the door jam to see if she had heard me. She is sensitive to things like that.

I crumpled up the little yellow piece of paper and threw it on the floor thinking, “Aw, she doesn’t know squat about the secret of successful writing!” I don’t even think there is a secret to successful writing. I’ve never seen one, have you?

Here is what she wrote on the yellow Post-it: “The answer to successful writing is in the reader. To keep it simple for you, here is a quote: ‘Listening: You can convey no greater honor than actually hearing what someone has to say.’ Philip Crosby.”

At the bottom of the note she had drawn a little heart and next to that, in small writing, “luv u!”

Pleased to meet you

HOCUS-FOCUS

BY HENRY ROLLINOFF

Nuestras Noticias

Un poco tarde

El presidente Obama hablo en días pasados sobre la necesidad de una reforma migratoria, lo más interesante es que ese día solo hablo de ese tema, pero su discurso y su esfuerzo por conseguir una reforma migratoria, que legalizaría a millones de indocumentados, llegó tarde, muy tarde. Pero a pesar de todo es bienvenido. Aunque ya pocas organizaciones y poca gente hispana cree en el. Esa fue su promesa de campaña del 2008, prometió que apoyaría una reforma migratoria en su primer año y no lo pudo hacer, lleva casi 18 meses en la Casa Blanca y todavía no vemos nada concreto.

Solo dijo lo que ya se ha venido diciendo, en la Universidad Americana menciono que no hay Republicanos que apoyen una reforma migratoria en el senado. Y, por lo tanto, seguiremos esperando. Difícilmente ocurrirá algo antes de las elecciones de noviembre. Ese discurso lo hubiera pronunciado antes cuando tenía el control en el senado y tenía los 60 votos, pero bueno aun cuando es un poco tarde, es bienvenido. Es bueno saber que Obama seguirá tratando de cumplir su promesa de campaña. Dijo que estaba dispuesto a abordar ese tema, pero ¿los demás políticos lo estarán? La frustración entre la comunidad hispana sigue aumentando, ya no creen en sus discursos, se necesitan obras concretas.

Díganme si no, aun cuando no tiene el apoyo total del senado, el podría haber dado órdenes para poner un alto a las deportaciones de padres con niños nacidos aquí, podría haber dado órdenes para suspender las deportaciones de los estudiantes, pero no lo ha hecho, quisiéramos que impulsara el Dream Act antes de noviembre, pero no lo ha hecho, en concreto no ha hecho nada por las necesidades de la gente que necesita ayuda en su estatus migratorio.

¿Las consecuencias de esta falta de acción? La principal queja de los hispanos contra el presidente Obama en el tema migratorio es por su falta de acción. El apoyo a Obama entre los latinos ha caído del 69 por ciento en enero al 57 por ciento en mayo, según la última encuesta de Gallup. Y esa falta de acción de la Casa Blanca y del Congreso ha permitido que estados como Arizona tomen el asunto migratorio en sus propias manos.

El discurso del presidente, estuvo muy bien. Fue directo al punto. Se refirió directamente sobre los miedos de los norteamericanos y dejó claro que la mayoría de los indocumentados no son criminales y no le van a quitar el trabajo a nadie. Y dijo muy claro, que no se puede expulsar a once millones de indocumentados, no se podría, y añadió se rompería la esencia de esta nación. También, puso condiciones muy claras para la posible legalización de indocumentados: pagar multas e impuestos, aprender inglés y colocarse al final de la fila. Pero la gente ya no quiere discursos, quiere obras concretas. No es posible que el país más poderoso del mundo persiga a los desprotegidos, ¿En donde está la esencia de esta nación?

Un sistema viejo

Uno de los principales mitos sobre la inmigración legal es que es fácil y accesible: ¿por qué esos inmigrantes no se registran y vienen legalmente?, preguntan a menudo observadores y pueblo que no entiende por qué hay tantas personas sin papeles en un país de leyes.

Dejando de lado las disparidades económicas entre Estados Unidos y sus vecinos, así como las leyes disfuncionales que no compaginan la necesidad de trabajadores con la capacidad del sistema de inmigración, hablemos hoy de un problema práctico: de cómo un sistema político disfuncional permite un gasto cada vez más descomunal en agentes fronterizos, cárceles privadas, muros entre los países y tecnología de punta mientras invierte nada o casi nada en el procesamiento de inmigrantes legales.

ICE (Oficina de Inmigración y Aduanas) ha visto su presupuesto elevarse de manera constante durante años, debido a la imperativa política de hacer algo para “cerrar la frontera.”

Desde 1000 millones de dólares a mediados de los años ochenta, hasta 6,000 millones en 2004 y más de 11,000 millones en el año fiscal 2010.

Entretanto USCIS, el brazo encargado de procesar las peticiones de visas, ciudadanía, reunificación familiar por tarjetas verdes y visas de trabajo no recibe prácticamente nada, cero, de los contribuyentes, con excepción de algunos programas especiales para refugiados y la implementación del sistema E-Verify.

Se considera que los propios inmigrantes deben pagar por su procesamiento y lo hacen con las tarifas que pagan. Aquí podemos ver la incoherencia del sistema: si los inmigrantes legales, como se llenan la boca diciendo muchos, son los que benefician al país. ¿Por qué invertir tan poco en ellos?

Proteja sus bienes

Todos sabemos lo difícil se ha convertido la situación para los indocumentados en los Estados Unidos. Por eso es necesario informarles acerca de la importancia que tiene el estar preparados desde el punto de vista económico, especialmente si usted es una persona que corre el riesgo de ser deportada. Independientemente de que usted esté ilegal en el país, todavía tiene derechos para proteger sus bienes personales. El primer paso a tomar es: hacer una lista de sus propiedades, por ejemplo casa, automóvil, cuentas bancarias, etc. y tener la documentación de éstas en orden y accesible. Seguidamente debe encontrar a una persona quien esté legalmente en el país y en la cual usted tenga plena confianza.

Esta persona puede ser un familiar, un amigo y hasta su propio abogado. Lo importante es que usted la conozca por ser una persona honesta y honrada, quien no se va a aprovechar de su situación legal para robarle sus pertenencias. Una vez que se ponga de acuerdo con esta persona, usted debe acudir a donde un abogado para que le prepare un Poder Limitado (Power of Attorney) donde indique que usted le concede poder a esta persona para que actúe en su nombre, ya sea para vender sus pertenencias personales, cerrar cuentas bancarias, efectuar transferencias de dinero, efectuar pagos, etc. Para que este Poder Limitado sea válido debe ser notariado, para asegurarse de que realmente es la voluntad del firmante.

Siempre y cuando este dinero y propiedades hayan sido obtenidos de manera legal, ninguna autoridad le puede privar de ellas. Es recomendable que no tenga altas cantidades de dinero en su casa ya que si usted es objeto de una redada se lo pueden confiscar hasta que las autoridades comprueben el origen del mismo. Este es un proceso muy largo y puede evitarse muchos problemas si usted tiene su dinero en un banco. Asimismo es ideal que escoja un banco con el cual pueda realizar transacciones internacionales y que tenga sucursales o trabajo con bancos en el país al cual usted podría ser deportado.

Nunca debe utilizar un número de Seguro Social falso o que no le pertenezca. En cuanto a las propiedades si usted está comprando una casa no deje de hacer los pagos mensuales, persona a la que le dio el Poder Limitado debe efectuar los pagos mensuales, por mientras decide qué hacer con ella, de lo contrario podría perder la casa y todo el dinero invertido en la misma, hasta por un mes de atraso.

Tomen esta información seriamente porque el proceso de deportación es desgastante tanto económicamente como emocionalmente y tener una cosa menos de que preocuparse es un alivio. Sin embargo, si usted es arrestado y puesto en proceso de deportación todavía está a tiempo de realizar dicho Poder, ya que generalmente las personas no son deportadas inmediatamente y con la ayuda de su abogado de inmigración puede realizarlo y asegurarse de proteger sus pertenencias.

Tome líquidos en el calor

Hay quienes creen, erróneamente, que la necesidad de beber agua se nota sólo al tener sed y labios y boca reseca. Sin embargo, hay otros síntomas que advierten sobre el peligro de deshidratación: ojos sumidos, orina de color brillante u oscuro, y apatía o letargo. Las células del cuerpo están compuestas principalmente de agua, especialmente las de los músculos.

Necesitan agua en cantidades adecuadas para poder generar energía de los alimentos que consumimos y llevar a cabo los demás procesos metabólicos. Por eso la falta de energía o vigor, la modorra o flojera son otras de las sutiles indicaciones de que nuestro cuerpo necesita más agua.

Beber agua antes de sentir sed es importante, especialmente cuando hace calor, se trabaja al aire libre o se participa en actividades atléticas. La mejor bebida para el cuerpo es el agua. El organismo no absorbe con facilidad las sodas ni cualquier bebida con un contenido alto de azúcar. Además, estas bebidas pueden causar dolor estomacal. A menos que seamos atletas de fuerte desempeño con un programa de entrenamiento vigoroso, probablemente no necesitamos comprar esas costosas bebidas deportivas.

Al trabajar al aire libre o tener mucha actividad física, debemos pesarnos al empezar y beber entre 4 y 8 onzas de agua cada 20 minutos. Luego es una buena idea que nos pesemos al concluir el ejercicio y que bebamos dos tazas de agua por cada libra de peso perdido para mantener el nivel interno de agua necesario para que el organismo funcione debidamente.

Para saber si se está deshidratando en exceso, hay una sencilla prueba de elasticidad de la piel que puede realizar: con la palma hacia abajo, pellízquese la piel sobre uno de los nudillos; si no está deshidratado, la piel adquiere su apariencia normal inmediatamente después de aflojar el pellizco. Si la piel permanece “arrugada” unos cuantos segundos después de darse el pellizco, es mejor que beba más líquidos.

Comité hispano

El comité hispano de la ciudad de Winters tiene una posición abierta para quien se interese formar parte de este comité. El comité se reúne por lo general el último lunes

Verano seguro

Un accidente puede suceder en cuestión de segundos, así que tome precauciones. Con la llegada del verano y las vacaciones escolares, las rutinas de muchas familias tienden a cambiar. Muchos niños y jóvenes suelen pasar los días largos y calurosos en casa, en la piscina o en la playa. Las probabilidades de ciertos tipos de accidentes aumentan durante esta época del año. Accidentes como trastornos causados por el calor, quemaduras, intoxicaciones y ahogos pueden afectar a cualquier familia en cualquier momento.

Estas son algunas recomendaciones para evitar accidentes en el agua y divertirse de manera segura: Designa a un adulto para que supervise en todo momento a los niños más pequeños que están jugando en la piscina o playa. Esta persona deberá saber nadar y preferiblemente haber tomado clases de resucitación cardiopulmonar. Enséñales a los niños a entrar a la piscina con los pies primero y evitar saltar o zambullirse de los lados para no resbalarse.

Asegúrate que los que no saben nadar se pongan un chaleco salvavidas. Los adultos no deben beber alcohol antes de nadar. Si tienes piscina en tu casa, coloca un cerco o una barrera de por lo menos cuatro pies de altura para evitar que los niños caigan al agua. Para protegerte del sol y el calor se recomienda: Tomar muchos líquidos durante los días más calurosos. Vestir ropa ligera y de colores claros. Utilizar protector solar con un nivel mínimo de protección SPF 15.

Es común que durante el verano los hijos pasen más tiempo en casa. Por eso es importante tomar ciertas medidas para evitar accidentes como ahogos, quemaduras e intoxicaciones. Para reducir las probabilidades de un accidente, se recomienda tomar las siguientes precauciones: No dejar ollas calientes desatendidas en la cocina. Instalar detectores de humo y revisarlos frecuentemente. Mantener fósforos y encendedores fuera del alcance de los niños. Mantener productos de limpieza y otros químicos bajo llave. Evita transferir productos de limpieza a otros envases para que los niños no los confundan con bebidas.

MOMENTS IN TIME

The History Channel

- On July 22, 1598, William Shakespeare's play "The Merchant of Venice" is entered on the Stationers' Register. By decree of Queen Elizabeth, the Stationers' Register licensed printed works, giving the Crown tight control over all published material.
- On July 19, 1799, a black basalt slab inscribed with ancient writing is discovered in Egypt. The artifact, called the Rosetta Stone, held the key to solving the riddle of hieroglyphics, a written language that had been "dead" for nearly 2,000 years.
- On July 24, 1911, American archeologist Hiram Bingham gets his first look at Machu Picchu, an ancient Inca settlement in Peru. Machu Picchu is believed to have been a summer retreat for Inca leaders, whose civilization was wiped out by Spanish invaders in the 16th century.
- On July 21, 1925, schoolteacher John T. Scopes is convicted of violating Tennessee's new law against teaching evolution. The case was never really in doubt. On May 4, the American Civil Liberties Union had offered to help any Tennessee schoolteacher challenge the law. To gain publicity for the town of Dayton, Scopes, a local science teacher, agreed to fill the role since he wasn't planning to stay in Dayton anyway. No one was really concerned whether he had actually taught evolution to his students.
- On July 20, 1963, Jan and Dean's "Surf City" reaches the top of the charts. "Surf City" might be mistaken for a Beach Boys record, but the Beach Boys had yet to have a No. 1 hit at that time.
- On July 23, 1976, members of the American Legion gathered in Philadelphia begin suffering from a mysterious form of pneumonia. By Aug. 2, 22 people were dead and hundreds more were experiencing pneumonia-like symptoms. Their ailment would come to be known as Legionnaires disease.
- On July 25, 1985, Rock Hudson, a tall, dark and handsome Hollywood leading man of the 1950s and 1960s, announces through a press release that he is suffering from acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS). Hudson became the first major celebrity to go public with such a diagnosis.

NASCAR THIS WEEK

By Monte Dutton

Success Elusive for Montoya

Juan Pablo Montoya's presence in NASCAR is truly historic. He was recognized as one of the world's great driving talents long before he strapped himself into a stock car. In addition to his one Sprint Cup victory (at Infineon Raceway in 2007), Montoya also has won both the Indianapolis 500 and the Grand Prix of Monaco. When he moved from Formula One to NASCAR, it was unprecedented. Success hasn't come easily for Montoya in NASCAR, where he has won only once in 126 starts. New Hampshire Motor Speedway was a disappointment after Montoya's No. 42 Chevrolet started on the pole. He crashed after tangling with Reed Sorenson late in the Lenox 301 and was credited with 34th place. "The teams are really competitive. ... It is hard. It is so competitive," said Montoya. Montoya made the Chase for the Sprint Cup last year, but the odds are against him. With nine races remaining in the regular season, he is 22nd in points, 183 behind 12th place. The top 12 regular-season finishers make up the Chase field. What's frustrating for Montoya is his belief that the team is stronger this year than last. "We are miles ahead right now," he said. "We have a much faster race car than what we had last year at this point. "But we had a blown engine. We got together with our teammate. We've been involved in I don't know how many wrecks from other people. ... We have been right behind the wrecks. We have been a row or two rows behind where they wreck, and they block the whole track and right there, you are just a passenger. We have had, like, seven of those this year." Though Montoya is, by background, a road racer, racing a stock car on road courses didn't come as easily as one might think. "It's crazy," he said, "because, for me, it's awkward being in these cars on a road course. ... There's just no grip. You know what I mean? ... It's just different. Put it that way." The Bogota, Colombia, native now lives in Miami. He won the Indianapolis 500 in 2000 and the Grand Prix of Monaco in 2003. Montoya's first NASCAR victory was a Nationwide Series race in Mexico City in 2007.  Monte Dutton has covered motorsports for The Gaston (N.C.) Gazette since 1993. He was named writer of the year by the National Motorsports Press Association in 2008. His blog NASCAR This Week (<http://nascar.tbma.com>) features all of his reporting on racing, roots music and life on the road. E-mail Monte at nascar_thisweek@yahoo.com.
