Preface

In 1972 a group of family researchers (Edward Hudiburgh of Jamaica, New York; Ann Hudiburgh of Wichita, Kansas; Lorine Hudiburg Wallace of Muskogee, Oklahoma; Nova Mertens of Indianapolis, Indiana; Everett Hudiburg of Stillwater, Oklahoma; and Caziville Hudiburg of Wilmington, Delaware) compiled and edited a book called Hudiburgh Family 1650-1972.

For some people, this 1972 book introduced the Hudiburgh/Hudiburg family. For others, the book augmented their knowledge of recent ancestors and became a valuable resource for continued research.

The earliest correspondence found among these cousins and original family researchers was dated 1929. Additional correspondence ensued through the 1970s. Most of the cousins had direct knowledge of their part of the family and the other cousins in their lines. As the correspondence continued, they sent each other the information on each line—discussing different options about marriages, children and family movements. In particular, there was considerable discussion about the two wives of Thomas, Sr. and disbelief that he married a woman 13 years his senior.

In the 1972 book's preface, the cousins stated their purpose: "This information is compiled in an effort to preserve what is at present available and to encourage others to criticize, rearrange, add to and delete." Our purpose, beginning in 2010, has been to update the early foundation work they did, and add new research available through 2012.

With the assistance of the internet, e-mail, and genealogy websites, we have a distinct advantage in this new research for the family. Motivated by the 1972 book to travel and correspond with distant cousins, we've enjoyed sharing our discoveries, as well as working with these cousins, and making even more progress in filling out our entire family tree.

We sincerely thank the following researchers for sharing their information with us: Diane Davisson, California; Betty Hicks, Missouri, Guylynn Hudiburg, New Mexico; Wendell Hudiburg, Alabama; Ruth Keaton, Texas; Kathy Leach, Colorado; Edward Lewis Wilson, Jr., Texas; Jessie Wallace McNutt and Ronald McNutt, Tennessee; Brent Scott, Tennessee; Barbara J. Smith, Oregon; and Newton Wallace, California. We couldn't have done this work without the participation of all of you. Thank you for your dedication, help, research, and wonderful photographs.

We would also like to thank all of the wonderful volunteers from Find A Grave for their assistance in helping us find many of the burials of our family members.

We wonder how they would feel if our ancestors could come back and see our efforts to research and understand their lives? We hope they would be pleased and feel honored that we have made the effort to learn and understand their part of the human journey.

It is apparent to us that there is more information to be found and more of the family story to be told. We welcome and encourage others to become friends and "cousins" and share the joy of researching our family, as we all share the new information that is unearthed.

Please join us on this family journey as we follow the struggles and hard times of early life on the frontier, experience the adventuresome nature of the early pioneers, and feel the joys of their marriages and the sorrows of family deaths—from the very young to the very old. Bible records give us insight into these births, deaths, and marriages. Civil War information, census records, and historical family photographs put a face with a name and make our ancestors real.

From the birth of Thomas, Sr., in 1763 in Colonial America , through the founding of our country and 250 years of history from that time to this, we welcome you to the Hudiburgh/Hudiburg family.

Enjoy the journey!

The Transition from France to England

Origin of the Hudiburgh Name

The Historical Research Center™

Family Name History

HEUDEBOURCK

Early documents were written in Latin in many European countries, however, this is not the case of the earliest written records in England which tend to be written in Norman French or a combination of that language with Old English. The use of Norman French was due to the fact that in 1066 the Normans, under William the Conqueror, conquered England and brought it under a Norman French administration. Indeed, it is believed that the use of hereditary surnames begins in England with the Conquest and it may be set down as one of its results. In fact, there is no ascertained case of a strictly hereditary English surname before the Norman Conquest. As a result of the Norman invasion, English surnames may be very generally classified as being of Norman French origin or of being of Old English origin.

Although the surname Heudebourck and its variants Heudebourg, Hildebourg and Hudebourg is found in England the name is ultimately of Norman French origin. It is of patronymic origin, that is, belonging to the category of surnames derived from the first name of the father of the initial bearer. In this instance, the name indicates "son of Heudebourck", an ancient personal name ultimately of Germanic origin. Here the name is derived from the Old High German word "hiltja" meaning "battle" and "burg", in Middle High German "burc", meaning "fortress, castle".

BLAZON OF ARMS: Gules, an elephant argent, rampant against a palm tree or, on a terrace of the same.

Translation: The elephant is an emblem of Strength and Courage and the palm tree signifies Victory, Justice and Honour. Gules (red) symbolizes the planet Mars and indicates Military Fortitude and Magnanimity and or (gold) denotes Power and Splendour.

CREST: The elephant issuing.

Spelling of the Hudiburg/Hudiburgh Name

Numerous spellings for the name exist in historical documents and range from Hodebourg to Hudiburgh, today's common spelling. These various spellings include Hoddebock, Huddabuck, Hudyburgh and many others. As researchers, we must watch for all spellings to assure that no information is overlooked.

The original French spelling of the name was Heudebourg, used in the 1600s and 1700s. Even in the Huguenot Society's historical records misspellings exist; however, Heudebourg is generally accepted as the correct spelling.

Variations of the spelling relative to a timeline are:

Hodebuourg—when the Coat of Arms was granted in the 11th century

Heudebourg, Hendebourq, Heudenbourcq—French, early 1600s

Heudebourg—English, late 1600s and 1700s

Heudeburck—English in 1770

Hadaberg, Hodibuck, Hoddibuck, Hudaburk,
Hudiburk, and Huddabuck—American, late 1700s

Hudiburgh and Hudiburg—1800s to the present

French and English History

The Heudebourgs moved to Canterbury, England, from their home in Amiens, St. Obin Parish, France, during the exodus of French Protestants fleeing persecution from the French Kings. Although rooted in the Picardy region, the family seems to have had Parisian connections as well.

The English welcomed these French Protestants into their country for several reasons: First, they were Protestant and the country was still vacillating between being Catholic or Protestant; second, the French that came to England were skilled craftsmen and businessmen who, in essence, began the middle class in England; third, the Stuarts, ruling family of the time who loved laces, velvets, feathers, fine fabrics and other luxuries, welcomed these skilled merchants and weavers in their country.

The Heudebourgs became communicants of the Church of the Walloons in the Canterbury Cathedral. The term Walloon was used to denote Belgian and Germanic Protestants who had permission to use the cathedral for their services. The term Huguenot was used for the French protestants. There is still a place of worship in the undercroft of Canterbury Cathedral where the Walloons and Huguenots met for worship. Some communicants still meet there to this day. Extensive church records throughout England have been preserved in the numerous volumes of The Publications of the Huguenot Society of London.

The earliest member of the family in England appears to have been Samuel Heudebourg, the elder (d. 1679), the husband of Susan Bolin. Of their children, a son Samuel, "le Junne" married Marie Ferre in Canterbury in November, 1667.

An older Pierre, thought to be the brother of Samuel, the Elder, moved his family from Amiens to London in 1680. They were subsequently joined by the Heudebourgs who were already established in Canterbury. Pierre and his family lived in Stepney parish and made their living as weavers and merchants of silk cloth. During this period, they became members of the famous French church on Threadneedle Street. Pierre , his wife, Marie Montenon, brother Samuel and wife of Canterbury, brought their membership to the Threadneedle Street church in 1680 and 1682, respectfully.

In 1690, Samuel married Anne Lendre, the daughter of Thomas and Marguerite Lendre. Of their four children, Thomas Lendre Heudebourg was born in London on 7 February 1692. He was named after his maternal grandfather, Thomas Lendre. It is believed that this Thomas is the ancestor of the American Hudiburgs and the grandfather or great grandfather of Thomas Hudiburk, born in 1763 in Colonial America.

We have yet to discover where Thomas landed when he got to America, but several family members have done DNA tests and we are hoping for a future resolution to this question.

Huguenot Weaver's Houses

Our European ancestors were silk merchants and weavers who fled from France to England to escape persecution of the protestants by the French kings.

These migrants were called Huguenots. Although its origin is unknown, this word would be linked to them.

Many Huguenots moved to Canterbury where they set up their looms and businesses. Some families lived in this area near High Street. (8)

John Huddabuck and Conrad Hodiburk

Early research for the 1972 Hudiburgh Book found two men in Maryland that could have been brothers or cousins to Thomas Hudiburgh, Sr. The scant information presented here is the only information found to date on these two individuals:

John Hudaburk or Huddabuck is listed in the following:

1.) In 1778, John is on the list taking the Oath of Alliance to the United States (9)

2.) 1790 census in Charles Town, Cecil County, Maryland is single and living alone

3.) the marriage records of Cecil County, when he married Mary Ferguson on 27 December 1790

4.) in the Charles Town Commissioners Minutes.

5.) On the original tax rolls, John is listed in Cecil County, Fifth District, Charlestown, Maryland as owning ¾ acre of land from 1783-1791. (10)

The second man, Coonrad or Conrad Hodiburk, was a private in Maryland Regiment 2. He enlisted on 25 May 1778 in Maryland and was killed on 16 August 1780 in Camden, South Carolina. For his service in the Revolutionary War in lieu of monetary pay, he was given soldier land westward of Fort Cumberland. This would now be in Allegheny County, Maryland.

Regarding soldier land, officers were given four lots and privates were given one lot. Conrad's lot number was 1164 and on the rolls was 50 acres of land. It did not show a date when the land was claimed, if ever, since he did not survive the war. There are two documents presented that are the only verification we have of Conrad.

	Spouse:	John Cox
2	Name:	Baby Clock
M	Born:	Abt. 1781	in: Pennsylvania
	Died:	1782	in: Pennsylvania

A birth date for Dorothy Reno Clock was given as 13 October 1762 in Virginia from the book Reno/Reneau Family in America, 1600-1930. The verification was "Copied by Mrs. Clemmie Price Wilburn from a record in Decatur, Alabama in March, 1936". However, this date does not fit the timeline for Dolly and we believe it to be incorrect. According to her obituary, she died at 73 years and this birth date would make her death at 61 years.

Dolly Clock's Capture by Indians

There are three versions of the story about Dolly Clock 's capture by Indians. Each version has some details in common with the other two versions and just as many dissimilarities. All three are presented here:

First version from the 1972 Hudiburgh book, page 9:

"…at about the time that the Turners were captured (1780), Mrs. Dolly Clock was taken from a tract about three miles from Jeffreystown. Her husband was away from home at the time and she was alone in the house with her infant. The Indians, always on the alert when any point was unguarded, took this opportunity and captured her and started for the Northwest. After they proceeded a short distance, the babe cried, when an Indian caught it from her arms by the leg, dashed its brains out against a tree and threw it upon the ground. Mrs. Clock afterwards stated that upon the perpetration of his hellish outrage, she loosed her apron and spread it over the child's face and walked on without a tear. She was subsequently rescued and lived with her husband near where District School House 1 now stands."

Second version from A 200th Anniversary History of Noblestown by Rev. Bob Larimer, pages 7 & 8:

"It was the summer of 1782. The Indians who originally tried to share their lands with the white settlers but after broken treaties and the settlers encroaching on their hunting grounds, the Indians retaliated with much butchery and savagery. Some of the slaughters took place within a mile or two of Noblestown, one occurring on the farm of Lewis Clock, located on the west side of the North Road.

"Isabella Potter, a neighbor child, had gone to the Clock farm to visit a friend. Mr. Clock and some of the men had gone to fell trees. A roving band of Indians heard the ax blows and killed the men where they stood. They scalped them and headed for the Clock house. Dolly, who had come outside to call the men to lunch, saw the Indians and ran for her life to the house.

"The Indians quickly came up and murdered six of the Clock children playing in the yard and took Isabella Potter prisoner. They went into the house and tied up the women, which included Isabella, Dolly and her daughter Phebe. The Indians ate the lunch prepared for the men and quickly left with the women and Dolly's infant.

"The Indians, fleeing with their hostages, grabbed Dolly's infant, slammed it into a tree, killing it, for fear of his cries bringing help. A search party was sent out but the men stopped at the Ohio River at Georgetown because they did not have enough men to fight a large contingent of Indians. Ever after, the Clock farm was known simply as Slaughter."

The third version was submitted by Betty Hicks and taken from the bible of Mourning Hudiburgh Parkhurst:

The wife of Thomas Hudiburgh, Sr. before she married him and while living with her first husband, was captured by the Indians in Maryland. The story runs:

Her husband was in the tobacco house at work; their little son was with him when the Indians came upon them and killed both there. The Indians then went to the house and killed another little son, (the girl ran and hid in some bushes near the house). They then took the woman and baby, put them on a pony behind one of them and started off. The cries of the baby enraged the Indian so he said for her to make it keep quiet. She did all she could but could not quiet it. So they took it by the feet and knocked its brains out against a tree, in sight of the mother. They then took her across the Potomac River to one of their villages, where with another woman they made her "run the gauntlet." The other woman was killed before she got through the line.

But, this one got through. Then she was given to the Old Chief for a servant, but by her kindness to him, always obeying him and doing what she promised, he had great confidence in her word.

She learned to make silver brooches very nicely. He would have her make a number then he would give her some. About the time she had got fifty of her own, she heard of some white people settling some miles from there. She went to the Old Chief and told him if he would give her a pony and let her go visit those white people, she would give him all those brooches and she would come back when he said for her to come. He had so much confidence in her that he gave her the pony and a guide to take her through the Indians' line.

After she was out of sight of the guide, she said "goodby Indian life" and kept on until she reached her old home where with one of her neighbors, she found her little girl whom she thought dead all this time, not knowing that she had escaped the Indians when they killed the others. Sometime after her return, she married Thomas Hudiburgh, Sr., for her second husband.

Summary

The first two versions document that this incident happened in Pennsylvania in 1780 and 1782, and the last in Maryland, no specific date.

The second and third versions of the story give insight into the children that Dorothy had with Lewis Clock. The second version states that six of their children were killed and the third version tells that the Indians killed Lewis and his two young sons before coming into the house.

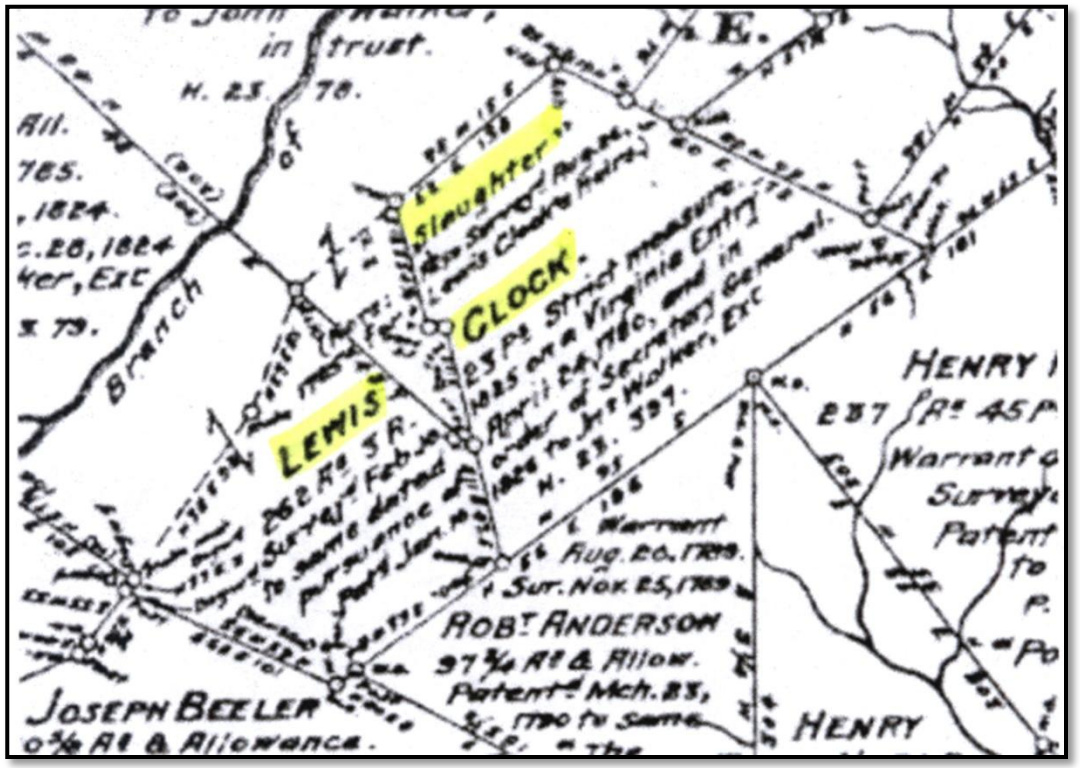
All stories are the same about the killing of Dorothy's infant after leaving the home place.

The third version chronicles her life with the Indians, how she escaped, and subsequently returned home to find her young daughter still alive. Her daughter, Phebe, survived and later married John Cox.

In the first two versions, Dorothy is mentioned by name and where she lived, but not in the third version.

As with many stories, only the person that lived the experience can tell the true story. Through the years, stories take on the ambiance of the person telling the story—sometimes embellished with other information that may or may not have actually happened. Regardless, all three versions of her story are interesting and give insight to the time and place they lived and added information that is important to her story.

Lewis Clock Property
North Fayette Township, Pennsylvania



A later version of Lewis Clock's property shows that it is still called "Slaughter" from the second version of Dolly's capture by the Indians. One survey was taken on Aug. 26, 1785 for Lewis Clock Heirs. When the land was sold, the proceeds went to Phebe Clock to be used for her dowry when she married.

Thomas Hudiburgh, Sr. Timeline

Thomas Hudiburgh, Sr.

The early years of Thomas, Sr., are cloudy at best. From his young adulthood in Pennsylvania, documentation began to emerge and developed into a timeline until his death. We do know that he is the earliest verifiable Hudiburgh in America and ancestor of the current researchers. He married Dorothy "Dolly" Reno Clock, widow of Lewis Clock. (Early researchers thought Dolly was of the Reneau/Reno family, however, no proof of this is currently available.) Thomas and Dolly had five children from which this line descends. Thomas' own bible lists this entry: "Thomas Hudiburk was born on January 26 in the year of our Lord 1763." Note that Thomas listed neither his own birth place nor that of his children. Neither his wife's birth date nor place was mentioned in the bible.

Lewis Clock and his wife Dolly, arrived in southwest Pennsylvania about 1773 and purchased 400 acres on Robinson's Run, not far from Noblestown. The land was bought on a Virginia land warrant or certificate, which may indicate they came from Virginia. The 1972 Hudiburgh Book states that a Thomas Hudiburgh was listed in Robinson's Township as owning 60 acres. This acreage and deed filing date are unverified. Our Thomas, Sr., was only 10 years old in 1773; this property probably belonged to his father. There are two verified tax rolls in Washington County, Pennsylvania, dated 1781, when he county was formed and 1784. On the 1781 roll, a Thomas Haughdeburgh is listed in Robinson Township, owning 150 acres; (A-10) in 1784 a Thomas Hudiburgh is listed in the same township, no acreage stated.

The Clocks and the Hudiburghs lived in fairly close proximity to each other, the Clocks on Robinson's Run and the Hudiburghs in Robinson Township. It is likely that the two families were known to each other because of the closeness of settlers in this area for mutual security purposes.

The struggle for American political independence began in 1776. War came to the frontier areas as well as to the Atlantic seaboard. The British conducted raids from the Ohio country and Canada. Their Indian allies attacked the western settlements without letup or mercy and were worse in the summer months. The British army actually paid a cash bounty for the scalps of the "rebels." Men up to the age of fifty were called up for varying periods of militia service. Defense of the small communities and farms developed into a prodigious task.

The Indian Path (Mingo Trail) cut through the western end of Washington County which included Fayette and Robinson Townships. This area became extremely hazardous: Indians made constant raids and many settlers were killed. Dolly Clock was among the settlers abducted in 1782 but was ultimately rescued and returned home. Assuming the second and third versions of her story are correct, Dolly's husband, Lewis Clock, and all of her children except daughter Phebe, were killed in the summer of 1782. When Dolly and Phebe returned home, they lived on their farm on the west side of North Road.

Approximately one year later, Thomas Hudiburgh, age 20, and Dolly Reno Clock, age 33, married near Noblestown in southwestern Pennsylvania. Although there is no verifiable marriage record, the birth of their daughter, Elizabeth, in April 1785, suggests that the marriage took place on or before July 1784.

Sometime between 1784 and 1785, Thomas, Dolly, and Phebe migrated from southwest Pennsylvania to western North Carolina, which is now north eastern Tennessee. As was common during this time, they were joined by many friends fleeing from the hostile environment in Pennsylvania. The Watauga Settlement (called Sycamore Shoals Fort) was established in 1772 at the Sycamore Shoals of the Watauga River. This rocky stretch of river rapids along the Watauga River is near today's Elizabethton, Tennessee. It was the first permanent settlement outside of the original thirteen colonies and the first majority-rule system of American democracy. (17) In 1780 at the height of the American Revolutionary War, the frontier militia, including 400 Virginians, 240 Sullivan County militia, and the "Overmountain Men" lead by John Sevier, mustered at Sycamore Shoals Fort as they prepared to march across the mountains in route to victory over British loyalists at the Battle of Kings Mountain.

After the war, John Sevier returned to the Watauga Settlement and assumed leadership. He welcomed all immigrants and declared that one day they would organize a new state to be added to the federation of thirteen. Sevier was elected governor and made plans to call the area the State of Franklin after Benjamin Franklin. (18) Previously, North Carolina had ceded the land to the federal government for westward expansion and wasn't pleased when Sevier and his followers tried to form a new state. After four years of attempts (1784-1788), Sevier failed to have the new state recognized and North Carolina reclaimed the land in 1788. Three years later in 1791, the United States Congress designated the area of the failed State of Franklin as the "Territory South of the Ohio River."

During the existence of the State of Franklin, three of the five Hudiburgh children were born in Elizabethton, Washington County, State of Franklin. Their first child, Elizabeth, was born on 3 April 1785, followed by Thomas, Jr. (1787) and Lewis Clock Hudiburgh (1788). Although the family never left the area, sons Solomon (1790) and John Hudiburgh (1792) were born in North Carolina after the Franklin territory was reclaimed in 1788.

The Sinking Creek Baptist Church, founded near Sycamore Shoals in 1772, was situated between the villages of Jonesboro and Elizabethton, on a branch of the Watauga River. For years, Sinking Creek Baptist Church was the social-religious center for its members. Thomas and Dolly became very active in the church after they arrived. In those early days, members were encouraged to stand up and profess their faith, and Thomas would frequently "praise the Lord" in front of the congregation. He and Dolly became very influential in the church and Thomas ultimately became a minister there. He and one of the other ministers, William Reno (listed on the membership rolls from 1787-1791), became very good friends and they worked diligently for the betterment of the Sinking Creek Church.

The American Revolution ended in 1783 and the United States subsequently held its first election for president. George Washington was inaugurated on 30 April 1789 in New York City. Although he didn't want the job, he was reelected in 1792 and left office in 1797. During his tenure, Washington signed a bill on 1 June 1796 admitting Tennessee as the sixteenth state of the Union. After Tennessee gained statehood, Washington county was divided, creating Carter County on 9 April 1796.

The family farmed, lived a peaceful existence, and spent a great deal of time at the Sinking Creek Church. After Lewis Clock's death in 1782, Phebe Clock, the sole heir of her father's property on Robinson's Run, sold this Pennsylvania property in 1791 to create her dowry.

Thomas was more than a farmer and preacher. The 1972 Hudiburgh Book noted that he was also a surveyor. In those frontier days, several men would be appointed as a team to check out new land—one man selected as the surveyor, a second man to hold the end of the measuring chains, and a third man to serve as witness. At one point while on a survey crew, Thomas staked out approximately 500 acres for himself. The thickly wooded land was a few miles west of Knoxville on Beaver Creek, sometimes called Four Mile Creek. The road at the front of the property was later named Kingston Pike.

According to the 1972 Hudiburgh Book, two events in Thomas' personal life may have hastened his departure from the Watauga Settlement area. His good friend and co-worker in the Sinking Creek Church, William Reno, was murdered by Indians while on a missionary trip to the mountainous regions of Sevier County. His death was staggering for Thomas. The second event was more cheerful when daughter Phebe married John Cox on 19 August 1794, in the small church on Sinking Creek.

The family moved again about 1797-1799 to the tiny community of Bearden, Tennessee. Dolly was distressed about this move because she had to abandon her home, church, and the friends she loved in Elizabethton. Thomas had gone ahead of the family, cleared some of the land for planting and constructed a log house in preparation for the their arrival. After settling in to her new surroundings, Dolly could not imagine living anywhere else.

Because the family had been very active in the Sinking Creek Church, the church members sent the following letter to Dolly as a recommendation to her new church:
"Whereas our beloved Sister Dorothy Hudiburgh is about to remove her residence from us to some other part of the Earth where the Lord in his providence may cast her lot: These (words) therefore are to certify that she is a member in full Union and Communion with us, and of blameless life and conversation, for ought we know, and as such we recommend her to you to watch over her in the Lord, and when she is received by you she is wholly dismissed by us. We recommend you and her to God and the world of his grace, which is able to keep you from falling. Amen." (25) According to the minutes of the Sinking Creek Church, this letter was written and issued on 19 September 1798. They agreed that Thomas should also receive a testimonial letter, but his letter did not survive.

Aquilla Low, a friend of Thomas and Dolly's from the Watuaga Settlement, also bought land in Bearden on Beaver Creek, not far behind Thomas and Dolly's new home. In 1796-1797 he erected a public grist mill on his land. Thomas and Aquilla founded the Beaver Ridge Baptist Church and served as the congregation's first ministers. Thomas was minister of record on Aquilla Low's marriage license to second wife Nancy Lewis, 20 February 1817, at Beaver Ridge Church. (A-4)

The Holston Baptist Association, representing Baptist churches in eastern Tennessee, was organized in 1786. On 25 December 1802, delegates from nineteen Baptist Churches which formerly belonged to the Holston Association, met in Knox County to organize the Tennessee Association. Five of these churches, including the Beaver Ridge Baptist Church, were located in Knox County. The delegates representing the Beaver Ridge church were Thomas Hudiburgh, Aquilla Low, and Jesse Council. In a later meeting of the Tennessee Association in 1817, Thomas Hudiburgh, Obed Patty and Eli Clevand represented Beaver Ridge. (A-13)

Concerning early church ministers, Goodspeed's History of Tennessee, Early Knox County Churches, notes: "Nearly all were men of limited education, and received no pay for their services, but they possessed a rude and fervid eloquence, well suited to the mass of their hearers, and their congregations grew." Some ministers served two or three widely separated churches. The gospel was presumed to be free, so many ministers, like Thomas, farmed, taught school, and/or did blacksmith work to provide for their families. It is not hard to imagine Thomas on horseback, dashing through the countryside to "preach the gospel," something he did for the remainder of his life.

Thomas and Dolly's new home on Kingston Pike was weather boarded in 1826. Thomas farmed some of the land, had a blacksmith shop on the back of the property, a barn, and a smokehouse. He turned the house into an inn for travelers seeking bed and board on busy Kingston Pike road. Thomas applied for and was granted a license on 15 October 1818 to keep an "Ordinary" or public inn at his home. A second petition was filed in January, 1820, for the continuance of the "Ordinary." (A-5)

A few miles to the southwest on the border of Indian land, the federal government build a fort, the Tellico Blockhouse. Trade and barter, and activities that passed for social relationships between the Indians and the whites, were conducted at the fort. Colonel David Hensley, commandant at Tellico, noted in his account book for the year 1797, "…expenses of Wolfe's Friend and four other Chickasaw Indians going to Philadelphia to visit the President. $500." Beneath this entry he made a separate note: "Thomas Hudiburgh for furnishing a house for the Chickasaws on way to Philadelphia." The amount paid was never entered, suggesting that Thomas may have accepted no payment for services while entertaining the five chiefs. It does not state if they stayed in Thomas' inn or whether separate quarters were set up for the chiefs.

Around 1810, there was a fire on Thomas and Dolly's property and several of the buildings burned. Son, Solomon, living in Overton County, Tennessee, wrote to his parents asking if they would like to live with him as a result of the fire. They refused, choosing to stay in Bearden and rebuild their home. (26) In 1816, Luther Rice, the famous Baptist missionary and founder of George Washington University in Washington, D. C., visited with Thomas and Dolly. Rice wrote in his diary that he had a sojourn with "Brother Thomas" at Bearden, Tennessee.

In that same year Thomas was selected to preach the dedicatory sermon at the annual meeting of the Tennessee Association. Records of the Association note: "In a sense, the occasion marked the culmination of his work in the church and signified that young Thomas Hudiburgh had by now become a church elder." It must have been a proud moment for Dolly and Thomas.

Relationships that had remained constant for Thomas for so many years changed drastically during the 1820s. Long time friends and associates moved away to take up new land. Aquilla Low, friend and near neighbor died in 1819 and was buried at Beaver Ridge Church Cemetery. (A-4) Colonel Henley and others at Fort Tellico were reassigned to other government posts. John Sevier and Governor Blount had died. Andrew Jackson was said to be the coming political power and perhaps the next President of the United States.

Thomas' most difficult loss was the death of his beloved Dolly on 10 October 1823. The union that had been so loving and productive through the years was broken. The following obituary was printed in the Knoxville Register on Friday, 24 October 1823: "Died on the 10 inst. Mrs. Dolly Hudeburg, age 73 years, consort of Rev. Thomas Hudeburg. Mrs. Hudeburg was a professor of religion in the Baptist Church for upwards of fifty years and died with an apparent assurance of a happy immortality." At her request, Dolly was buried in the family garden at their home in Bearden. When the property was demolished in the 1980s, her grave site was lost for all time.

Thomas, age 60 when Dolly died, remarried very quickly to a long time neighbor, friend, and widow, Mary "Polly" Coker. Their marriage on 23 December 1823 was only a few months after Dolly's death. Why they married so quickly remains a mystery, nevertheless Polly moved into Thomas' house in Bearden and they lived there until moving to Indiana about 1841.

In a letter from Nova Mertins to Lorine Hudiburg Wallace in 1951, Nova wrote: "Mrs. McCarthy of Knoxville, told me on the phone that Thomas, Jr., had left his father and stepmother in Knoxville when he came to Indiana. Some people were to care for them and furnish them with a buggy and horse so they could visit around among relatives. It seems the plan did not work out in years. So he finally went back to Knoxville and took them to his home in Morgan County, Indiana. I think this was about 1840-41."

A deed of conveyance from Thomas Hudiburgh, Sr. to Jonathan Coker was filed in Knox County in 1838. Thomas sold 140 acres of land to his stepson Jonathan with certain stipulations attached. If Jonathan did not comply with all these stipulations, the sale would be voided. (28) When Thomas and Polly left Knox County, Thomas, Jr., came from Indiana and took them to his home.

Since Thomas and Polly are included on the 1840 census in Bearden, Tennessee, the move to Indiana came after that census. Their stay would not be a long one. Thomas died on 20 February 1842 at his son's home in Morgan County, Indiana. Five days later Polly would join him in eternal bliss. Both are buried in the Bethlehem Cemetery in Hensley, Johnson County, Indiana.

Story about Thomas Hudiburgh, Sr.

This story was taken from A History of Knox County Communities and was written by the students of Miss Nannie Lee Hicks' American History Classes, Central High School, Knoxville, Tn.

For more than 25 years, Miss Hicks asked her students to write term papers on their communities or on local historic places.

This story is found in A History of Knox County Communities Vol. 1, page 125.

Hudiburg

Little is known of Hudiburg. He lived in a house where the residence of Dr. Brooks (deceased) is now located.

He is said to have been an interpreter and explainer of the Sacred Oracles of truth. He was a Baptist preacher. He was not a distiller of the fruits of the land, but a dispenser of the fermented fluids therefrom.

There was no church building in the community and no school house in which the people could assemble for Christ's worship, so Mr. Hudiburg opened his door and tendered a room for the worship of God, once while he was giving interpretations to the sacred Oracle of the truth to some of the neighbors assembled there in Christs' worship, some travelers called at the gate desiring some of the fermented liquids held for sale in that place.

Mrs. Hadiburg quietly slipped out the door and kindly waited upon the customers in dispensing to them the fermented liquids.

Elizabeth Hudiburgh

Little is known about Elizabeth Hudiburgh. Several researchers have attempted to track her family with few results. Elizabeth's birth is listed in her father's family Bible as Elibeth or Elebeth Hudiburk, born 5 April 1785. They were living in Elizabethton, county of Washington, state of Franklin, at that time of her birth. (This area was later returned to North Carolina jurisdiction.)

Elizabeth married Morgan Snow on 12 October 1802 in Knox county, Tennessee, and produced five children. After her disappearance and possible kidnapping by Indians, Morgan and the children moved to Anderson County, Tennessee, then to Georgia just across the state line from Tennessee.

The story of Elizabeth being taken by Indians is conjecture. Perhaps the story of Dolly became confused and credited to Elizabeth at some later date. Elizabeth died sometime after 1811 because her last child was born in that year.

Julie Miller stated that she did not find the Snows on census records or Tennessee and Georgia marriage records. There was, however, a John Snow found on a Mortality Schedule who died around 1860 at age 56 years.

One of Elizabeth's sons, Morgan, married and had a son named Morgan Huterberger Snow. From the misspelling of his middle name, the Snows may have had little or no contact with Elizabeth's family.

We welcome any additional verified information about the Snows.

John was the last child born to Dorothy Reno Clock and Thomas Hudiburgh, Sr. Unlike the other children born in Elizabethton, North Carolina, he died at almost six months old.

He is probably buried in Elizabethton, but the exact location of his grave is unknown. The cemetery connected with the Sinking Creek Baptist Church, a likely location, does not have a plat and it is not known if John was buried there. In fact, only about a half dozen headstones remain in this old cemetery.

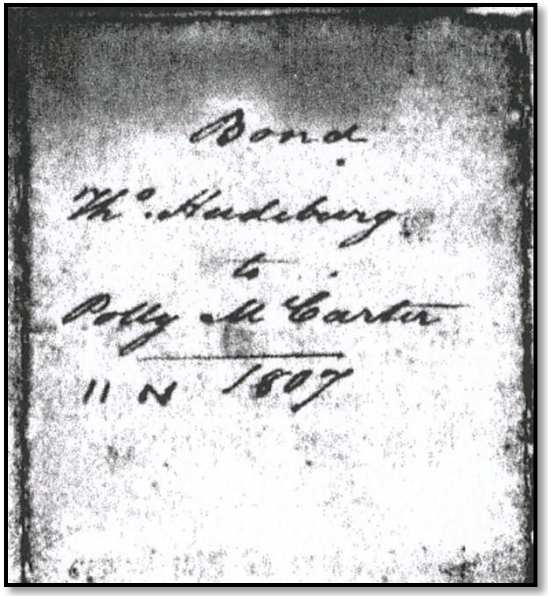
Tennessee Marriage Bond
Thomas, Jr. & Polly M. Carter



Outside cover of marriage bond shows Polly's name as Polly M. Carter.

Source: Ancestry.com, Tennessee State Marriages, 1780-2002,
Thomas Hudiburg and Polly M. Carter, married 11 November 1807, Knox County, Tennessee

Thomas Hudiburgh, Jr.

The birth of Thomas Hudiburgh, Jr., recorded in his father's bible as Thomas Hudiburk Jeunor, on 27 March in the year of our Lord 1787, near Elizabethton, Washington County, State of Franklin. (This area currently is Elizabethton, Washington County, Tennessee) Later, this infant state of Franklin, never officially recognized by the federal government or North Carolina, was rescinded and the land returned to North Carolina's jurisdiction.

In October, 1807, Thomas' future wife, Polly Carter, filed a petition with the court in Knoxville, Tennessee, seeking to establish Thomas as the father of her unborn child. It is unknown why Polly resorted to this legal action. Reading the early records of the Sinking Creek Church near Elizabethton, where Thomas' parents were members, suggests that, in spite of their professed Christianity, church members judged each other harshly, and were quick to expel members for any infractions to church rules. Several women carrying illegitimate children were expelled from the church. Thomas' parents may have objected to this marriage to Polly. Thomas may also have been reluctant to marry Polly since he was only twenty years old, and/or his father may have refused to give permission for this marriage. This lawsuit, however, did give Polly the legal right to file for maintenance for her child.(29) Regardless of the reason, Thomas and Polly DID marry on 11 November 1807 in Knox County, and their first child, daughter Catherine, was born 18 January 1808 in the same county. Their marriage bond was signed by Thomas, Jr., and John Cox, thought to have been the husband of Thomas' half sister, Phebe Clock.

Early researchers believed Polly Carter to be the daughter of Capt. McCarter of Sevier County, Tennessee, however, this has never been verified. Although there is a great deal of information on Capt. McCarter (a Revolutionary war hero), current research does not indicate any connection of Polly to his family. Polly's birth, (estimated from census records, court filing as an adult woman, no permission needed for her to marry, her child bearing age, and tombstone information) was probably between 1789 and 1790. Polly's birthplace, given as Tennessee, may have actually been in North Carolina since Tennessee did not become a state until 1796. On the outside cover of Thomas, Jr., and Polly's marriage bond, she is denoted as Polly M. Carter, the only definitive verification of her name and reason it is used here.

Thomas and Polly lived in Tennessee from the time of their marriage until 1828, when they joined a group of families and moved to Jackson Township, Morgan County, Indiana. According to the 1972 Hudiburgh Book, page 7, "The entire Thomas, Jr. family migrated to Indiana in 1828. Their two daughters, Catherine and Malvina, were married and they came along with their families. In this caravan was Thomas and Polly, their eleven children, plus two sons-in-law with three children, Eliza's boyfriend, Alexander Blair Kelso, two brothers-in-law and the Vandergiffts. They were said to be leaving Knoxville because they disapproved of slavery. Consequently, some fought with the Union and their cousins with the Confederacy." This speculation that they moved because they were opposed to slavery is unverified. More likely, they moved to Indiana because land was readily available and reasonably priced.

Petition for Care of Bastard Infant

Until the 1820s, many states had a "Bastard Law." The law required a man who got a single woman pregnant to be responsible for the care and feeding of that infant until age 18 years. The city, county, nor state would assume responsibility for this child—it was the father's obligation.

Polly M. Carter or McCarter, went into court to assure that Thomas Hudiburgh, Jr., was legally responsible for the care of their unborn child. This document granted maintenance for the child.

It is unknown why Polly found it necessary to take legal action and file this suit. Considering that women had no legal rights in those years, this law enabled her to file a suit legally and gave her the opportunity to keep her child. If the suit had not been filed, in most cases, the child was sent away to live with relatives.

They did marry on 10 December 1807 in Knoxville, a month before their first child, Catherine, was born on 18 January 1808 in that city. They produced thirteen children and remained married until Polly's death on 24 September 1842.

Thomas, Jr.s' connection with the Kelso family started in Tennessee when his brother, Lewis Clock Hudiburgh married Dorcus Kelso. Thomas' daughter Malvina, married James B. Kelso, who was Dorcus' brother. Later, in Indiana, another daughter, Eliza, married Alexander Blair Kelso, son of Charles Blair Kelso, brother to Dorcus and James. Some of the other families from the Knoxville area that also moved to Indiana, besides the Kelso's, were the Vandergriff and Merriman families. Daughter Catherine Hudiburgh would marry William Merriman and son John married Elizabeth Vandergriff. (30)

"Jackson Township was remote from any considerable water courses and this delayed its settlement for a few years after Morgan County was being settled. Jackson Township lies in the valley of Indian Creek and was too rich a tract of country to remain long in its primitive state," according to Godspeed, History of Morgan County, Indiana, page 111. The land in this area is more gently rolling than other parts of the county and was thickly forested in the 1820's. It took many years to clear the land for farm use and many of the early landowners did not reside on their land until the clearing had been done. From 1825- 1828, there were less than a dozen families in Jackson Township and that included Thomas Hudiburgh, Jr.

Indiana was part of the Northwest Territory ceded to the United States by Great Britain at the end of the Revolutionary War and was a public land state. To make the land available for purchase, the government had to have it surveyed, compile plats or maps showing cursory evaluations of the land, with sections in rectangular grids. In districts where the land had been surveyed, the government established an office which offered tracts for purchase, first through public auction and then through private sales. In 1801, the first Indiana Territory came on the market, a strip of the southeastern part of the state offered through the land office in Cincinnati.

When Thomas, Jr. and his family arrived in Indiana, he traveled to Indianapolis to the land office and entered a tract on Section 26 and Section 27 in Morgan County, each consisting of 80 acres in 1828. He was one of the only land owners who entered his farms from the government in the 1820's. When looking at a map of the original land owners in Jackson Township, it is a partial genealogy list of Thomas, Jr. and related families. There are three Land Office Records on the following pages, the third deed is for 64.9 acres in Johnson County, Indiana, Section 30, also purchased in 1828. That land is a short distance from the Bethlehem Church and cemetery.

Although the land was purchased in 1828, all public land deeds had to be sent to the current President of the United States for his signature. The difference in time, from the purchase date in 1828 until the signing of the deeds on 13 April 1829, probably allowed time for the land records to be bundled and sent to Washington for the President to sign. All three of Thomas, Juniors' deeds are signed by President Andrew Jackson. In 1833, Congress authorized that Presidents no longer were required to personally sign the land documents and someone could be appointed to sign for them.

Home of Polly and Thomas Hudiburgh, Jr.

According to family stories, this 80 acre property was patented or granted by the United States Government under President Andrew Jackson to Thomas Hudiburgh, Jr., and his wife Polly on 27 December 1828.

George Miller, son of Mourning Angeline and Christian Miller, Jr., was born in this house in 1861. The home burned four years later and was rebuilt. Although the age of the house is listed on the tax records as being built in 1875, it was actually ten years earlier.

The original house had three rooms upstairs and three rooms downstairs. The open back porch was later converted to a kitchen. There was also a small cellar with a solid rock stairway below the kitchen.

Ownership of the house was passed down through the family with direct descendants of Thomas Hudiburgh living there until the death of Marie Miller Kaiser (daughter of George Miller and Etta V. Anderson) in 1979. (A-12)

The house and 18 acres of land were sold in the mid-1990s to the Halls, a young couple who updated the interior. The Halls later divorced and put the house and two acres up for sale in 2010. As of August 2012 the property had not been sold.

The land that Thomas and his family first lived on in Morgan County was within one of the parcels owned by his daughter, Catherine, and her husband William Merriman. Thomas was not only farming his land but he is listed as one of the early Justices of the Peace in 1830 and opened a general store in 1832. He is further listed in business during 1839 and 1840 with several of the other early residents—Vawter, Trower and Fee.

In the 1830 census he is listed as "Thomas Hudiburg" and in the 1840 census as "Tho Huenderburgh." On the 1840 census, his household consists of 1 male between 15 and 20 (son Solomon); 1 male between 50 and 60, 1 female between 10 and 15 (daughter Phebe), 1 female between 15 and 20 (daughter Dorothy), 1 female between 50 and 60.

In 1841, Thomas Jr. went to Bearden, Knox County, Tennessee and moved his father Thomas, Sr. and step-mother Mary (Polly) Coker, to Indiana to care for them in their old age. They were living with Thomas, Jr. and his wife Polly in their home in Morgantown. Thomas, Sr. and Polly would both die in Morgantown, five days apart, in February, 1842 and were buried in the Bethlehem Cemetery.

The loss of his father and step-mother was compounded by the death of his wife Polly Carter Hudiburgh, seven months later, on 24 September 1842. They had been married for thirty five years and had produced 13 children. She was also buried in the Bethlehem Cemetery in Johnson County, not far from Thomas' parents.

Approximately six months after Polly's death, Thomas married on 30 March 1843, for a second time to Hannah Monhollow, as listed in the Morgan County marriage records. The 1850 census shows Thomas and Hannah living in Hensley Township, Johnson County, Indiana, on the third parcel of land he bought in 1828. Their next door neighbors were Thomas' daughter, Mourning, and her first husband Bloomfield Hensley.

In 1860, they were back in Morgan County, Indiana. Thomas, Jr. was 73 years and his wife Hannah was 60. Thomas' granddaughter, Malvina Kelso, daughter of James Blair Kelso and Malvina Hudiburgh Kelso, Thomas' daughter who had died in 1841, was living in the household with Hannah and Thomas, Jr.

Thomas died 30 June 1865 and is buried near his wife Polly, in the Bethlehem Cemetery. Thomas died intestate since no written will exists. The only mention of Thomas in the *Morgan County, Indiana Will and Prob*ate records is in the probate of John Vawter, where Thomas Hudenburg has neighboring land to Vawter.

The 1870 census listed Hannah as living alone in Jackson Township, Morgan, Indiana. The 1880 census lists her as "Hannah Huterburg" in the household of her nephew, Irvin (Ervin) Townsend in Washington Township. From the Townsend family file in the Morgan County, Indiana library, a partial listing of the Townsend Cemetery lists Hannah Monhollan, wife of Jesse, 18 April 1799 to 22 July 1891, followed by Jesse Hunhulan, 4 August 1795 to 16 May 1841. This Hannah is most likely Thomas' second wife.

Hoosier Homestead Award

Thomas Hudiburgh, Juniors' home was awarded the Hoosier Homestead Award in 1992.

Thomas and his direct descendants lived in the house on Mahalasville Road in Jackson Township from 1828 to 1979.

Marie Miller Kaiser, the last direct descendant to live in the house, willed this property to her two nieces, Mary Miller Stockton and Henrietta Miller Hickman and her nephew, Evan Miller, upon her death in 1979. Evan was later bought out by Mary and Henrietta.

This house was also recognized by the Ten O'Clock Line Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. It is on the DAR registry of century old houses in Indiana.

Subsequent owners of the house were awarded a certificate from the DAR chapter, and the information preserved in libraries in Morgan and Brown counties.

Farm family's roots run deep

Morgantown sisters receive Hoosier Homestead Award

By Nancy Voris
DAILY JOURNAL STAFF WRITER

Like many Hoosiers, Mary Miller Stockton and Henrietta Miller Hickman have roots that grow deep in the rich farmland.

But not many go six generations deep on one farm.

Today, the Morgantown sisters received the Hoosier Homestead Award at the Indiana State Fairgrounds Farm Bureau Building in Indianapolis. They are among 56 families in the state being honored this month for farms owned by the same family for at least 100 years. The farms must be larger than 20 acres or produce at least $1,000 in agricultural products in a year to qualify for the award.

A Johnson County resident also will receive a Hoosier Homestead Award.

Norma Jean Drake Fox, who lives with her husband, Kenneth Fox, in rural Franklin, will be honored for a farm her family owns in Parke County. The farm dates back to 1854, when it was purchased by her great-great-grandfather, David Drake.

Although the Morgantown sisters say they're happy to receive the award, it carries a certain irony.

Stockton and Hickman are selling the home and about 18 of the farm's remaining 60 acres.

Upkeep proved to be too much for the sisters, so when neighbors Montie and Sarah Carpenter Hall approached them about buying it, they agreed.

"It's just like having family there," Stockton said of the Halls, newlyweds who grew up on different sides of the property. Sarah Hall even mowed the lawn for the family when she was 9 years old.

Although they're selling part of the farm, Stockton and Hickman won't be strangers. The Halls have invited them to visit any time they wish.

The sisters trace their family home on Mahalasville Road in Jackson Township back to 1828, when their great-great-great-great-grandfather, Thomas Hudinburgh Jr., purchased the 100-acre farm.

The original six-room house burned in 1865, and the present structure was built a few years later.

Running water and a bathroom were added in the 1940s.

George Miller, grandfather of Stockton and Hickman, was born in the home. So were his children, Claude, Marie and Chester, the sisters' father.

Stockton was the last Hudinburgh descendant to be born in the old house after the sisters' parents moved into the home for a few years after their marriage.

Until the death of their aunt, Marie Miller Kaiser, in 1979, no one except direct Hudinburgh descendants had ever lived in the house.

Stockton, 67, and Hickman, 64, lived in the home two different times during their childhood, and say they have only good memories of growing up on the working farm.

They laugh as they tell of a rooster that relentlessly chased them around the yard. Their mother put their fear of the rooster to good use, when she placed a feather on the threshhold of a room she did not want them playing in. The sisters said they wouldn't venture near that feather.

They also remember their grandfather, George Miller, churning ice cream on Sunday afternoons for neighbors. They remember huckster wagons, complete with groceries, dry goods and cooking utensils peddling their wares on the country roads.

Wandering gypsies also appeared from time to time, and a homeless woman once stayed with them, then moved on to the next home. "Nobody had anything, so you shared what you had," said Hickman.

Now, houses dot the landscape across the road instead of farm fields.

Although the sisters inherited the homestead after the death of their aunt, Marie, they didn't move into the house.

Both had homes of their own, and since no other family members were interested into moving onto the property, the farmhouse remained empty for several years.

The sisters applied for the award in February when they realized they were going to sell part of the homestead. A neighbor will farm the remaining acreage and the sisters will split the cost and receipts of the crops.

The Hoosier Homestead Award is presented by the Office of the Commissioner of Agriculture.

OBITUARY

ETTA V. MILLER.

Etta Viola, daughter of Sampson J. and Mary Terhune Anderson, was born near Morgantown, October 24, 1867. She was one of six children born into this home and the last to answer the call into the beyond—the parents, two brothers and three sisters preceded her in death.

Etta was united in marriage to George W. Miller, December 4, 1887. To this union were born three children, Claude, Chester and Marie, who with the father and four grandchildren hold a vivid memory of her love and affection richened by years of love and devotion.

She was received into the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Morgantown, Feb. 14, 1900, during the ministry of the Rev. Elmer St. Clair and practised the teachings of her Saviour in her devotion to and helpfulness in her home, among friends and neighbors.

Etta was known as a willing helper, wherever her services were needed, in sickness or health, in community where she spent her entire wedded life and her neighbors grief at her passing is mellowed by the many acts of kindness shown them by her through the years of a life devoted to home and others.

Her call to pass on was answered April 10, 1935, after several weeks spent in suffering and a great battle to live and do for those she loved.

"Wherefore, by their fruits shall ye know them"

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our friends relatives and neighbors for their kindness extended during the sickness and death of our wife and mother, Etta V. Miller. We also wish to thank the minister Rev. Bolin and the singers, the Pickerell quartette.—George W. Miller and children.

DEATH CLAIMS OLD RESIDENTS OF COMMUNITY

Funeral services for George Miller 78, who died at his home southwest of Morgantown Sunday, were held at the residence at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. The funeral was in charge of Emerson Clark funeral home. Rev. J. L. Stout of the M. E. church officiated at the services. Interment was in East Hill cemetery.

Mr. Miller has been in poor health for several years. A heart attack last week was the immediate cause of his death. Besides children and grandchildren, he is survived by two brothers, James L. and W. Scott of Morgantown, and two sisters, Mrs. Smith Johnson, Martinsville, and Mrs. Henrietta Heath, Covington, Indiana.

The deceased, son of Christian and Angeline Miller, was born September 22, 1861, and departed this life June 9, 1940, aged 78 years, 8 months and 9 days.

Mr. Miller was married to Etta V. Anderson, December 4, 1887. She preceded him in death, April 10, 1935. To this union were born three children, Claude C. of Indianapolis; Chester A., and Mrs. Harry Kaiser of Morgantown.

Mr. Miller was a member of the Lick Springs M. E. Church, but after abandonment of this church he did not move his membership to any other church, but practiced every day religion the remainder of his life.

He leaves, to miss his counsel and teachng, the three children, with their helpmates, four grandchildren, one great grandchild, his brothers and sisters and a host of other relatives and friends. He spoke no ill of any man and when he could speak no good—he said nothing.

"There is a Power whose care
Teaches thy way along the pathless coast,
The desert, illimitable air
LONE,— WANDERING, but NOT lost.

Bio of Walter Scott Hudiburg

Walter Scott Hudiburg, M. D., one of the younger, but well known members of the medical profession of Montgomery county, is a native of the Sunflower State, the descendant of sturdy German stock, and has inherited many of the best qualities and attributes of that nationality. He was born in Independence township, Montgomery county, Kansas, Feb. 6, 1878. His paternal grandfather, was a native of Indiana, and with his wife and about fifteen other families, emigrated from that state in 1869, at the time when so many emigrants were leaving the Eastern and Northern States, and located on a farm in Montgomery county. He met his death by being bitten by a rattlesnake and was laid to rest in Mount Hope cemetery, at Independence. Dr. HudiburgÂ's maternal grandfather, Robert S. Parkhurst, also came to Kansas from Indiana in 1869, and settled near Independence, where he now (1911) resides, at the advanced age of over eighty-eight years. Louis W. Hudiburg and Abigail Parkhurst were both born and reared in Indiana; they met and were married in that state, where three of their children were born. In the fall of 1869, in company with their parents, they made the long and tedious trip to the new country in the West, for there were few railroads west of the Mississippi river at that early day, and the journey had to be made by water and prairie schooners. For a time Mr. Hudiburg and his family lived at Independence, but he soon took up a homestead in Independence township, Montgomery county, built a house and established a home. There Walter S. was born. The family remained on the old homestead until 1881, when they sold the old farm and moved to a new one near Sycamore in the same county. Mr. Hudiburg was a tiller of the soil all his life; he loved the outdoor life and made a comfortable fortune, though still a young man as we now regard years, when he died at the age of fifty-six, on Sept. 16, 1890. His widow now lives on a farm in Independence township, Montgomery county. Nine children, that grew to maturity and are now living, were born to bless the Hudiburg home; seven sons and two daughters. Walter S. was reared in the country, led the life of a farm boy, going to school winters and working at all the different occupations on a farm in the summer time, but he was ambitious, the desire had grown with him to enter one of the learned professions and at the age of twenty-three he began the study of medicine. Mr. Hudiburg entered the Kansas City Medical College, now the medical department of the University of Kansas, and graduated with honor in the class of 1905. After being out of school for some years it is difficult for any man to return to the desk and laboratory and great credit should be given Dr. Hudiburg for the perseverance, determination and tenacity which enabled him to return to the school room and in so short a period complete one of the hardest and most technical of college courses. Immediately after receiving his degree, the Doctor located at Sycamore, Kan., for the practice of his profession, but two years later saw that there was an excellent opening for a physician in Independence and removed there, where he has since been engaged in actively building up his present gratifying and growing practice. He is a general practitioner, but is also a skillful surgeon and by his delightful manner, cordial sympathy and kindness of heart has gained the confidence of the people of the city where he has elected to make his home. Dr. Hudiburg is a member of the Montgomery County Medical Society and the Kansas State Medical Society. He is also a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Ancient Order of United Workman and the Modern Woodmen of America. On Feb. 15, 1906, he was united in marriage with Myrtle Waggoner.

Walter and his wife Myrtle did not have any children, however, as a physician he delivered many of the county's children during his long career in Montgomery County, Kansas

He was affectionately referred to as "Uncle Doc."

According to family stories, Uncle Doc died of rabbit fever in 1939.

SDAY, MAY 23, 1935

Obituary

John Trig Halsey was born Oct. 15, 1848 and departed this life, May 14, 1935 at the age of 86 years 6 months and 29 days. He was married to Hannah Hudiburg, Sept. 1, 1869 who departed this life June 4, 1932. To this union four children were born, Mrs. Frank Hicks, Harwood, Mo.; Jim Halsey, Sedalia, Mo.; Chas. Halsey, Clinton, Mo.; and Mrs. Wade Johnson, Clinton, Mo.; He united with the Baptist Church of Schell City, Mo. in 1894. Beside his children he leaves to mourn his parting, sixteen grand-children, forty great grand-children, and two great great grand-children, he also leaves three sisters and one brother, Mrs M. M. Burris, Los Angles Calif.; Mrs. Mary Douglas, Urich, Mo.; Mrs, Tom Hardman, ElDorado Springs, Mo.; and Gleaves Halsey, Kansas City Mo. John Trig Halsey moved to Schell City, March 1892 where he made his home until the health of himself and wife made it necessary to give up their home here, and go to live with their daughter, Mrs. Frank Hicks. There Mr. and Mrs. Hicks gave them every care that loving hearts, could give, until first the mother, and now the father passed on to their reward. Funeral service were conducted from the Baptist church Thursday, May 16, by Rev. Clarence Bybee. Six grandsons acted as pall bearers and several great-grand-daughters carried the flowers. Burial was in Greenlawn cemetery beside his wife.

Mr. Halsey served as marshall of our town for many years. One thing that stands out in our memory of him was, when any one was in need and worthy to receive help, Mr. Halsey as marshall, presented the cause to the people, and they, knowing he had investigated, would gladly do their part. His wife, too, is remembered as standing by his side in his ministry of mercy and kindness.

The men about town to whom he was familiarly known as "Jack," for so many years, will miss this friend, and the sorrowing loved ones have the sympathy of the community.

Those here from away to attend the funeral of J. T. Halsey were: Jas. Halsey. who was helping care for him; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Halsey, daughter Nellie, Mrs. Wade Johnson, Gene Hicks and family, Earl and Geo. Halsey and wives, Mrs. Gabe Sersey and son, from Clinton; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Martens of Sedalia; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hardman, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. and Claud Medearis and Mr. Floyd Medearis of El Dorado Spr., Mrs. I. Carriger of Nevada,—all relative of the deceased. Other names we did not learn, may have been here.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our appreciation to our friends and neighbors for the sympathy and kindness shown us in every way, during the illness and after the death of our beloved father, J. T. Halsey.— For the beautiful flowers, the singing, and the wonderful sermon.

His Children.

8-1 William W. Obenshain

William was born in 1840 or 1841 in Indiana. By 1860 he was 19 years old and living at home with his parents. He followed in his father's footsteps and learned the trade of carpentry.

In 1870, he was still living in Jackson, Indiana, but then in the home of Emsley Hilton and family, the local undertaker. William, then 30 years old, was listed as a cabinet maker in the 1870 census records. More than likely he was making coffins for Mr. Hilton William joined the U.S. Army on 9 July 1872 in Indianapolis at age 30 ½ years. A physical description from his military records included blue eyes, black hair, dark complexion and 5'9" tall. He reenlisted on 8 Feb 1879 and remained in the army until 7 Feb 1884.

After his discharge, no further information on him can be found.

8-5 Milton T. Obenshain

Milton was the last child of Sarah and Timothy Obershain. He was born in Morgan County, Indiana, and was only an infant when he died.

Birth: 26 Aug 1850
Death: 10 Nov 1851

His mother, Sarah Jane, died about a month before Milton. Her family, the Hudiburghs, buried her at Bethlehem Cemetery.

Milton's burial site is unknown.

Joanna Day Hudiburgh

In the 1972 Hudiburgh Book on page 8 was the "Saga of Joanna Day." The original Hudiburgh Book authors included this to explain what she went through during her life.

The saga tells us about the moves that were made by her husband and family.

There was no verification of this saga's information in the 1972 Hudiburgh Book. The origin of the saga is unknown.

The saga is one of the few biographies in the book and gives a representation of how their work was handled.

The Saga of Joanna Day, Born in Ohio and No. 16 Solomon Hudiburgh, Born in Tenn.

Solomon b. 1825 and Joanna b. 1825 were married in 1845 in Indiana, and seven children:

1. William Day –	b. 1846 in Indiana
2. Thomas Jefferson	b. 1848 in Indiana
3. Sylvanus Day -	b. 1852 in Indiana
4. Laura J. –	b. 1853 in Indiana
5. George Washington	b. 1856 in Missouri
6. Henrietta and
7. Charles Henry (twins)	b. 1858 in Missouri

About 1855 Solomon and Joanna (who was then pregnant) and their four small children moved by covered wagon from Morgan County Indiana to a farm near Savannah, Missouri. Their fifth child George Washington Hudiburgh was born there.

Solomon's older brother No. 10 John (Uncle Jack) had moved from Indiana in 1840, at age 27 years, to Independence, Montgomery County, Kansas. He d. there in 1870, aged 57 years. He did go back to Indiana in 1866 to help Joanna and others move toward Kansas.

In 1858 Solomon went from their home in Missouri to Fort Scott or Wichita, Kansas to buy cattle. Joanna was pregnant at the time and stayed home with the five children. Solomon was never seen again.

It was supposed that since he carried considerable money he had been robbed and killed. Joanna was delivered of twins in October of that year. She then had seven children under twelve years of age, and a lost husband. She never married again.

Joanna's father-in-law, Thomas Hudiburgh, Jr., went to Missouri from Indiana and got his daughter-in-law and the seven children and brought them back to Indiana by covered wagon.

Joanna and the children lived in Indiana until 1867, the twins were then ten years old. Their Uncle Jack had come back from Kansas and when he returned he took them and several other members of the family westward. They planned to settle in Kansas near their Uncle Jack and his family.

When they were near Quincy, Illinois some of them became ill with typhoid fever. Uncle Jack settled Joanna and children on a farm in McDonough County, Illinois and he went on back to Kansas.

Laura married John C. Lucas in 1869 and in 1870 the entire family left Illinois headed for Kansas. In Missouri they had ferried the Osage River and on their way they were told of a huge prarie fire ahead. They had to turn back, cross the river again, and finally settled on a farm near Marshall, Missouri. They finally moved to a farm in Jewell County, Kansas in 1873.

In 1889 Joanna moved with her son "Vene" and her daughter "Etta" to Bronaugh, Missouri where she died Jan. 6, 1906.

Joanna's oldest son, William Day Hudiburgh, was in the Civil War, Company D - 33rd Regiment of Indiana Volunteer Infantry -- was in the battle of Missionary Ridge, and later was killed in the Battle of Nashville in 1863.

Her second son, Thomas Jefferson "Uncle Tom" Hudiburgh joined Indiana Volunteer Infantry, Company "K" - 145th Regiment as a bugler and was honorably discharged in 1866. He died April 25, 1932.

Bible Information of Thomas J. Hudiburgh

This is the old Record copied by my father Thomas J. Hudiburgh on Dec. 9th 1894 from his mothers old Record. I recopied it on June 20th 1942.

Solomon Hudiburgh and Joannah Day were married July 30, 1845 at Morgantown Indiana.

Joannah Day was one of 11 children born to William Day and Nancy Kirkpatrick Day his wife, who was born in Ireland in 1803 came to America in 1815 and was buried in Monrovia Indiana in 1875 in the West Newton Quaker Cemetery. Her grave is well marked.

Grandfather Solomon Hudiburgh and his wife Joannah Day Hudiburgh

migrated to Missouri. We have no dates for that, nor for the time that Solomon Hudiburgh left his family there in Mo. and started westward to find a new home. He never was heard from again. No one has ever known what may have happened him.

Some time later Grandmother Joannah H. moved to Kansas where she lived for a few years. but she returned to Mo. before 1890 and died at Bronaugh Mo. in 1906

Lewis Clock Hudiburgh and Dorcus Kelso
Married 1 January 1812, Knox County, Tennessee

Lewis Clock Hudiburgh

When Lewis left the home place in Bearden, he moved to Knoxville and married Dorcas Kelso on 1 January 1812. They produced seven children from 1815-1829. His family experienced an early and tragic end. Their daughter, Margaret Adeline, died in 1830 and, according to her obituary, "Died, Thursday last, the daughter of Lewis Hudeberg, aged 9 years of burns." Lewis, his wife Dorcas Kelso, and two of their children, Charles (age 9) and Lewis (12), all died within a month of each other in 1838 from a fever epidemic that was sweeping the nation.

Their other children, Thomas Alexander and Albert Smith, married and lived in Knoxville their entire lives. Thomas was on the Board of Alderman (city council) in Knoxville from 1880-1882. Originally buried at East Hill Church Cemetery, he was reinterred when the cemetery was moved to Woodlawn Cemetery in south Knoxville in 1968. Albert opened a grocery business on Market Square in Knoxville in 1854 and was also on the Board of Alderman in 1866 and 1867. Albert and his family are all buried at Old Gray Cemetery in downtown Knoxville.

Mary Ann married William Harrison White and they lived in Knoxville (1850 census), then moved to Indiana (1860 census) where Harrison died in 1869. With the exception of Albert and Samuel, Mary Ann's children left the household during the late 1860s. She and the boys are on the 1870 census in Indianapolis. She later moved to St. Louis, Missouri, where she was living with Albert and his family on the 1880 census. According to family stories, she later moved with Albert and Samuel to California and is found living alone on the 1900 census in Pasadena, California. She died there in 1901.

Another daughter, Harriet, married a Hickey, but there is no further information on her.

Lewis, Dorcas, Margaret, Lewis C., and Charles were originally buried at the Old Second Presbyterian Church Cemetery. When the church and property were sold in 1905. the family was reinterred at Woodlawn Cemetery.

The headstones of Lewis and wife Dorcus, sons Lewis C. and Charles, and daughter Margaret A. are mounted on this family headstone.

Mrs. Hudiburg had been a resident of Knoxville almost all of her life. She was one of the oldest members of First M. E. church. During her early life she was actively engaged in religious and civic work, always promoting organizations for the betterment of the church and community.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home of her daughter, Mrs. John M. Currier, 610 East Hill avenue, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. J. J. Ellington, associate pastor of First M. E. church, will officiate. Interment will be in Old Gray cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Charles L. Parham, W. M. Gillenwaters, R. R. Stripling, John C. Houk, Pryor Brown and D. L. Million.

Surviving Mrs. Hudiburg are two daughters, Mrs. L. C. Houk and Mrs. John M. Currier, one son; Charles A. Hudiburg, Chattanooga; two brothers, W. W. Scarborough, Knoxville, and J. M. Scarborough, Chattanooga.

When Mr. and Mrs. Hudiburg married and settled in this city, they established a home which was noted for its hospitality. This city was then small, having only a few thousand population. The Hudiburgs spent all of their married life here and took active interest in the growth of the city and all civic organizations.

The old Hudiburg residence is still standing on West Clinch avenue. It is an old brick structure of the colonial type, constructed just after the close of the civil war.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

HUDIBURG—Mrs. Charles A. Hudiburg died Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock at the Knoxville General hospital, following an illness of about ten weeks.

Funeral services over the body will be conducted at St. John's Episcopal church Thursday afternoon at o'clock, Rev. Walter C. Whitaker, officiating. Interment will be in Old Gray cemetery. The pall-bearers will be Albert G. Hope, Fred Roberts, R. S. Hommel, Hu M. Webb, Dan M. Chamblss and John D. Caldwell. July 3, 1919 KJ+T

Mrs. Hudiburg was born in Galveston, Texas, April 18, 1872, and was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Schott, of Galveston. Her mother is deceased. After receiving her preliminary education in the schools in Texas, Mrs. Hudiburg attended school at Beechcroft, near Nashville, and later was a student at the College of Music at Cincinnati, for two years. She was a talented musician. She was married June 9, 1897 to Mr. Hudiburg, who was at that time teller in the Third National bank in Knoxville.

After her marriage Mrs. Hudiburg was received in social and musical circles in Knoxville remaining here for 8 years, until Mr. Hudiburg removed to Galveston, where he remained until they returned to Knoxville a few months ago.

Mrs. Hudiburg has been in ill health for the last few years and they decided to return to East Tennessee, where they thought the mountain climate would be beneficial to her health. Mr. Hudiburg is now engaged with the Kuhlman stores.

Surviving Mrs. Hudiburg are her husband and three children, Louise Christine, John Justus and Charles Edward Hudiburg, her father Dr. J. J. Schott, of Galveston, and one sister, Miss Christine Schott of San Angelo, Texas.

Mrs. Hudiburg was well known and popular in Knoxville, both before the family left to reside in Texas and after they returned to the city a few months ago to reside. She was interested in the church and social affairs and always showed her true Christian spirit and was considered a lovable and popular women by all who knew her. She was a member of St. John's Episcopal church and was always interested in the activities of the church work, when her health would permit. The members of the family received many expressions of sympathy following the announcement of the death of Mrs. Hudiburg.

The body was removed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Currier, 610 East Hill avenue, Mrs. Currier being a sister of Mr. Hudiburg.

J. EDWARD HUDIBURG DEAD.

Well Known Young Man Passes Away at the Home of His Parents.

May 22 1905

J. Edward Hudiburg, aged twenty-nine years, son of John L. and Lucy J. Hudiburg, died at the residence of his parents at 303 East Cumberland avenue Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Death is attributed to typhoid fever. His illness was a very brief one, he having only returned home from St. Louis, where he was employed by the Missouri Pacific railway, on last Tuesday evening upon the advice of his physician there that he would probably have a long siege with the fever.

He was a machinist by trade, having apprenticed himself at the Southern shops in this city and since that time has traveled throughout the United States from Washington to San Francisco, working at his trade. He belonged to Hill City lodge No. 58 International Association of Machinists.

Ed Hudiburg, as he was popularly known, was an exceptional young man in many respects and had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. He was in earnest at everything he undertook, whether in his own business or working in the interests of others.

Being advised while in St. Louis that he should either go to a hospital or return to his home, his longing to see his mother prompted him to a long and hazardous trip in his condition of health, he being so weak when he arrived here that it was with great difficulty that he was carried from the cab into his father's home. Then he improved and it was not thought that the illness would prove so serious. However, about 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning he began to show symptoms of a turn for the worse, but upon the appearance of his physician he seemed to rally somewhat only to take another turn for the worse about noon and at 2:30 o'clock to breathe his last.

He is survived by his father and mother, one brother, Chas. Hudiburg, teller at the Third National bank, and two sisters, Mrs. L. C. Houk and Mrs. John M. Currier.

The funeral service will be conducted at the home of the parents at 303 East Cumberland avenue, Monday afternoon at three o'clock, Rev. E. B. Olmstead, of the First M. E. church, officiating. Interment will be in Old Gray cemetery.

Albert Smith White and daughter Maude

Albert Smith White was a roaming newspaper reporter who worked for various newspapers around the country. He and and his wife, Bessie (Elizabeth L. Case), were separated at the time of her sudden death in 1885. She was living with a brother, Henry Case, in Chicago with her young daughter, Maude Smith White, who was not quite 5 years old.

When Maude's mother died, she was adopted by a distant cousin, Edwin Wolever and his wife, with the stipulation that Albert and his mother, Mary Ann White, would have visitation rights. After the adoption was settled, however, the Wolevers took Maude and disappeared. They changed her name to Maud (dropping the "e") and added a new middle name, Kathryn. She grew up as Maud Kathryn Wolever. The new name was never recorded .

Maud married Bert Rice and had a son and a daughter. Maud knew she was somehow related to the Case family and therefore enjoyed a close relationship with several cousins. In 1934, she was informed that she could become a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) through her Case family line. She was very curious and hired a genealogist who located her father, Albert White, living in Terre Haute. They all had a joyous reunion. Years before, Albert's mother, Mary Ann Hudiburgh White, told him that Maud died young. Imagine his surprise and happiness to find his daughter!*

Civil War

The original thirteen American colonies declared their independence from England on 4 July 1776, leading to the Civil War. With the help of French allies, George Washington and his army defeated General Cornwallis at Yorktown in 1781.

The country wasn't doing well under the Articles of Confederation, so George Washington stepped in and was a prime mover in the Constitutional Convention at Philadelphia in 1787. When the new constitution was ratified, Washington was unanimously elected the first president of the country. He is the only president that was ever elected with all electoral votes.

Washington served from 1789 through 1797 and was followed by John Adams and fourteen other presidents before 1856, when James Buchanan from Pennsylvania was elected the fifteenth president.

The nation was rapidly dividing at this time over the question of slavery, and Buchanan believed that Constitutional doctrines would close this widening rift if, through a sectional balance in his appointments, the people could be persuaded to accept the constitutional law as the Supreme Court interpreted it. He did not understand that the North would not accept Constitutional arguments that favored the South.

Two days after Buchanan's inauguration, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court delivered the Dred Scott decision, asserting that Congress had no constitutional power to deprive persons of their property rights to slaves in the territories. Southerners were delighted, but the decision created a furor in the North.

Buchanan decided to end the troubles in Kansas by urging the admission of the territory as a slave state. With this decision he further angered the Republicans and alienated members of his own party. Kansas remained a territory.

When the Republicans won a plurality in the House in 1858, every significant bill they passed fell before the southern votes in the Senate or a Presidential veto. The Federal Government reached a stalemate.

Sectional strife rose to such a pitch in 1860 that the Democratic party split into northern and southern wings, each nominating its own candidate for the presidency. Consequently, when the Republicans nominated Abraham Lincoln, it was a forgone conclusion that he would be elected even though he was on no southern ballot. The southerners advocated "secession" rather than have a Republican administration.

Buchanan, dismayed and hesitant, denied the legal right of states to secede, but held that the Federal Government could not legally prevent them to from doing so. A hoped for compromise never materialized.

Buchanan reverted to inactivity. When he left office in March, 1861, he left the issues facing the country for his successor to resolve.

Abraham Lincoln won the 1861 election handily and warned the South in his inaugural address, "In your hands, my dissatisfied fellow countrymen, and not in mine, is the momentous issue of civil war. The government will not assail you…You have no oath registered in Heaven to destroy the government, while I shall have the most solemn one to preserve, protect and defend it."

Lincoln thought secession illegal, and was willing to use force to defend Federal law and the Union. When the Confederate batteries fired on Fort Sumter on April 12, 1861, and forced its surrender, he called on the states for 75,000 volunteers. Four more slave states joined the Confederacy but four others remained within the Union. The Civil War had begun.

Lincoln, as President, built the Republican Party into a strong national organization and further rallied most of the northern Democrats to the Union cause. On January 1, 1863, he issued the Emancipation Proclamation that forever freed the slaves within the Confederacy.

Lincoln did not let the world forget that the Civil War involved an even larger issue. When dedicating the military cemetery at Gettysburg, he said "that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

When Robert E. Lee, commander of the Southern Army, surrendered at Appomattox Court House on April 9, 1865, to General U. S. Grant, the war had raged for 4 years and 620,000 Americans had been killed—the most Americans in all wars before or after, combined.

Lincoln was re-elected in 1864. The Union forces were triumphant on the fighting field, and Lincoln was planning for peace. He was flexible and generous, encouraging Southerners to lay down their arms and join in with a speedy reunion.

In his second inaugural address, he said: "With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds….."

On 14 April 1865, Lincoln was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth, and the possibility of peace with magnanimity died with him.

Solomon Hudiburgh

The fourth child and third son of Thomas and Dolly was Solomon. In the family bible, he is listed only as Solomon. There is no definitive answer why his name has come down as Solomon Amos. Other places where he is listed as Solomon are deeds found in the archives in Nashville and on his headstone. In the Civil War records of his son, James, and his marriage bond, he is listed as Solomon S. Hudiburgh. The only document that shows his initials to be S. A. is a letter he wrote to his parents in 1810. A family story notes that Solomon's grandson, Solomon Amos, born only days before Solomon died, was named after him. It is believed (but not verified) that this grandson could have possibly been named after his grandfather Joseph Amos and his great grandfather Solomon. Until this mystery is resolved, he will be referred to as Solomon Hudiburgh.

Solomon was an adventurous fellow and the first of the children to leave the home place in Bearden, Tennessee. He learned the blacksmith trade at his father's home and also worked at the inn.

Solomon married Rachel Ashworth on 4 December 1810 in Knoxville and they produced four children: Thomas C. (1812), Joseph A. (1814), Margaret (1816), and Andrew Love (1818). Soon after Andrew's birth, Solomon moved his family to Overton County, Tennessee, where he worked as a blacksmith. Four more children were born in Overton County: Lewis (1821), Jasper(1824-1828), John M.(b & d. 1827), and Rachel (1829). The family moved to Hardin County, Tennessee, and were listed on the 1830 and 1840 census. Daughter America (1831) and son James (1834) were born in Hardin County.

On the 1850 and 1860 census they lived in Pontotoc County, Mississippi. Solomon, Rachel, Cassandra, Am and James are found on the 1850 census,. His son James was killed in the Civil War, and Solomon filed for his back pay. James was wounded at the Battle of Seven Pines on 31 May 1862. Taken to the hospital in Richmond, Virginia, he died of his wounds and Unger fever. It is assumed he was buried in Virginia. No additional information has been found about the daughter America.

Prior researchers listed only seven of Solomon and Rachel's children. Janie Caperton, keeper of the family bibles, didn't know why these additional children's names were listed in the Hudiburgh/Ashworth bible. A reevaluation of the bible pages showed three children that had never been listed. Two of these children died at a young age (Japer D. and John M.), and the third, James, was killed in the Civil War. Since their births and deaths were listed in this bible, they have been added to the list of Solomon and Rachel's children. (James' parentage verified by Civil War records as well).

Solomon worked as a blacksmith his entire life and was obviously good at his work. His first son, Thomas, died in 1857 and the only child left at home was America (listed as Am on the 1850 census). Late in 1860, there was a fire at the home place in Mississippi. Solomon and Rachel, age 67 and 65, decided to move to Hardin County, Tennessee, close to their son Joseph and his family. Solomon and Rachel are subsequently found on the 1870 census living in the household of son Joseph on Hardin Creek.

It is known, however, that Solomon and Rachel lived with Joseph and his wife for only a few years. The dates for Joseph and Jane's deaths are unknown. Due to a fire at the Hardin County Courthouse, the census mortality records for 1870 do not exist and verification of Joseph and Jane's dates cannot be found on that record. It is assumed that they died sometime after the 1870 census and before Rachel's death in 1873. Both Joseph and Jane are buried in Bethlehem II Cemetery in Olive Hill, Hardin County, Tennessee.

Rachel and Solomon's children scattered to the wind: Thomas died in 1857 in Tennessee; Andrew Love and his family emigrated to east Texas and he died in 1871 in Homer, Angelina County, Texas; Lewis died in 1852 in Tennessee; Rachel married Benjamin Henry Cole and had "gone to Texas" where she died on 13 April 1898 in Cherokee County; and James died in 1862 from Civil War injuries.

With the exception of daughter Rachel Cassandra, Solomon and Rachel amazingly outlived all of their children. Rachel died on 26 August 1873 and was buried next to her son Joseph and his wife Jane in Bethlehem II Cemetery. Solomon's grandson, Solomon Amos, son of Solomon Smith, was born 11 September 1876 in Hardin County. Great grandfather Solomon would meet his namesake before he died nine days later on 20 September 1876. Solomon was interred next to his beloved wife Rachel.

1. Thomas C. Hudiburgh

Thomas C. Hudiburgh, according to the Hudiburgh/Ashworth bible, was born on 18 March 1812 in Knox County, Tennessee. He may have married while living in Tennessee, with this first wife dying in childbirth. Neither a date for this marriage, the name of the wife, nor the date or reason for her death has been verified.

Reportedly, a son from that marriage, James Jasper Hudiburgh, born in 1836, was cared for by one of the deceased wife's relatives. After this birth, Thomas C. moved to Mississippi and (conjecture) may never have had further contact with this son. Future research may shed light on this mystery.

The Hudiburgh/Ashworth bible verifies that Thomas married twice, first to Susannah Hall on 6 Nov 1837, then to Amanda Elizabeth Wilks on 10 Nov 1853, both in Pontotoc County, Mississippi.

Thomas and Susannah had three children between 1841 and 1850: Nancy Joanne, Rachel, and Elizabeth Ann.

A letter from C. E. Kelso to Rev. J. W. Hudiburgh, 9 July 1934, states the following: "Another letter from Jasper N. Hudiburgh of Camden, Arkansas, who says his father was James Jasper Hudiburgh and was born in middle Tennessee. His father had a half sister by the name of Joann Hubbard, Pontotoc, Mississippi." (38)

This letter links James Jasper directly to Thomas and Susanah's eldest daughter, Nancy Joanne, making James and Nancy half siblings with the same father, Thomas C. Hudiburgh. This link further lead to an obituary for Mrs. Joe Hubbard, dated 6 July 1916, which states she was Nancy Joanne Hudiburgh prior to her marriage to William M. Hubbard.

Susannah Hall Hudiburgh died about 1852 after which Thomas married Amanda Wilks in 1853. He and Amanda did not have any children.

Their marriage was short: Thomas died on 31 January 1857. There is no record of a burial site, but it is likely in Mississippi.

Third wife Amanda returned to her parents' home and never remarried. She died on 9 November 1903 and is buried in Campground Cemetery, Pontotoc County, Mississippi.

Thomas' daughter, Elizabeth Ann (1850), is found on the 1860 census living with her Hall grandmother. Thomas' second daughter, Rachel, is living with her paternal grand parents, Solomon and Rachel, in Mississippi in 1860. Prior to her father's death, daughter Nancy Joanne married William Hubbard on 30 November 1836 in Pontotoc County, Mississippi.

Rev. J.W. Hudiburgh
Tonkawa, Okl.

Dear Sir: I am in receipt of a copy of your letter of June 11. to Mrs. A. C. McCarty, a distant cousin of mine - We have been gathering information for the Hudiburgh (also Kelso) genealogy for a good many years.

I am related to the Hudiburghs in a good many ways - A great aunt of mine, Dorcas Kelso, married Lewis Hudiburgh in 1812. My grandfather, James Balch Kelso, married Malvina Hudiburgh, a daughter of Thomas, Jr. in 1825, in the 2nd Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, Tenn.

His nephew, Alexander Blair Kelso, married Eliza Hudiburgh, sister of Malvina, all as shown on the sheets I am sending you - Also find a memo. showing marriages of other Hudiburghs Thomas, Solomon D. and Elizabeth -

Your suggestion that there might have been others in the family had not occurred to me - However there are 2 named Thomas, married in 1806 & 1809 - but I do not find any record of Thomas who married Mary McCarty in 1809 - while we have the record of our Thomas who married Polly McMillan in 1806 & who died in Indiana in 1842 -

My people lived in Knoxville for many years, from about 1800 to 1830 - & lived a short distance from the Hudiburgh's.

Of course it was out in the country then, but Now the old Hudiburgh house is 4453 Kingston Pike of course there might have been others in the family or Thomas Sr. might have had a brother there -

I was born in Morgantown, Indiana, in 1859 - Where the Hudiburghs, Kelso's and several other families moved from in & around Knoxville about 1828-30 - A great deal of my information is from the old bible of Thomas Jr. and from the tombstones in the 2 cemeteries at Morgantown.

I have letters from J. W. Hudiburgh (now dead) who lived with his grandfather Thomas Jr - also one letter from Nancy H. Halsey, who states her father was Samuel Smith Hudiburgh, born in 1814. She lived Missouri in 1879 - Another letter from Jasper N. Hudiburgh of Camden Ark. who says his father was James Jasper Hudiburgh & was born in Middle, Tenn. His father had a half sister by name of Joann Hubbard, Ontario Miss Jasper had one brother James Thomas and a sister Mary Eady, Judsonia, Ark.

While Thomas Hudiburgh Sr. was quite noted as a baptist preacher - most of his descendants are presbyterians.

Any thing you can do will certainly be appreciated by Mrs McCarty and myself.

I have been visiting Knoxville for several years during the winters & may be there again next winter - as I am still going pretty well at 75.

Please write Mrs McCarty or to me as I am writing her that I have sent you the list - or a part.

Sincerely yours
C. E. Kelso,

4-1-1 James Jasper Hudiburgh

Research verifies that James Jasper Hudiburgh was born in 1836 in Tennessee, and his father was Thomas C. Hudiburgh. (See C. E. Kelso letter explaining the connection.) The mother of James is unverified but research suggests that she is the child of Sarah Milan.

Speculation is that James' mother died, possibly in childbirth, and his grandmother, Sarah, or another daughter, Matilda Milan (married to John McMullin), took care of James after his birth.

The 1840 census places an extra male child in the McMullin household and this child is believed to be James. Obviously, he was raised by his aunt and/or grandmother Sarah, and remained with them while growing up.

James Jasper is on the 1850 census at age 14 residing in the household of the John McMullin family. Sarah Milam, age 72, born in Virginia, is listed directly above him on the census record. His uncle, John McMullin, is listed head of household.

Other ties connect James Jasper to the Shelton, Wylie, Rubble, and Koonce families. One tie is to Francis Marion Shelton who married Sarah Belle Milan, another daughter of Sarah Milan. When F. M. Shelton died in 1858 in Shelby County, Tennessee, J.J. Hudiburgh was the estate administrator. He also served as bondsman for the marriage of Sarah Elizabeth Shelton to David C. Green.

On the 1860 census, J. J. Huterberg was in the household of the Koonce and Wiley families in Prairie County, Arkansas. The tie to the Wiley family goes from Elizabeth Shelton (sister of Francis Marion Shelton) who married James J. Rubble. Their daughter, Catherine Rubble, married David T. Wylie who was later killed in the Civil War.

James lived in various households on his mother's side of the family until he was an adult, and was tied closely to all of them. Any contact with his father would be speculation.

James Jasper married Cynthia(Syntha) A. Smith on 12 Sept 1867 in Prairie County, Arkansas. Cynthia had been married to George W. Smith and had one daughter, Phebe.

The marriage license states his age as 81 years and Cynthia's age as 29 years, however, this is probably a clerical error. Research indicates he was actually 31 years at the time of the marriage.

The 1870 census lists James and Cynthia living and farming in Caroline, Pulaski County, Arkansas. James, 34, Cynthia, 32, Phebe, 10 and James G., 2 are listed on this census.

The 1880 census in Bayou Metoe, Pulaski County, Arkansas, lists James for the last time. He is listed as a farmer, age 43, along with Cynthia, age 42, with the following children: Phebe A., age 20 (daughter of George W. Smith, Cynthia's first husband), James. T., age 11, Alice L., age 9, Jasper N., age 6 and Mary Jane, age 4.

A death and burial place for James Jasper has not been found, although some researchers believe he may be buried in Camden, Arkansas. His wife Cynthia, found on the 1900 census in the home of her daughter, Mary Jane and family (the Eadys), remained in their household until her death in 1928. She never remarried and is buried in the Providence Missionary Baptist Church Cemetery just north of Judsonia, Arkansas. Her daughter, Phebe Smith Monk, is buried next to her mother in the same cemetery.

1. James Thomas Hudiburgh and 2. Alice L. Hudiburgh

Very little information is available about James Thomas and Alice L. Hudiburgh, children of James Jasper and Cynthia Lymon Hudiburgh.

Source for their approximate birth dates is the 1880 census.

Information received from the caretaker at the Sumner Cemetery outside of Cabot, Arkansas, indicates that they are buried there. He has the location of the graves that are only marked by white stones.

There is no information on their death dates.

Any further information on these two people would be appreciated.

Andrew Love Hudiburgh

Andrew Love Hudiburgh, fourth child born to Rachel C. Ashworth and Solomon Hudiburgh, was the last of their children born in Knox County, Tennessee, before the family moved to Overton County, Tennessee. The family moved around a great deal and was listed as living in Hardin County on the 1840 census. Subsequently, they moved to Pontotoc County, Mississippi. It is not known if Andrew moved with the family to Mississippi, but it seems likely. He probably married Mary Melton Cole in Mississippi about 1843-1844 although a marriage license for them has not been found in Mississippi or Tennessee

After their marriage, they produced three children in Mississippi: Rachel Ann(1844-1918), Samuel Solomon (1846-1875), and Mary Cassandra (1853-1897). They moved to Larissa, Cherokee County, Texas, and later to Homer, Angelina County, Texas, where the rest of the children were born: John Henry (1856-1865), Lucy Cole (1858-1875), Sarah Catherine, called Piccie (1859-1935), Susan, called Sudie (1861-1880), Andrew Lee (1863-1941), Willie Ophelia (1865-1938), Robert Little(1868-1877), and Ellie (1870-1872).

Like his father, Solomon, Andrew was a blacksmith. Soon after they moved to Homer, Andrew set up a hotel in a log cabin. He joined the 7th Texas Cavalry, 3rd Brigade, on 15 July 1863 in Nacogdoches County. He initially signed up for six months but extended for an additional six months. At the time he was 46 years old on the muster roll index and went into the service as a first lieutenant. According to family stories, he remained in the Confederate States of America service until the end of the Civil War.

Andrew was not only a hotel owner and blacksmith but also an accomplished woodworker. During his lifetime, he accumulated large land holdings and, at the time of his death, was the largest taxpayer in Angelina County. He had never been sick a day in his life, but suddenly died of flux (dysentery) on 6 July 1871 in Homer.

Curiously, he executed a new will one week before his death. His wife Mary and son Samuel S. were the executors of his estate but Mary would die of heart failure the next year. The estate was not finalized until 1878, when the distribution of the land and assets were settled among the children.

Andrew and Mary are buried in the Whitehouse Cemetery in Lufkin. Texas. There are no headstones to mark their burial place.

Murder of C. E. Cansler

On July 31, 1936, more than 800 people jammed into the small Zavalla Cemetery in Angelina County, Texas, to watch the burial of an electrocuted murderer. Another thousand curiosity-seekers were turned away by lawmen warily watching the crowd. The crime for which young Glenn Warren had been executed led to five deaths, sent another man to prison for 99 years, and wrecked the lives of two families.

The chain of violence began during the early morning hours of 9 February 1934. As Charles Cansler, known as "Uncle Charlie" was dressing, Glenn Warren, Roy Cusack and Bernard LaCoume broke into his home, pistol-whipped Cansler and beat and gagged his wife, Sarah Hudiburgh Cansler. Cansler died but his wife survived.

Leaving the home with Cansler's safe, LaCoume argued with Warren and Cusack, finally jumping out of the car. A Zavalla constable picked up LaCoume with bloody clothing and LaCoume identified Warren and Cusack as his partners. That same day, Warren and Cusack were arrested in Galveston, Texas, with the Cansler safe. It only contained $40.

Based on the testimony of Sarah Cansler all three were found guilty. Warren and LaCoume were given the death penalty and Cusack went to prison for 99 years. Bernard LaCoume was executed on 23 Aug 1935 and Glenn Warren on 20 July 1936 in Huntsville, Texas.

The string of deaths wasn't over yet. Sarah Cansler died of her injuries in the months after the trial. Warren's father, Albert Warren, and Cansler's son, Marcus, began threatening each other in Zavalla. Marcus was vehemently opposed to burying Glenn Warren in the same cemetery where his father was interred. On 3 July 1936, the two men met in a duel near Zavalla. Marcus Cansler fired two gunshot blasts, killing the elder Warren, and claimed that Albert Warren had pulled a pistol.

Marcus Cansler was charged with murder but when he went on trial in November, 1937, famed lawyer J.J. Collins, who had helped prosecute Glenn Warren, convinced the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

Another twist to the story—Albert Warren, father of Glenn Warren, was a brother to Salome Warren, wife of Marcus Cansler.

Dear Cousin M.C.

Your kind letter dated May 18. was eagerly perused by me on my return from Clarksville Tenn. June 9th

L.C. Hudiburgh & myself were lawfully united in marriage May 12th & left next day for C. to attend the General Assembly of the C.P. Church.

We had quite a pleasant journey. Traveling agreed with us finely, especially Mr. H. whose health was measurably restored previously. The confinement in the G.A. did not agree with him so well as traveling. His commission was from Clarksville Tenn.

My cousins be assured gladly would I have visited you if it had been convenient to spend the time. Mr. H. was under promise to take charge of the destitute portions in the bounds of this Pres. on his return. He expressed himself willing to gratify my inclination to visit my relations. But I could not hinder him in his ministerial operations. Knowing, too, your engagements I would be limited to the enjoyment of your company at night. Mr. H. says I may yet avail myself of the old promise of a visit next fall. How that visit will terminate is uncertain. But I anxiously aspire to visit this Dear relations.

I visited Mr. Hs. relations immediately after my return. Spent a week pleasantly. Am now at Father's while he is off preaching. Went last Thursday — expect to be absent several weeks in each missionary tour.

I suspect to go to Tex. perhaps late next fall. But my hus-

Dear Cousin—

A month ago this morning at half past 7 o'clock my beloved companion departed this life. But "earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal." Yes when I feel that my dear husband is now sainted—resting with God I can but say "the will of the Lord be done." And as he said to me "we'll not be parted long, you will soon come to me, why should I grieve!" I do not as one without hope my cousin. I know I am not long left to bear with either _____ so lonely for life is short.

Mr. Hudiburgh died at Bailey's Springs. But I was privileged to haste to his bed side two days and three nights before his exit from time. The surprise with me was very great to receive the intelligence that he was ill. I had just received the most favorable news from him. Pa left him on the 12th of June much improved as was thought. He was relieved of dropsy entirely. An abscess was surprised to be formed on his liver and found fatal.

Mr. H. was entirely unable until Friday, the 4th, being tired and very much reduced. He seemed so gratified to see me, to continue to express himself greatly delighted to have me with him all next day.

Dear Cousin

A month ago this morning at half past 7 o'clock my beloved companion departed this life— But "earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal" Yes when I feel that my dear husband is now sainted— resting with God I can but say "the will of the Lord be done." And as he said to me "we'll not be parted long you will soon come to me"; why should I grieve! I do not as one without hope my cousin. I know I am not long left to bear with either trials so lonely, for life is short.

Mr. Hudiburgh died at Baileys Springs. But I was privileged to haste to his bed side two days & three nights before his exit from time. The surprise with me was very great to receive the intelligence that he was ill. I had just received the most favorable news from him. Pa left him on the 12th of June much improved as was thought. He was relieved of dropsey entirely. An abscess was supposed to be formed on his liver & proved fatal.

Mr. H. was entirely unable until Friday the 4th being tired & very much reduced. He seemed so gratified to see me, to continued to express himself greatly delighted to have me with him all next day.

My own dear husband was anxious for my welfare as long as he was sensible. The last day and night he was mostly unconscious. I roused him to consciousness late Friday eve when he looked at me and spoke as if he thought I was his ma. I then asked him if he did not know I had come. He then said O'yes you did come and clasped his cold arms around my neck for the last time.

It seems to me now if I had only been with Mr. H. during his absence at those Springs I could have felt better satisfied. But we talked about my going and it was not considered advisable for me to go. I kept in pretty good spirits in his absence because I promised him to be cheerful as possible and his letters were mostly encouraging his recovery. He had a vehicle there to come home himself and sent it for me. My coz, our union was short but how sweet to me is its memory, while I could be permitted to enjoy his society. And in sickness I felt it a great privilege to minister to the wants of one who was so near and dear to my heart.

When I think over Mr. H's conversation to me in reference to this departure, it seems he said all that was necessary. He said, "to me you are the only tie I have to earth—I suffer a thousand deaths but that is nothing compared with what I suffer when I think of leaving you in this cold, troublesome, friendless world." He asked me if I would be resigned to his departure. I told him

I would not bind him to earth if he felt so willing and ready to be released from this earthly tenement. Then he would speak of his unearthlyness if in acceptance with God—he said there was no merit of his but though the merits of Christ, was his hope treasured of. I feel that "am in inconsolable _____so now added between where he reposes with your little one in his bosom." Our infant son was placed in the same coffin with his father .....

I have returned to the old homestead last Sat,

Your bereaved cousin,

G. M. Hudiburgh

On side of letter: I found all well and ready to console one. Pa went to Baileys Springs for me. My health was such that it required slow traveling. We were and are coming to Richmond. We came to Florence where Mr. H. was buried the first day. I went to his grave. Had a desire to linger and then I thought that his soul is not here.....

Last two paragraphs not transcribed but we now know he was buried in Florence, Alabama.

Joseph Amos Hudiburgh

Joseph Amos Hudiburgh was born in Knox County, Tennessee, in 1814. His father, Solomon, moved the family with regularity, first to Overton County, and then to Hardin County, Tennessee. The 1820 census lists them in Overton County and in Hardin County in 1830 and 1840.

Joseph married Jane Hardin, daughter of Sally Gallaher and Gibson Hardin, on 9 July 1835 in Hardin County. From information copied from Joseph Hudiburgh's bible by Janie Caperton, it verifies this date although a marriage license was not found in Hardin County. The court house was burned during the Civil War and the records there begin after 1865. A little known fact about Jane is she had a twin sister, Sarah. During their marriage, they produced six children, including the Hudiburgh ancestor Solomon Smith.

They bought land on Indian Creek and lived and farmed there for the rest of their lives. Joseph was very active in the Presbyterian Church and instilled this faith in all of his children. After the Civil War, son Gibson Hardin became a Presbyterian minister and Joseph was an elder in the Olive Hill Presbyterian Church.

The date of Joseph's death is unknown. Neither Jane's birth date nor her death date is known. Family stories intimate that they both died in the same year, perhaps 1856. However, both are found on the 1870 census in Hardin County with their daughter Sallie still living in the household. In a letter to his daughters, Jesse Walker Hudiburg, grandson of Joseph and Jane, said that he was lucky to have known not only his grandparents but his great-grandparents, as they had outlived their son and his wife Jane.

Solomon died in 1876 and his wife died in 1873. Quite possibly Joseph and Jane died after the 1870 census but before 1873. The headstone for Joseph in the Bethlehem II Cemetery is broken under the word Born. His wife Jane's headstone was verified in August 1953 but is now lost.

The birth dates of all of the children, with the exception of the youngest child, Sarah Ann, called Sallie, were listed in Joseph's bible, as transcribed by Janie Caperton. From the census records in 1850, Sallie was listed as 1 year. We can assume from this that she was born in 1849. Lorine Wallace stated that Sallie died at 26 years (some say 16 years but she is listed on the 1870 census at 20), which makes her death fall between 1875 and 1876.

Gibson Hardin Hudiburgh

Gibson Hardin Hudiburgh, the second son of Joseph and Jane Hardin Hudiburgh, was named after his maternal grandfather. He grew up on the farm and served in the Civil War for four years. Family stories say that he was a Presbyterian minister during those years, but he did not actually enter the seminary until 1867.

He was received as a probationer for the ministry at Mt. Moriah, Giles County, Tennessee, in April, 1867, by the Richland Presbytery. In due time he was licensed and ordained. He spent one year at Cumberland University and rode the Madison church circuit for two years. He was a successful, earnest, and persuasive minister and in his short time he did good work.

Gibson married Alva Lena Johnson on 12 October 1879 in Hardin County. They produced three children: Alva (1880-1918), Jane (1882-1973), and Martha Virginia (1885-1956).

According to Gibson's obituary found in The Cumberland Presbyterian, April 1889, page 8: "He died June 13, 1885, without a cloud or doubt, and in his right mind to the last. He left his companion, three children, two brothers, a sister, a host of friends, to feel their loss but by faith to anticipate his gain." The cause of Gibson's death is unknown; he died approximately three weeks after Rachel and Russell Ray Hudiburg's death. (Research did not find any epidemic during 1885 that may have caused their deaths.)

Gibson's death left Alva Lena with three small children. In her obituary in The Cumberland Presbyterian: " Alva Lena Hudiburgh embraced religion at Rienzi, Mississippi, when quite young. She was the daughter of Rev. A. M. and Virginia Johnson. Having waited and watched at the sick and dying beds of first her sister, second her husband, and third her father, she was wearied and bereaved. Affliction soon broke down her strength despite all the attention, skill and condolence that kind friends could give. She died of consumption December 22, 1888."

Her children were quite young (Alva, age 8, Janie, age 6, and Virgie, age 3) when Alva Lena died. The children's aunt and uncle, Rachel Moore and Solomon Hudiburg, took the children into their homes and raised them to adulthood. Alva lived with Rachel, and Janie and Virgie lived with Solomon.

Gibson and Alva Lena are buried at the Bethlehem II Cemetery, along with their son Alva and her parents, the Johnsons.

Alva Johnson Hudiburgh

Alva Johnson Hudiburgh, the only son of Gibson Hardin and Alva Lena Johnson Hudiburgh, was born 17 September 1880 in Hardin County, Tennessee. After his mother's death in 1888 when Alva was 8 years old, he lived with his aunt, Rachel Hudiburgh, and her husband, Richard Moore. He remained in their household until adulthood.

The 1910 census lists Alva in Oklahoma, working for a newspaper. He enlisted in the Oklahoma National Guard in 1917 and spent eleven months serving on Mexican Border. In July 1918, he was transferred overseas and died rendering aid to fallen comrades on 10 October 1918. His sister, Janie Hudiburgh Caperton, posthumously received the French Croix De Guerre award for his valiant service in France. He is buried at the Aisne-Marne American Cemetery in Belleau, France. Janie placed a memorial headstone for him in the Bethlehem II Cemetery in Olive Hill. Alva never married.

Alva Hudiburgh's Croix De Guerre

Serg. Alva J. Hudiburg was born near Olive Hill, Tennessee, Sept. 17, 1881, and killed in action on the battle front in France, Oct. 10th, 1918. Early in the war he volunteered in the Oklahoma National Guards and saw eleven months service along the Mexican Border. Was transferred from there over seas in July 1918, and immeadiately sent to the front. Participated in a number of engagements and met his death while engaged in an errand of mercy, that of lending aid to wounded comrads stricken on the field for which act he received honorable citations and the French Decoration of Croixie De Guerre.

He believed with the faith which makes heroes and martyrs that the true tenets of democracy were not bound up, nor not alone the interests and welfare of an individual nation, or one part of the world, but the rights of all mankind, the birthright of untold millions yet unborn, and our entering the conflict was a necessary sequence, in order to obtain the fairest fruits of liberty throughout the world. For this he made the supreme sacrifice, animated by the very spirit in which the angel of Freedom speaks in the spirited verses of Whittier:

Then Freedom sternly said," I shun
No strife nor pang beneath the sun
When human rights are staked and won.
I knait with Ziscoe's hunted flock, able degree of a Fellow Craft in M ty and raised to the degree of a Free and Accepted Master Mason in June of the same year. Of his further advancement in Masonry we have no official record at hand; that it was upward is evidenced by his receiving the 32nd degree of a Scottish Rites Mason, in Dallas Texas in November 1917. His love for this his mother lodge was great, it being such that he frequently communicated with the body, and in his absence of more than a dozen years he retained his membership here; the Lodge [illegible] of a communication from him just prior to his sailing for France.

A new dawa seems breaking upon the world and war that was once waged for conquest and national agrandizement must now be conducted upon a grander and higher plane. Standing as we are today at the threshold of this a new order of conditions, may our hearts be filled with those sublime principles so characteristic of our fraternity and which actuated our departed Brother in the step which he took.

He's true to God who's true to men;
Wherever wrong is done
To the humblest and the weakest
'Neath the all beholding sun.
That wrong is also done to us; and
They are slaves most base,
Whose love for right is for themselves
And not for all their race.

Hudiburg Decoration

Last Sunday the official ceremony of the presentation to Mrs. Jane Caperton of the French Croix De Guerre with gilt star for gallant and meritorious service of Sgt. A. H. Hudiburg with the American expeditionary forces in France, was held.

The features of the program were music by the band, talk by L. L. Harbert, song, address by Major H. L. Landers of the U. S. army, and the delivering of the decoration medal to the sister of Sgt. Hudiburg, during which the returned soldiers present stood at attention.

Jane Hudiburgh

Jane was born 17 January 1882 in Hardin County. After her mother died, Janie, only 6 years old, went to live with her uncle, Solomon S. Hudiburg and his family in Olive Hill. She remained in their household until she was an adult. On Christmas Day, 25 December 1904, she married James (Jim) Caperton, a farmer, and they lived their entire lives in Olive Hill. Their only child, a son, was stillborn in 1906 and is buried in Bethlehem II Cemetery.

Janie was the "care taker" of the Hudiburg bibles, records, photos, and grave sites in Olive Hill area cemeteries. Most of her materials and information is now in the hands of a nephew, Brent Scott, of Clifton, Tennessee. She was the source of information on all things Hudiburgh in the Hardin and Wayne County areas. In 1954 she and James celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary. Her husband died 28 July 1960 and Janie died 31 Dec 1973. They are buried side by side in Olive Hill Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillispie.

On last Friday morning an old but conspicious land mark of Hardin county, in the person of Rev. A. M. Gillispie passed away. He had been sick for a few days only, with pneumonia, when heart failure struck him, from which he died without much warning. His aged wife was sick some days before he was taken; he was very much alarmed about her, she being very sick. After his death her condition grew worse until Monday morning when she quietly breathed her last. Mr. Gillespie was born September the 8th, 1830, in Giles county; moved to Lawrence county at about twenty years of age. Soon after, he married and entered the ministry. His good wife, whose name was Sarah McLean, was a native of Lawerence county; was born March 10th, 1822, being eight years older than her husband.

They had lived in Hardin county for about 25 years, making exemplary citizens. Their congregation at Ross feel that they have sustained a great loss in Zion's cause and extend heart felt sympathies to the bereaved ones.

LATER—The only daughter of the above parties Mrs. Hudiburg, died this morning, at the residence of her brother, Mr. James Gillespie. She has been in delicate health for some months and when her mother was taken sick she went from her home to see her, and was never able to go back.

Obituary for Rev. A. M. Gillespie, his wife Sarah, and daughter Clementine Hudiburgh (Savannah Courier newspaper, 12 March 1897)

The obituary does not specify their burial site (probably somewhere in Hardin County).

Solomon Smith Hudiburg

Solomon (Sol) Smith Hudiburg, born in Hardin County, Tennessee, on 12 April 1836, was the first of six children produced by Joseph Amos Hudiburgh and Jane Hardin. It is unknown if he had formal schooling, but he did learn the blacksmith trade among other skills. He bought small parcels of land not far from his parents, and eventually had his own place.

On 19 August 1857 Sol married Rachel L. Calhoun in Hardin County. They were only married about three years when Rachel died of bronchitis. Solomon buried her down the road from the homestead at Bethlehem II Cemetery.

Like his father Joseph, Sol was very active in the Cumberland Presbyterian church. The records of the Olive Hill church show that the original church, called the Old Bethlehem Church, was organized 9 March 1872. Among the elders listed were Joseph A. and Solomon S. Hudiburgh.

Sol made regular trips to area church meetings and sometimes stayed overnight in the home of Rev. Russell R. Covey who lived in another part of Hardin County. From those visits, he met Rev. Covey's daughter, Rachel. A courtship ensued and on 5 December 1860, Sol and Rachel married in the home of her parents.

Sol enlisted in the Confederate Army on 10 December 1862 and served under General Bedford Forrest. He was released early due to an unknown illness and subsequently returned home to the family farm at Olive Hill, Tennessee.

E. G. Gill.

Each of these individuals had a connection to Solomon's family through the years.

Sol's Calvary division fought in the Battle of Shiloh on April 6-7, 1862, near Savannah, Tennessee, only ten miles from Olive Hill. Major battles were fought in this area throughout the remainder of the war.

Sol and Rachel raised most of their eight children in a log house on the Olive Hill farm. Eventually, Sol built a large, two story house with a big porch running across the front. In addition to farming, he had a cotton gin and a blacksmith shop. Sol was also very active in the Olive Hill and Clifton, Tennessee, Cumberland Presbyterian churches.

The children grew up, married, and by the early 1900s the entire family left Tennessee. Nancy married Duncan H. Selph in 1891 and moved to the Stillwater, Oklahoma area where D. H. was a doctor for local residents and Indians. Her brother, John Gip, followed Nancy and D.H. Selph to Oklahoma in 1896.

Russell Ray, Sol and Rachel's 20 year old son, died on 5 March 1885, and Rachel died six days later on 11 March 1885. They may have died of scarlet fever, but that is not verified. Both are buried at the Bethlehem II Cemetery.

A year later Sol married Nancy Murchison Cook Hardin, widow of Stansberry Hardin, on 17 March 1886 in Wayne County. Nancy and her five children by Stansberry Hardin moved to Solomon's home in Olive Hill after the marriage. With his five remaining children, two nieces, Virgie and Janie, and Nancy's five children, the household came to 14 people.

Nancy's oldest son, John, was not pleased that his mother remarried. His dissatisfaction, combined with a large, diverse household, created a disaster according to family stories.

The dissension in this extended family exploded into a scandal when Joe Hudiburg and Katherine (Kate) Hardin eloped on 19 September 1888. The marriage of "step siblings" horrified many people. Kate's brother John was very angry and a fight with pitchforks ensued between Joe and John, which Kate fortunately stopped. This incident persuaded Joe and Kate to move to Oklahoma in 1902 and join her siblings.

Solomon and Nancy's relationship was also stressed to the breaking point. According to Hardin family stories, John saw Sol hitting Nancy, took out a gun and shot at Sol, telling him to get out of Hardin County or be killed. This might explain why Sol sold his property and joined his children in Oklahoma. That is not verified, however.

On 15 September 1899, a deed was filed between S. S. Hudiburg and N.M.Hudiburg for land sold to N. M. Hudiburg (Hardin County Deed Book 14, page 261). This deed was not filed until 20 February 1937, 21 years after Nancy's death. On 18 September 1899, Sol and Nancy divided their community property (Hardin County, Book AA, page 512-514) and Nancy moved to her own residence. No divorce records have been found by this researcher, but these legal filing do add creditably to the stories that they did divorce.

Sol settled his affairs in Hardin County and moved to Oklahoma sometime in 1903 or 1904. He came back to Hardin County in 1907 and moved his daughter Josie and her family to Paden, Oklahoma, to live with him after Josie's husband was killed in a dispute over horses in Clifton, Tennessee.

Sol remained in Paden, Oklahoma, until he died there on 21 March 1918. Although he wanted to be buried between his two wives at Bethlehem II Cemetery, the family chose to bury him at Giles Cemetery near Joe and Kate's farm because the trip to Olive Hill, Tennessee, would have been too difficult.

At this point no Hudiburgs reside in Hardin County other than the five generations buried in the Bethlehem II Cemetery in Olive Hill.

Name change for Solomon Smith Hudiburg

At one point, Solomon dropped the finial “h” from his last name. Family stories relate that he made this change to distance himself from the Tennessee Hudiburghs when he moved to Oklahoma in 1903-04. However, when checking various records on Solomon prior to 1903, it appears that he dropped the “h” before his Oklahoma move.

In his family bible, Sol’s name, as well as all of the children’s names, are spelled the traditional way—Hudiburgh. On his Civil War records in the 1860’s and several deeds for land he purchased in Hardin County, it was Hudiburgh. The headstone of his first wife, Rachel Calhoun, has the name spelled without the final “h”. Of course, this could be an error made by the headstone company.

The change probably took place about the time of his third marriage to Nancy Cook Hardin in 1886. Their marriage information and the subsequent separation papers spell the name Hudiburg (without the final “h”). An exact time when the change to Hudiburg actually took place may be impossible to determine because the name was so frequently misspelled on various documents.

Whenever the change took place, the children followed suit and used the new spelling of the name. A legal filing for this name change has not been found in any court records.

The names Hudiburgh and Hudiburg are so unusual that anyone with either of these spellings are most likely connected to the family in one way or another.

"United Confederate Veterans Days"

Almost immediately after the end of the Civil War, veterans sought out occasions to gather together, to relive their shared experiences, find solace in their battle-forged bonds, to celebrate their heroic deeds and commemorate the sacrifices of their fallen comrades. These reunions were important to the soldiers and their families and came eventually to serve as a symbol of wider national reunification.

"During the 1897 Tennessee Centennial Exposition, organized to celebrate the State of Tennessee's 100th birthday, a veterans day reunion was held in Nashville, Tennessee. This was the seventh annual reunion for the United Confederate Veterans. (UCV)

In anticipation of large crowds for these events, the Union Gospel Tabernacle (now the Ryman Auditorium) expanded its seating with a large balcony, known today as the Confederate Gallery, which was paid for by donations from Confederate veterans.

The response to the reunion events was impressive; more than 74,000 visitors attended the Exposition during the days of June 22-24, at a time when Nashville's population was at 100,000."

Luckily, our ancestor, Solomon Smith Hudiburg, journeyed from Olive Hill, Hardin County, Tennessee to attend this seventh reunion. This ribbon was found among the papers of his daughter, Mary Jane (Jennie) Hudiburg Gill and is in my possession.

John Gipson Hudiburg

Little is known about young John Gipson Hudiburg's childhood except that he attended Olive Hill public schools and worked on the family farm. A newspaper article in the Savannah Courier on 12 November 1885 stated: "J. G. Hudiburgh who has been in school at Clifton, has returned home. He says he is going to Texas in the fall." John didn't go to Texas at all. Instead, he attended Hardin College and in 1888 began teaching school in Waynesboro, Tennessee. After teaching school for two years, he worked as a traveling salesman for the next three years. In 1893 he again taught school for a couple of years then in 1896 moved to Oklahoma and got a job in the Pottawatomie County schools. He later became superintendant of the Wetumka, Indian Territory schools.

Lorine Hudiburg Wallace stated: "My uncle, John Gipson Hudiburg, lead the migration to Oklahoma to teach wild Indians and settled in Tecumseh. It was his letters home that caused his brother Joe and wife Kate to come to Oklahoma by train and settle south of Prague to farm." Actually, John wasn't the first to go to Oklahoma. His sister Nancy and husband D. H. Selph had moved there in 1891 and lived near Stillwater.

John was a well-known teacher with many friends in Pottawatomie county. When Oklahoma became a state in 1906, he was elected first clerk of the district court and took office in November, 1907. Soon after,
John met and married Mamie Francis Spencer on 12 Sept 1910. They produced two children, Frances and John, Jr.

John died at age 58 years on 17 March 1919 in Stigler, Oklahoma. His daughter-in-law, Guylynn Hudiburg, doesn't know why they were living in Stigler. Devastated by the loss of her husband, Mamie lived with her parents for a short time. According to Guylynn Hudiburg, Mamie's parents were much older and were little able to tolerate the active young children. Mamie obtained work in a retail store and soon moved out of her parents' home to raise her children.

After John's death, Mamie visited her husband's brother Joe. Years before, John had given Joe's son, Hardin Earl, some land to help him get started. When Mamie asked Joe and Hardin Earl for help, they turned her away without any assistance. Rebuffed, she decided to completely separate herself from the Hudiburgs and have nothing more to do with them, according to Vicki Hudiburg Steffensen, Mamie's granddaughter.

In a letter dated August 1, 1953, from Gus Hudiburg, nephew of John, to Nova Mertins in Indianapolis, Indiana, Gus stated, "Just this last week Mrs. John (Mayme) Hudiburg died at Shawnee, Oklahoma. Uncle John had a lot of records in his possession when he died quite a few years ago but for some reason she refuse to make them available to the family. I never knew her……."

Mamie's reluctance to share family information probably resulted from Joe's refusal to assist her years before when she sorely needed help. She wanted nothing to do with any Hudiburg and may have discarded any of her husband's Hudiburg family materials and records. John Juniors' family stated that they do not have, nor are they aware of, any records that belonged to Mamie's husband John, Sr.

In the recent past a copy of Solomon Smith Hudiburg's will was sent to John Juniors' family. The family believed that Mamie never received her husband's portion left to him in this will. No research has been done to see if each child did receive his or her portion of the considerable Solomon Smith Hudiburg estate.

Mamie lived in Oklahoma until her son John got a job with J.C. Penny in Amarillo when she moved there to be close to him. Ultimately she moved to Dallas, Texas, to live with her daughter Frances. She died in Dallas on 17 July 1953 and was buried next to her beloved John in the Tecumseh Mission Cemetery in Tecumseh, Oklahoma.

Joseph Andrew Hudiburg

Joseph's name has come down to us as Joseph Amos Hudiburg but have discovered in the recent past that his birth name is Joseph Andrew Hudiburg. He is listed in his father's bible as Joseph A., he was always called Joe A. but on the delayed birth certificate of his son Hardin Earl Hudiburg, he is listed as Joseph Andrew. There are three witnesses that verify, on this birth certificate, to the above name. (See copy on page 512)

Disputed stories about Joseph Andrew Hudiburg abound. His wife's side of the family, the Hardins, obviously disliked Joe and expressed displeasure at his marriage to Katherine (Kate). Her brother John objected to their wedding as well as the marriage of his mother to Solomon Hudiburg. Hardin family members indicated that eventually John and Joseph became friends after John realized that his sister's marriage was a good one.

Joseph's obituaries depict him as a good man and much beloved in Oklahoma. He was characterized as considerate of others, a responsible citizen, active in his church, and a good provider for his family.

Joe and Kate moved to Oklahoma in 1902 after his brother, John Gip, wrote to them about the abundant availability of cheap land. The disagreements in the Olive Hill household no doubt hastened their move. They joined his sister, Nancy and husband Dr. D. H. Selph, living in Stillwater, and brother John, living in Tecumseh.

Joe and Kate arrived by train and bought land south of Prague near the small town of Paden. They farmed and lived on this land until their deaths. Little is known about John and Kate's life in Paden. Attempts to contact living descendants have not met with success. The family feud seems to be the main story of their lives. Additional information would be most helpful in tracing this line of the Hudiburg family.

Kate and Joe died within ten months of each other—he died at home on the farm on 25 May 1934 and Kate died in the Rollins Hospital in Prague on 10 March 1935. Both are buried at the Giles Cemetery in Paden.

Soil Camp Official Dies Suddenly Here Monday Afternoon

Joseph Aubry Hudiburg, who came to Pryor a week ago as an official of the local soil camp service, passed away at 3:15 Monday afternoon after being sticken with a cerebral hemorrage two hours before. Mr. and Mrs. Hudiburg had room at the home of Mrs. D. V. Jones, where they had lived for the past week.

At noon yesterday, when Mr. Hudiburg left the camp for his home, he was apparently feeling fine and normal in every way. At the home he ate his lunch as usual and did not complain of feeling badly until shortly after one o'clock, when he was stricken with a pain over the left eye. Dr. H.W. Hackler was called and seeing the serious condition of the patient, called Dr. J. W. Whitiaker. Both physicians remained with the patient until he passed away, two hours later, during which time he was unconscious most of the time.

Mr. Hudiburg's uncle and aunt, Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Hudiburg of Clinton, Ok. spent Sunday here and left for Prague, OK, Monday morning to visit other relatives. In response to a telephone call, they returned to Pryor, arriving here only a few minutes after their nephew had passed away. A sister of the dead man, and her husband, Mr. & Mrs. M. W. Wheat of Sapulpa, also came to Pryor in answer to a telephone call.

The body was removed to the Terry Funeral Home, where it was prepared for burial and sent Monday night to Prague, the family home, where the funeral was held Wednesday afternoon. Burial will be at Giles cemetery at Prague.

Mr. Hudiburg was 36 years of age and held one of the most important positions on the technical staff of the local soil service office.

J. A. Hudiburg Passes

Our community is saddened by the death of one of our pioneer citizens and able community workers, J. A. Hudiburg, after a long illness enterdd into rest at his home, Friday evening, May 25. The multitude of people that attended the funeral of Mr. Hudiburg Sunday gave some evidence of what his life has been and will be to us. He is gone but he will still live in the hearts and lives of men and women who have grown up under his good influence.

He will still live in the lives of the children whom he loved so. He was our Sunday school superintendent for 29 years. Nothing except severe sickness kept him away from his Sunday school and many time in the past three years he has conducted the Sunday school when he was to weak to stand on his feet through the services. The past nine weeks he has been very low, but through it all so uncomplaining and patient. Words fails to express how much we all loved him and how we will miss him and we cannot find words to express our sympathy for his family. His life and influence didn't stop here in our community. There were a number of friends in attendance at the funeral from Prague, Paden, Shawnee, Okemah, Sparks, Holdenville, Ada, Wewoka and various other towns.

Rev. Montgomery, his presiding elder, and Rev. Harris, his pastor, had charge of the service, with the male quartette from Prague in charge of the song service. These with the loads of flowers and Parks Brothers efficient system of management made a beautiful but oh so sad, services. Again we will tender our heartfelt sympathy to the entire family and especially to the little five year old granddaughter, who was his pal and whom he had loved and cherished all her life. ?

The out of community friends who were here for the funeral or called Sunday in the Hudiburg home to express sympathy for the bereaved family were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kazziar and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. V. Walty and daughter of Altus, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. W. Holman, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wallace and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Sherrel, Mr. and Mrs. Frierich and daughters of Okemah, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClean of Bristow, Mrs. Clarence Wallace of Muskogee, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Carnell, Dr. H. Shelby of Oklahoma City, ... and Mrs. C. W. White, Mrs. Frank Spencer of Ada, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Loafman, Paul, Glenn and Letha Loafman, Mr. and Mrs. Spearman of Edmond, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Dean and daughter, Mrs. Ada Dean, Mrs. John Hailey and two daughters of Holdenville, Frank Aldridge of Wewoka, Mr. and Mrs. C. Mary Jane (Jennie) Hudiburg

Mary Jane Hudiburg, called Jennie by the family, was born 7 September 1866 in Clifton, Wayne County, Tennessee. Her three older brothers were born in a log house outside of Olive Hill on the family farm. It is unknown why she was born in Clifton.

Jennie grew up on the farm. The oldest girl, she helped her mother with all of the "womanly" chores and learned to effectively run a household: baking, cooking, working in the vegetable garden, washing, ironing, managing the money, and all the other things a young woman needed to know when she had a household of her own.

Solomon and his wife Rachel were close friends with Elijah Green and Josephine Gill, who had a son named John Taylor (later in life known as J.T.). Sol and Green joined the same unit at the beginning of the Civil War. Sol and Green were well respected businessmen in the area and did business together. On 1 April 1886, Jennie and John Taylor Gill were married in Olive Hill. At that time, John was a school teacher and probably "reading for the law" in preparation to become a lawyer. In those days there was no bar exam; a young man worked as a clerk in a law office and "read for the law" after which he received a letter stating that the work had been done.

Their first child, Evelean, born October 1887, died six months later on 12 April 1888 of measles. The baby was buried at the Bethlehem II Cemetery. A year later they had a second daughter, Blanche, on 13 March 1889. John's brother James had gone to Texas a few years earlier, and wrote to John and Jennie about what a great place Texas was. Although there was no specific reason, John and Jennie left Tennessee by train with daughter Blanche in 1893 and moved to Waxahachie, Ellis County, Texas.

Upon arrival in Waxahachie , John set up a law practice on the west side of the town square. He would remain a lawyer for the rest of his life. Curiously, no formal legal credentials exist with either the Texas Bar Association or the Ellis County Bar.

A third daughter, Irene, was born on 14 August 1894 in Waxahachie. Jennie and J. T. prospered and built a fashionable Victorian house on Dunn Street in downtown Waxahachie. Eventually J. T. purchased a great deal of property in Waxahachie and owned the entire block that was fronted on Dunn Street.

Jennie, according to Guylynn Hudiburg, was Solomon's favorite daughter and he visited with Jennie, J. T., and their children on a frequent basis. On one occasion, Sol and Jennie, along with sisters Josie and Nancy, had a formal portrait made while all were visiting the Gills in Waxahachie.

For unknown reasons, J. T. divorced Jennie on 6 March 1923. She received little from their 36 year marriage. Family stories insinuate that he "ran away" with his secretary. Actually, she was a former neighbor on Dunn Street. J. T. and Nettie Bowden married then moved to Harlingen, Texas, where he died in 14 May 1928. J.T. left his entire estate to Nettie Bowden.

Jennie was 57 years old and had few skills other than homemaking when J. T. divorced her. Although she had lived a life of some privilege and was used to the "better things in life," she was left basically penniless with only the clothes on her back. Jennie lived the rest of her long life, off and on, with daughter Blanche King and family in south Texas.

Jennie died 27 July 1963, a month short of her 97th birthday. She was the last of Solomon's children to die and outlived the last of her siblings by thirteen years. She is buried at Seaside Memorial Park in Corpus Christi, Texas next to Blanche's family.

Jesse Walker Hudiburg

Jesse Walker Hudiburg was a Presbyterian minister like his uncle, Gibson Hardin Hudiburgh. The family attended the Bethlehem Presbyterian Church in Olive Hill and was very involved. Minutes of church meetings show that his father Sol was a deacon.

Jesse married Mary Hannah Porter on 25 January 1891 and entered Richland Presbytery synod (seminary) on 23 September 1893 as a candidate for the ministry. He was licensed on 19 September 1896 and ordained on 24 April 1898. His first pastorate was in Tullahoma, Tennessee, 1 October 1897 where he began a half century of active work.

He and Mary Hannah had a son, Reynolds, in 1896 who only lived for eight months. From 1898 through 1906 they produced four daughters. All of the girls were very talented—Lorine was a wonder on the piano and the other girls had great singing voices. They were always a great addition to the church choirs.

Through the years, the family lived in a number of states including Tennessee, Alabama, Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. Jesse went to Oklahoma in 1921 and was the pastor at the Blackwell Cumberland Presbyterian Church until 1929. He had five other pastorates in Oklahoma before his retirement after fifty years of service in April 1948. At the time he was pastor at the church in Okemah, Oklahoma, where church members held a widely attended public tribute to him.

After his retirement, he and Hannah moved back to Blackwell to live out their years. He died at home on Saturday, 17 June 1950 at age 82. Two of his sons-in law, both Presbyterian ministers, assisted at his funeral service.

Mary Hannah died on 15 April 1954. Both are buried in the Independent Order of Odd Fellows (IOOF) Mausoleum in Blackwell, Oklahoma.

Special Appreciation to Lorine Hudiburg Wallace Heirich

Lorine Hudiburg Wallace was the first family genealogist to address the Hudiburg family line. She took an obsessive interest in these folks we call family. If it hadn't been for Lorine and all of the research, letters, papers, photographs and stories she left behind, we would know little about our line and the rest of the Hudiburgs.

A letter written in 1934 began her odyssey into the research of the Hudiburg family. In 1972, Lorine and four other people, from different parts of the United States, put together the Hudiburgh Family Book. It was amazing that these people found each other almost forty years ago, worked together over long distances, and put the foundation of our family genealogy down on paper. Their work encouraged the rest of us to strive to complete their goals.

Her daughter, Jessie Wallace McNutt, and grandson, Ronald McNutt, have made all of Lorine's papers and research available to those furthering the Hudiburg work. The letters from Nova Mertens in Indiana, Everett Hudiburg from New York, and all the others, contain gems of information that continuously amaze those of us working on the family genealogy now. She found and collected stories, photographs, and other things we thought could never be found.

Ron McNutt told me that Lorine had practically total recall of all things about the family and loved to talk about it. She would gladly sit for hours and answer questions, tell stories, and revel in the family history. She is one lady that all of us are sorry that we didn't have the opportunity to meet. She must have surely been amazing.

Lorine died in 1996 at the age of 98 years. What a glorious ride she must have had. Here is our Thank You for all your help, All of us admire your tenacity for keeping "everything" and leaving it to the rest of us!

Lorine Wallace Heirich

Lorine Wallace Heirich, 98, died Saturday morning at Muskogee Regional Medical Center. A native of Tullahoma, Tennessee, she was born to Jesse and Mary (Porter) Hudiburg on August 9, 1898. Mrs. Heirich grew up and was raised in Arkansas and Missouri, before graduating High School in Kansas. On October 12, 1916, she was married to Clarence M. Wallace at Victor, Colorado. The young couple was frequent to move because Mr. Wallace was a Presbyterian minister. They moved from Derby, KS to Tipton, IA, then finally to Muskogee in 1924. Once again, the Wallace family moved to Ames, IA in 1936 before going on to New Mexico so Lorine could work with the Navajo Indians. She was married to Clarence for over 40 years until the time of his death in 1957. During WWII she worked as a photographer's assistant and later was a seamstress at Yellowstone National Park. On June 11, 1975 Lorine was married to Charles Heirich at Muskogee, where they had made their home ever since. An avid pianist, Mrs. Heirich was a member of the Musical Arts Society. She also played the piano every Sunday at the Veterans Administration Hospital. In 1992, she received a certificate for eight decades of service from the VA for her musical efforts. Mrs. Heirich was a faithful member of Bethany Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Heirich was also preceded in death by her son, Maurice Hudiburg Wallace, in 1961. She is survived by her daughter and son-in-law, Jesse and Walter McNutt of Concord, Mass.; sons Newton Wallace of Winters, CA, Robert L. Wallace of Lafayette, LA; sister Lucille Fairlamb of The Woodlands, TX; step-sons Bill Heirich of Muskogee, Max Heirich of Ann Arbor, MI; stepdaughter, Virginia Welsh of Charlotte, NC; 23 grandchildren and 26 great grandchildren. Funeral services will be 10 a.m. Tuesday at Bethany Presbyterian Church with Reverend Wirt Skinner officiating. Burial will follow in Memorial Park Cemetery. Pallbearers will be Clarence Wallace, Ronald McNutt, Marc Heirich, Paul Heirich, and Chuck Heirich. Friends are contributing to Bethany Presbyterian Church. During that year he was in Tripoli he traveled the desert from end to end doing surface geology at which he was one of the leading experts. In Libya his work was largely responsible for the discovery of the Atshan basin in Esso concession one, which producted Libya's first oil well.

In his 43 years, he crowded a varied, fruitful and adventuresome career in this brief time. He had a wonderful sense of humor, was a friendly and well liked man. Burial will be in Ozan, Arkansas with his father and other family members.

James Newton Wallace

James Newton (Newt) Wallace, the second child of Lorine Hudiburg and Clarence Wallace, was born in Tipton, Iowa, in 1919. His father, Clarence, was a minister at the Presbyterian church in Tipton.

Newt received his bachelor's degree from Iowa State College in 1941. While a student there, he met his future wife, Ida Elizabeth Beck. Ida graduated in 1942 with a degree in home economics and the couple married on 29 August 1943 in the Beck home in Toledo, Iowa. They moved to California several months after their marriage.

An article in the 1963 Coronado, California, newspaper states: "Wallace's first job on a newspaper was as a newsboy for the Muskogee, Oklahoma, Times Democrat for five years, beginning in 1931. He worked on the college daily and following graduation was named news editor of the Dennison (Iowa) Review. After coming to California, Wallace worked for the Long Beach Independent and the Upland News.

He bought the Winters Express and took over the newspaper on January 1, 1947. In 1963, he was elected president of the California Newspaper Publishers' association and has been an extremely active member of the Winters, California, community for many years. As of 2012, Newt is 93 years old and still goes to the newspaper office daily.

Here, There And Everywhere

by Newton Wallace

HAPPY 73RD BIRTHDAY TO ME: Others have run younger pictures in the Express, so I'll use my prerogative and run the above photo, taken at 14 months. Readers will have to agree that I looked better then than I do now, the years having taken their toll.

In 1919 mothers didn't dress babies in fancy clothes, just simple dresses for both boys and girls, to make diaper changing easier.

At 73, I study the obituary column in the Sacramento Bee each day, to see if I'm included, and, if not, I come to work. After ascertaining that my name is not there, the next thing I do is to study the obits to see how many are younger than 73, and how many are older.

I feel that I have passed the dangerous age, as there appear to be more younger than older. Maybe the Devil forgot that I'm still here, or I got lost in his computer.

Anyway, I had an enjoyable birthday on Sunday, June 7, and few 73 year olds can receive birthday greetings from their mother, as I did.

My grandson, Robert, also shares the June 7 birthday with me, and I have two other Winters friends who came into the world on June 7, Bill Cody and Marge Graf. Happy birthday, Bill and Marge.

Jessie's World War II Service

Veterans' voices keep war stories alive

Nashville woman among contributors

By REBECCA DENTON
Staff Writer

In an old black-and-white photo, Jessie McNutt stands with her hand outstretched in a happy wave, her face beaming. If it weren't for her Army fatigues, you'd think she was accepting some sort of prize — not heading off to war.

McNutt was 23 then, a dietician and second lieutenant in the Army during World War II. Her mission in Belgium — about 10 miles from the massacre of American troops at Malmady — was to create appetizing menus from canned foods at the evacuation hospital.

At night she lay on her cot, wide awake, as buzz bombs whistled overhead and rattled the concrete walls. Every day, a German plane would strafe the roof. It flew so low she could see the pilot's face.

McNutt, 82, kept these memories to herself for many years, but her story is one of thousands that the Library of Congress wants to preserve for posterity through the Veterans History Project.

The Nashville Public Library is a partner in the long-term, nationwide effort to create a catalog of oral histories and documents relating to the country's five most recent wars, including the Persian Gulf.

This month, the library is embarking on the second phase: to gather materials and memories of those who served during the Korean War. On Saturday, the library will present "Veterans' Voices," a program that will honor those who have participated in the venture. The event starts at 1:30 p.m. in the library conference center and will feature excerpts from oral history interviews and an overview of the project.

An exhibition of selected materials donated during the first phase of the Veterans History Project is on display at the Main Library through Feb. 4.

For the past year, library volunteers have been interviewing World War II veterans about their experiences. They have recorded and transcribed about 80 interviews and catalogued materials relating to more than 150 veterans.

It's a project that can't wait.

"These individuals won't be with us forever," said Linda Barnickel, Veterans History Project coordinator for the library.

"It's important that we document and record the legacy they're leaving us while we can. You could even go so far as to say it would be irresponsible not to."

With the help of about 10 volunteers who interview and transcribe, Barnickel plans to start interviewing Korean War veterans early next month. Those who want to participate can start by filling out an application, which gives the volunteers basic information to help guide the interview.

Most interviews are conducted at the downtown library or one of the branches. Participants are limited to Davidson County residents or those who lived here during the war.

The project is more than a way to preserve memories, Barnickel said. It will be a research tool for generations to come — and the stories already are taking on new significance.

"I think the modern context can encourage people to look at these things with a different view than we would have had even five years ago," Barnickel said. "Current events are putting an entirely new spin on this."

The tapes and materials, which are in secure storage, will be open to the public by appointment in late February or early March. Most of the donated materials will remain in the Nashville library, but biographical information will be sent to the Library of Congress, where it will be added to the National Registry of Service.

McNutt grew up in Iowa but three years ago moved to the West End area of Nashville to be near her son, Ron, and his family. She donated more than 100 original letters she sent to her family from 1944 and 1945.

"I'm glad to have them where they'll be kept and preserved," she said.

More than that, they'll be where other people can read about her experiences and listen to her voice on tape for generations to come.

"It's the words of the individuals themselves who can tell you what it was like to be there," Barnickel said. "To hear the tears in their voices when they describe one of their buddies that didn't make it, it hits you at a level that nothing else can." ■

Walter S. McNutt

Walter S. McNutt, died on Tuesday, June 29, 1999, at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Bedford. He was the husband of Jessie Wallace McNutt.

Born on July 21, 1918, he was raised in Arkansas and had been a resident of Concord for 30 years. His father was a Presbyterian minister and a college educator.

Mr. McNutt was a scientist and was employed as a professor of biochemistry at Tufts University School of Medicine before his retirement in 1980. He conducted research on DNA and RNA, studying the properties and phenomena of these "building blocks of life." He taught biochemistry and pharmacology to medical students and graduate students.

In addition to his professional activities, Dr. McNutt was an avid sculptor of stone, wood and clay. He read philosophy, classical literature and history, enjoyed nature and humor, and loved classical music and opera. He frequently played handball at the UMC Union in downtown Boston.

Dr. McNutt earned his doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Wisconsin. He was a lieutenant, junior grade, in the U.S. Navy during World War II, conducting scientific research. He pursued post-graduate studies at Cambridge University and the University of Copenhagen. Prior to teaching at Tufts Medical School, he held positions at California Institute of Technology and Vanderbilt University School of Medicine. He published numerous articles in the field of biochemistry.

In the early 1990s, Dr. McNutt became afflicted by Alzheimer's disease, debilitating him of his creative powers, cognitive ability and memory, and deprived him of much of his personality and characteristic bright humor. He was lovingly and joyfully cared for by his wife and, increasingly within the past several years, the individuals who work in the Alzheimer's program at the Veteran's Administration Hospital.

In addition to his wife of 45 years, he is survived by two sons, Malcolm S. McNutt of Sarasota, Fla., and Ronald W. McNutt of Nashville, Tenn.; a brother, C. Wallace McNutt of San Antonio, Texas; and three grandsons, Aaron McNutt, Jacob McNutt and Jesse McNutt, all from Nashville.

A memorial service was held Friday, July 2, at the chapel at the V.A. Hospital in Bedford.

The family would encourage a contribution in his memory to the Bedford Veteran's Hospital, Unit 62B, Bedford, MA 01730. Attention: Tricia Lane, nurse manager.

In Grogan's Mill...
The Fabulous Fairlambs

by Sue Frank

Few things are more enjoyable than listening to Mrs. Lucille Fairlamb, a resident of Grogan's Mill since 1981, tell the story of her life. A lifelong career woman, entertainer, and TV pioneer, Mrs. Fairlamb has much worth listening to.

The youngest of four daughters of a Presbyterian minister, Lucille was born in Missouri, but moved frequently as her father changed churches, ultimately living in 14 states. After high school, Lucille entered the University of Oklahoma, then completed her studies in vocal music at the Bush Conservatory of Music in Chicago during the hey-day of gangsterism. Says Lucille, "Al Capone's hangout was just down the street from the Conservatory, and we used to get our newspapers there. The gangsters didn't bother ordinary people. In fact, Capone used to run soup kitchens for the needy. He was very concerned about them."

After graduation, Lucille worked as a professional singer for radio station WGN in Chicago. "Amos and Andy worked out of the next studio," says Lucille. A trip to New York City to visit friends resulted in a job offer there, but by the time Lucille went back to Chicago, packed, and returned to New York, the promised job no longer existed. With customary pluck, Lucille accepted a job outside the entertainment business doing public relations work for a major insurance brokerage firm. "I had six months to learn everything there was to know about the city." The firm had numerous VIPs coming into town for the 1939 World's Fair, and I had to make all the arrangements for them and see to it that they got to all the attractions." Lucille enjoyed the job, but chose to re-enter radio, this time at the production level. During the course of her radio work, Lucille programmed night radio broadcasts for CBS. Lucille points out, "This was during the war, and the stations had to be on all night for signal transmission." During this period, Lucille bumped into an old friend who had been chief engineer on her Chicago radio shows. Surprised to find Lucille working in production rather than performing, he asked if she had auditioned as a vocalist. "Yes," she said, "but I was turned down." It seems the talent coordinator preferred women with delicate little bird voices, a far cry from Lucille's strong mezzo-contralto. Lucille's turn-down left her in good company—the talent coordinator also turned down Kate Smith!

Lucille's friend then asked if she would be interested in trying her hand at the new, relatively unknown medium of television.

Wil and Lucille Fairlamb

After graduation, Lucille worked as a professional singer for Radio Station WGN in Chicago.

Lucille responded in the affirmative, but pointed out that she didn't know anything about it. The response was simple: "So what? Neither does anyone else!" With that, Lucille became one of the first seven people involved in the production area of television for CBS.

In those days, TV studios required huge amounts of space, so CBS's facility was located in Grand Central Station. "Action was everything," explains Lucille. "TV was strictly experimental then, so we tried it all—court scenes, game shows....sports were especially good. In fact, we even built a full-sized boxing ring in the studio and televised the fights for two hours every Wednesday night. One fighter would wear white trunks and the other wore black so you could follow the action."

Contrary to popular belief, it wasn't the wealthy who bought the first televisions; it was the blue collar workers who didn't have the funds to take advantage of other forms of entertainment. "The factory worker couldn't afford to take his six kids to a Dodger game, but he could afford to watch it with them on TV." The value of sports to TV is one area Lucille knows well. She still has a slightly crooked finger, broken while catching a foul ball when calling camera angles on a Dodger's broadcast.

"We were able to work with everyone in those days," continues Lucille. "TV was a new medium everyone wanted to learn, so all the top performers were willing to work for next to nothing. I worked on a production of Sorry, Wrong Number which starred Mildred Natwick and was directed by John Houseman. We did shows with Molly Goldberg, Perry Como, Barbara Bel Geddes, Imogene Coca, Arthur Godfrey. Gene Kelly appeared while he was still doing a dance act with his brother, and Yul Brenner was singing twice a week on a program called At Home for just $35 a week."

Lucille's involvement in television continued until the 60's. Through certain historical broadcasts, she became acquainted with an historian who became a close friend, and he later left her his impressive collection of historical memorabilia. A backer of Admiral Byrd's North Pole expedition, the collection included correspondence from him, as well as a robe once worn by George Washington. Having been charged with seeing the collection placed in the hands of libraries and other public trusts, Lucille personally returned the robe to Mount Vernon. "They were thrilled to get it," she recalls. "They already had a robe of Martha's there, and a patch on George's robe was an exact match for the material in Martha's."

Lucille made the move to Texas in 1979 and, after spending most of her adult life as a single, independent career woman, had no intentions of marrying again. Neither did Wilbur Fairlamb, a widower after 56 years of marriage. As they approach their seventh wedding anniversary, the obvious affection they share and the success of their marriage makes a wonderful case for throwing preconceived ideas out the window.

Lucille and Wilbur share their beautiful townhome on the East Golf Course with one "four-legged child," a poodle named Beau, who will celebrate his first birthday just before Valentine's Day. ■

Nancy Elizabeth Hudiburg

Nancy (Nannie) Elizabeth Hudiburg was born on 25 September 1869 in Olive Hill, Tennessee. She married Duncan Hyder (D.H.) Selph, from Clifton, Tennessee, who's father, Illey, was the local doctor and a friend of the Hudiburg family.

D. H. first attended Cumberland University in Lebanon, Tennessee and obtained a license to practice law. He then attended the University of Tennessee in Nashville and studied medicine. He married Nancy 2 June 1891 after completion of his medical degree. They moved to Oklahoma, near Stillwater, where he was the "pioneer physician" for the area. His primary work was with the local Indians although he did serve as physician for citizens of Stillwater.

Nancy and D. H. produced three children: Nina (1893), Layla (1897), and Roland (1902) while living in the Stillwater, Payne County, Oklahoma area. All of the children grew up and attended school in Stillwater. Daughter Nina and son Roland graduated from Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College, now Oklahoma State University.

Nancy contracted tuberculosis and was ill for an extended period. Because of Oklahoma's humid climate, D.H. took her to New Mexico to help with her recovery. Mr. and Mrs. Barker, friends of the family from Stillwater, accompanied Nancy and D.H. to New Mexico and took care of her since D.H. had to return to his medical practice. Obviously her condition was too far advance for the climate change to help and she died on 20 May 1908 in Lake Arthur, Chaves County New Mexico. D.H. buried her in a single plot in Hagerman Cemetery in Hagerman, New Mexico. Nancy was only 39 at the time of her death.

Pioneer Physician, Dr. D. H. Selph Dies

Funeral services for Dr. D. H. Selph, 68, pioneer Payne county physician, who died at his home, 718 Ducan street, Stillwater, Ok., Saturday afternoon, May 19, 1928, were held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the First Christian Church, with the Rev. J. W. Hudiburg of Blackwell officiating. Burial was at Fair Lawn cemetery.

The decedent was born December 1, 1858 in Clifton, Tennessee. He was graduated in law at Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., later taking a course in medicine at the University of Tennessee medical school, Nashville, from which he graduated in 1891. He married in 1891 to Miss Nannie Hudiburg, a sister of the Rev. Mr. Hudiburg, who conducted the funeral services.

Doctor Selph came to Stillwater December, 1891, when he began the practice of medicine, which continued until his death.

After the death of his first wife, Doctor Selph married Mrs. Mary Withers, Dec. 1, 1909. She survives him. To his first marriage union, three children were born. They are Mrs. Nina Wilson, Dallas, Texas, Mrs. Layla Cass, Tulsa, and Roland Selph, Houston, Tex. To the second union, one child, Miss Faye Selph, Stillwater, was born.

Church is Overflowed
Main floor and balcony seats in the Christian Church were not numerous enough to accommodate the hundreds of persons who attended the funeral services for the late Dr. D. H. Selph. Scores of persons stood around the walls.

The Rev. J. W. Hudiburg, of Blackwell a brother-in-law of Doctor Selph, conducted the service, giving an unusually impressive talk on the life of the decedent, whom he had known since boyhood. Prayer was said by the Christian church pastor, the Rev. J. Allen Watson. A quartet, comprised of Mrs Leonard Morgan, Mrs. William Rude, Hartly Freeman and Oscar Fanning, sang.

Members of the Masonic lodge, the Eastern Star and P.E.O. sisterhood attended in groups. The Masons were in charge of the burial services in Fair Lawn cemetery, with C.C. Suman leading. Among the out-of-city persons at the services were Lewis and Frank Jerome, of Tulsa and Henry Jerome of Florida.

Rachel Josephine Hudiburg

Rachel Josephine (Josie) Hudiburg was born 1 May 1872 and was 13 years old when her mother, Rachel Covey Hudiburg, died in 1885. She married Charles (Charlie) Herbert Moore on 27 July 1892 in Clifton, Wayne County, Tennessee. Charlie, the son of Richard and Mary Montague Moore, was raised by Richard's second wife, Rachel Hudiburg (Josie's aunt and sister to her father, Sol).

Charlie and Josie lived in Clifton where he worked on the farm with his father, Richard. The farm was called the "Old Martin Cook Place." They produced four children Martin (1893), Frank (1897), Anna (1899) and Charlie Mae (1906). In 1907, Charlie was killed by a cousin, Dr. John Moore, in a dispute over some horses in a livery stable in Clifton. Charley's headstone reads: Charles H. Moore, B: 30 Nov 1871; Killed 20 Jul 1907; Husband of R. J.

At age 36 Josie was a widow and in 1907 her father, Solomon Smith Hudiburg, came from Oklahoma to help her settle family affairs. Josie and her children then moved to Oklahoma to live with Sol.

Josie's oldest daughter, Anna Lucille, contracted infantile paralysis (polio) and lived at home her entire life. Frank initially moved with the family to Oklahoma, but came back to Hardin County about 1908, lived with Rachel and Richard Moore, and made his living as a farmer. In 1921 he broke his neck after falling from a horse and died at 23 years old. Martin married numerous times but remained childless. Charlie Mae married James F. O'Connell in 1928 in Arkansas. The 1930 census showed Charlie Mae as having three children. Later census data shows no further record of Charlie Mae.

On the 1910 census, Josie and her family were living with Sol in Dent, Oklahoma. 1920 census data shows her in Paden, Oklahoma, making her living as a seamstress. Like the other children, Josie inherited property from their father, Sol, upon his death in 1918.

Josie died 18 Feb 1947 in Seminole, Oklahoma and is buried in Giles Cemetery next to her brother (Joe A. and wife Kate), father (Sol) and daughter (Anna).

Solomon Amos Hudiburg

Solomon Amos Hudiburg, while growing up in Hardin County, Tennessee, was called Heut by the family and friends, and later, after moving to Jackson, Tennessee, he would go by S. A. He was the youngest child of Solomon and Rachel and was only nine years old when his mother died. Rachel's death was probably quite traumatic for Heut and he exhibited open hostility when his father remarried a year later.

Although there is no verification about his childhood activities, Heut probably helped on the farm and attended school like his siblings. At some point, he trained to be a barber and maintained that profession throughout his life. On the 1900 census, he was living in the household of his brother, Joseph, in Hardin County, Tennessee.

Heut married Dora Augusta (Gusta) Barker on 30 September 1900 in Hardin County. Their first two children, Solomon Augustus (Gus) and Mary, were born there in 1902 and 1905, respectively. Soon after Mary's birth, Heut and Gusta moved to Paden, Oklahoma, near John, Joseph, and father, Sol, where Heut worked as a barber. A third child, Byron, was born in 1908 in Paden.

Wendell Hudiburg, their youngest son, referring to the family's move back to Tennessee, later recalled: "Mother hated Oklahoma—the dirt floors, snakes all over the place that would get tangled up in her skirts, the drunken Indians running through town raising hell. She wanted to go home to Tennessee."

Gusta was in the final stages of pregnancy In 1911 when the family boarded a train for Obion, Tennessee. They had scarcely arrived in town when Gusta gave birth to another son, Jesse, on 5 September 1911. They decided to stay in Obion for a while where they ran a laundry business and Heut cut hair in the backyard.

The family ultimately moved to Jackson, Madison County, Tennessee. Once arriving in Jackson, Heut was called S. A. by friends and clients. S. A. and Gusta's daughter, Rachel Catherine was stillborn on 10 November 1924 and is buried in the Hollywood Cemetery in Jackson. Their last child, Wendell Cullen, was born 23 April 1927. Until his death, S.A. worked full-time in a local barber shop.

S. A. died on 5 June 1942 in Jackson of pulmonary tuberculosis. Wendell remembered, "Dad was very ill the last four or five years of his life and became a very angry, disappointed man. He was brusque, disappointed with life and his children, and was unpleasant to be around." Gusta buried him with their daughter, Rachel, at Hollywood Cemetery where most of the family is interred.

Byron moved to Memphis after coming home from World War II. He moved his mother, Gusta, from Jackson to Memphis and and took care her until his death in 1960. Mary first worked for a stationary business in outside sales in Jackson, then moved to Houston, Texas, where she died in 1961. On 27 Sept 1962, Gusta died in at St. Mary's Nursing Home in Humboldt, Tennessee, following an accident where she broke her hip.

Jesse had married Wealthy Jo Morton on 14 February 1932 in Madison County, Tennessee. The produced four children: Jomeda (1933), Jeanine (1935), Jesse, Jr. (1940), and James (1943). Jesse died 27 March 2001 in Bolivar, Hardeman County, Tennessee, and is buried with the family in Jackson.

Wendell left Jackson, Tennessee, and lived for a time with Mary in Houston, Texas, while attending college. He married Grace Burtis on 14 February 1951 in Texas. They adopted two children, Donna and Richard. Wendell and his second wife, Joan Riviere, married 19 March 1972 in Issaquah, Washington and lived in California for a number of years. Joan and Wendell are now living in Florence, Alabama. Among his talents, Wendell has a reputation as a sculptor.

Solomon S. Hudiburg died 21 March 1918 in Paden, Oklahoma. The final distribution of his estate was not filed until nineteen months later on 28 October 1919 in the County Court for Okfuskee County, Oklahoma. The estate property was distributed according to the will of Solomon with expenses being deducted.

There was no mention in this final distribution of any cash on hand, how long Joe would continue to oversee Solomon's businesses and the revenue it generated, or personal effects of the deceased being distributed to his heirs. No inventory or complete listing of the estate assets was in any of the court probate papers.

Normally, the oldest son serves as executor of the estate, but in this instance Sol chose his second son, Joseph, to fulfill this task. Joe did take a 10% executor's fee.

By the time distribution was made, the eldest son, John Gip, died on 17 March 1919. John's family does not believe that his widow, Mamie, received her portion of the estate, but this assumption is not verified

End Notes

The American patriarch of the Hudiburghs, Thomas, Sr., was many things in his life: farmer, preacher, inn keeper, blacksmith, surveyor, husband and father. He and Dolly lived productive lives and raised four children that followed their example. Each child's family, down through their descendants, has "made a difference" in large and small ways .

As this presentation exemplifies, Thomas, Dolly and their cumulative descendents were, and continue to be productive, loyal, innovative, and responsible members of society. They were respected citizens wherever they lived and successful in whatever personal and professional tasks they endeavored to accomplish. This is a proud and happy family with an amazing history of hard work, trials and disappointments, accomplishments in education, child rearing, religion and all the things that make life worthwhile. This is a family with a proud heritage.

The Hudiburgh/Hudiburg family stretches from France and England to all areas of the United States. Creating this version of the "Hudiburg Book" has been an interesting journey of discovery. Stories uncovered, new friends made, and family members found, have more than compensated for the thousands of hours spent in research. More importantly, it has broadened our cumulative perspective about this wildly diverse family.

We would, once again, like to give credit to the contributors of the 1972 Hudiburgh Book, for laying the foundation for this family history and encouraging later generations to update, correct and add to their information for a more complete family history. We would also like to thank all the generous volunteers at Find A Grave for all their help.

Those of us who have worked on this volume contribute these efforts to a better understanding of our mutual heritage. We sincerely hope that you, too, enjoyed participating in this journey.

When the Hudiburghs, Clocks and Renos moved to southwest Pennsylvania, they lived in the area around Noblestown.

As the Indian raids became more severe, the families began selling their land and moving to, what is now, northeast Tennessee to the Sycamore Shoals area, near the town of Elizabethton.

During the research to locate deeds for Thomas Hudiburgh, Sr. in southwest Pennsylvania, verification information showing the homeowners in Pennsylvania that had bought land on Virginia Certificates was located. In 1780, once the dispute of the boundaries between Pennsylvania and Virginia were settled, all the land owners that had bought land on Virginia Certificates, transferred them to Pennsylvania.

We found several of Thomas Hudiburgh's neighbors in southwest Pennsylvania that made those deed transfers, including Lewis Clock's property, the Reno/Rennoe, and others that lived in the same area.

New surveys were done and the transfer of the properties was made. We did not find any Virginia Certificates in Thomas Hudiburghs name and are now researching deeds issued in Pennsylvania. At this time, none have been found.

Dear Mrs. Halsey -

In looking over some of my old Hudibrugh papers last evening I found a list of the family of Thomas and Polly Hudibrugh. It was copied out of an old bible belonging to Mourning Hudibrugh Parkinson at Morgantown Indiana. (where I was born). She was a sister of your father, as shown by the list, a copy of which I inclose.

From this list it would seem that we are some kind of cousins as Malvina Hudibrugh was my Grand Mother and Eliza Hudibrugh her sister married a great uncle of mine (or grand Uncle), Alex Blair Kelso. Also Thomas Hudibroughs brother Lewis, married Dorcas Kelso a sister of my Grandfather. So we are doubly related -

I have been asked to write a sketch of Rev. Thos Hudibrugh. Sr. (Your great-grandfather) for a Baptist Magazine publish in Knoxville, Tenn. but so far have not been able to find out from what state the Hudibrugh family came to Tennessee. Or whether they were of Scotch or Holland descent.

My people came from Scotland & settled in Augusta County, Va., then to Tenn., then to Indiana - Some of the Hudibroughs went to Indiana when the Kelsos moved in 1828-9, your Grandfather, Thomas Jr. among them.

Mrs McCarthy writes me that her nephew met a gentleman on the train who told him that he knew some Hudibroughs who over

#2 lived near Little Rock, Ark, but he could not recall the town.

Can you tell what State the Hudibroughs came from to Tennessee.

Do you know what nationality originally.

Can you give me the address of any of the family who would be likely to have some information of the early records.

Sincerely yours

Clarence E. Kelso.

Will of Marie Miller Kaiser

Marie Miller Kaiser was the last direct descendant of Thomas Hudiburgh, Jr. to live in his home in Morgan County, Indiana.

Upon her death in 1979, the land and home was given to two nieces and a nephew, as per this partial will.

Nephew Evan Miller sold his portion of this land to the two nieces, Henrietta Hickman and Mary Stockton, the day the will was probated.

Although the sisters inherited the home, both already had homes of their own and no other family members were interested in moving onto the property. The farmhouse set empty for several years.

Early Knox County Churches

Goodspeed's History of Tenessee (1887)

The Baptists began preaching and organizing churches in Knox County about 1790. It may have been a year or so earlier that that, as a church was organized at the mouth of Richland Creek, in Grainger County, in 1788. The oldest church in the county still in existence is Little Flat Creek, which was organized in 1796. Among the earliest ministers that may be mentioned:

William Johnson, Isaac Barton, Richard Wood, Elijah Rogers, THOMAS HUDIBURGH, Dale Kimbrough, Robert Fristoe, Thomas Hall, Richard Newport and West Walker.

On the 25th of December 1802, delegates from nineteen Baptist Churches, formerly belonging to the Holston Association, assembled at Beaver Creek meeting-house, in Knox County, and organized the Tennessee Association. William Johnson was chosen as moderator and Francis Hamilton, clerk. A plan of association and statement of religious principles was adopted, embracing with some slight alterations, an extract from 'Asplund's Register'.

Of the nineteen churches represented at this meeting, five were located in Knox County:

Beaver Ridge, represented by Aquila Low, Thomas Hudiburgh, Jesse Council
Hickory Creek, represented by William Helms and John Finley
Fork of Holston and French Broad, represented by Alexander Bleakley
Little Flat Creek, represented by Richard Newport, Eli Scaggs and George Halmark
Beaver Creek, represented by Francis Hamilton, John and Hezekiah Boyles
These churches, as reported the following year, embraced an aggregate membership of 172.....

In 1817, twelve churches, situated in the counties north and northwest of Knox County, withdrew and formed Powell Valley Association, leaving seventeen congregations in the Tennessee Association. At the next session the churches in Knox County were represented as follows:

Hickory Creek: John Courtney, Henry Howard, Arnold Moss and others
Stock Creek: Joseph Johnson, James Trice and James Childers
Little Flat Creek: Peter Graves
Forks of French Broad and Holston: Randall Davenport
Beaver Ridge: Thomas Hudiburgh, Obed Patty, and Elic Cleveland
Beaver Creek: Willis Hammons
